Opening lead—six of spades.

The question is what declarer should do after he wins East's ten of spades with the queen. As usual, the declarer must see only his own cards and dummy's, not all 52 cards.

Peculiarly enough, the proper play at trick two is the jack of hearts. Before going into the reasons why this play is correct, let's first see what happens when the play is made.

If West does not take the heart, South leads the jack of clubs, finesse, and has nine solid tricks after the finesse loses.

If West takes the jack of hearts, he can do as he leads the king of spades, which South

BEDTIME STORIES

Shivers and Learns

There's something new to learn each day.

—Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit was squatting down under stones of the old wall on one side of the Old Pasture. Right there the old wall was covered with tangled growth of grapevine. For a short distance it quite hid the wall. The air right there was very sweet with the fragrance of grapes, for this was grape time and bunches of wild grapes were hanging all over the vines.

Peter was paying no attention to those sweet-smelling grapes. He was interested in them, not the least bit. Those grapes didn't interest him. Peter had heard there were others to whom those grapes meant much. One of them was right outside sniffing along the edge of the vine-covered old wall. Peter heard those sniffs and each time he heard a sniff he shivered. He knew who it was that was doing the sniffing. It was someone for whom Peter had had to watch out all his life. It was Reddy Fox.

Reddy didn't see or know Peter was in the old wall. Peter knew that Mrs. Grouse is very fond of grapes. He guessed that Reddy might be sniffing in the hope of finding her in there with the grapes. Peter knew that if Reddy kept on sniffing along the wall he would be sure to find Rabbit scent. Then he would know Peter was hiding something where it could only be the heart of the old wall. That was one reason he shivered.

ANSWER TO IBM

LONDON (Reuters) — Defence Minister Duncan Sanders said in the House of Commons Wednesday he is hopeful that ultimately an answer will be found to the intercontinental ballistic missile problem.

"I can think of no weapons in the past to which an answer has not ultimately been found but it is no use pretending it is just round the corner."
