U.S. Plans To Review Nuclear Weapons Tests

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration plans to review—and may radically revise—U.S. policy on agreeing with Russia to suspend nuclear weapons tests.

President Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles apparently have decided already that several conditions are essential before their policy can be modified.

However, if these conditions are fulfilled, some of the topmost government leaders now believe that the U.S. position will be shifted much closer to that of Russia and in part at least reshaped along lines advocated by Eisenhower's recently resigned disarmament adviser, Harold Stassen.

The policy review will be the first major issue referred to Dulles' new board of advisers on disarmament questions. The secretary announced last week that with Eisenhower's approval he had named Walter Bedell Smith, Alfred Gruenther, Robert A. Lovett and John J. McCloy, all former high government officials of broad experience, to counsel him.

SIGNIFICANT OMISSION
The principal conditions of which Dulles and Eisenhower now are thinking, according to the most authoritative information which can be obtained here, significantly omit agreement by the atomic powers to a close link between suspending atomic tests and cutting off the production of nuclear explosives for atomic weapons.

The Russians have long objected to this requirement and Stassen has opposed it as blocking an agreement which, he argues, could start a whole series of arms control measures.

An American concession on this point could advance the prospect of an East-West disarmament pact possibly in connection with a summit conference.

On the question of suspending atomic weapons tests, the conditions which Eisenhower and Dulles now are reported to consider most important are these:

1. The most vital aspect of U.S. security policy is close co-operation with allied countries.

2. British and French needs can only be met if those nations can hereafter test their atomic weapons or if they can obtain information from American tests. This means that another condition is congressional approval of authority for the president to give atomic weapons information to allied countries.

3. The spring series of U.S. atomic tests must be completed before any suspension agreement is made effective, even if one could be negotiated within the next few months. This seems highly unlikely.

Coldwell Urges Recognition Of Red China

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP)—CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell Saturday night said it is vital the Canadian government extend diplomatic recognition to Communist China and embark upon a vigorous program of trade with China.

Mr. Coldwell said refusal to recognize China means refusal to develop normal trading relationships with a market of more than 600,000,000 at a time when Canada has large surpluses of lumber, grain and other products.

A share of this Asian market could be Canada's through recognition. As a trading nation Canada was more dependent on her trade relations than the United States.

But the Conservative government like its Liberal predecessor is allowing John Foster Dulles (U.S. Secretary of State) to dictate Canadian policy in this regard when Canada has to pay a much higher price for the carrying out of such a policy than the U.S.

The remarks were included in a partial text of a speech issued to the press before delivery.

Ex-Deb. Works Now In Garage
LONDON (Reuters)—A beautiful ex-debutante with a yen for adventure explained Sunday why she is working as a £6-a-week garage hand.

Wiping her oil-smudged face, 18-year-old Alison Seebohm said: "I need the money to finance a horseback trek from Alaska to Mexico."

The long-legged beauty, who did a spell as a model, has joined the growing list of cash-short aristocrats earning their own bread and butter.

"I got so bored sitting around doing nothing—and I didn't like modelling," she said. "So I decided to get away from it all."

TRIED MANY JOBS
Leaving the salons of the smart young set behind, she tried earning money the hard way—scrubbing floors, cleaning windows, working at a candy counter and waiting at a London coffee bar, but she liked the garage work best.

Miss Seebohm said none of her distinguished relatives new about the various jobs she had tried.

With her savings, she hopes to buy a cheap passage to Canada and work her way to Alaska for the start of the trek.

Another socially prominent young woman is planning to join her for the long ride. She is 23-year-old Judy De Blank, niece of Archbishop Joost De Blank of Capetown, South Africa.
