

OTTAWA CIVIC HOSPITAL GRADUATE

Miss Helen Kathleen Stewart is shown here receiving her diploma and pin from Miss Edith G. Young, Director of Nursing, Ottawa Civic Hospital, at the recent graduation exercises held there.

Helen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Stewart, Central Railway, who had the privilege of attending their daughter's graduation. She is the second from that family to graduate as a nurse, Joyce having graduated from the P.E.I. Hospital, May 1956.

In a graduation class of 70, representing eight of Canada's ten provinces, Helen was the only Islander. Her future plans are to fly with T.C.A.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Alex, Where Are You? The Answer: I'se Here

Now come the summer days. Alex our two-year lad patters on bare feet along the path from the house across the lane to peep in with some questioning through one or the other of this kitchen's screechdoors. Then satisfied that all is well with us, he usually turns away to the outdoors happy to be in the sunshine of the day enjoying the interests about to watch spellbound for a long minute the calves and kid in the orchard, to be thrilled and a little awed by the huffs and puffs of the sows there on pasture. . . . and then, alas, alack so quick and light of foot he is, to disappear suddenly to bring to the cooks and sometimes the whole family on the run to try to discover his whereabouts. . . . And when a ringing, desperate "Alex, where are you?" brings a little lad around some corner, or to a door of a building with the surprised reply "I'se here!" the day shadowed for a moment by fear, immediately goes on in the sunlight again. . . . This afternoon the place was left to a lone woman and pup-dog when the others of this Alderlea family went to attend that interested foregathering and lively, which is the annual picnic of the school. . . . It comes as "The Closing" in a fitting and rewarding finale to the children for the bills and demands of the-to-them-long school-year. The parents too-the-mothers especially, we can appreciate draw relieved long breaths. No more lunches to prepare for a while, no lost pens or lads' books to find; no last minute pressings of "my clean shirt" or "that white blouse of mine" come a busy school-morning; no more reminding a lad of the farm taken up with so many springtime interests "those tests of yours are coming up!" A calm now on those scores. . . . In a new departure pleasing all, the picnic was held in the new Strathgarny Park. In this age of smart motoring, and lying as it is beside the smooth dark of the Trans Canada Highway this lovely spot, is only a few minutes drive away from this district. . . . "There's this about it!" Mack said this evening when its merits were being discussed "it's a roomy place. Big enough to hold the picnics of a number of schools at the same time."

"And it has the prettiest brook" Granddaughter remembered "the grandest old trees and the loveliest woods' trails-regular Lovers Lanes of paths!"

"Yes - a grand spot." Jeanie, their mother agreed. "Pretty rolling land, well sheltered from winds. Fine picnic grounds. It just needs kitchen-shelters now in the event of showers, to make it ideal."

What a happy day this has been for the children, all of whom have been successful in passing their required tests-of-school of the year. . . . And the farmers, once more at home, slipped into the boots of their trade and hurrying the morning, went back to burn heaps of trash left behind from the winter-harvesting of wood. . . . Thither the farmhand calls us now in the dew-fall. We shall follow it presently to get a closer view of the clearing-fires, and catch something of the gallant spirit of the pioneers, as the mounting games against the dim of this exquisite summer-night, give promise of arable fields and fine crops to come. . . . Until tomorrow - - - Diary - - - Good-night. . . .
