Charges Illegal Price Fixing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Attorney-General William P. Rogers has filed a civil anti - trust action against Volkswagen of America Incorporated and its 14 U.S. distributors. The suit charges illegal price-fixing in the sale of Volkswagen automobiles.

The action was brought Wednesday in the federal district court at Trenton, N. J. It alleges that in addition to fixing wholesale and retail prices of this German-made car, the company, the distributors and retail dealers have conspired to allocate exclusive sales territories and engage in other restrictive practices.

Among these, the U.S. government charged, were alleged agreements that the Volkswagen dealers would not sell other new automobiles or parts other than those made by Volkswagen.

The suit said the 14 distributors named in the complaint sell these automobiles to more than 300 dealers.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By B. Jay Becker

(Top Record-Holder in Masters' Individual Championship Play)

LENZ-CULBERTSON MATCH

During the early years of contract bridge, a battle raged constantly among the authorities of the day, each one advocating his own system of bidding.

The issue finally came to a head late in 1931 when a match was arranged between Ely Culbertson, advocate of his own Approach Forcing system, and Sidney Lenz, leader of a group who sponsored the Official or One-Two-Three system.

A match of 150 rubbers was arranged, the participants being Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson on the one side pitted against Sidney Lenz and Oswald Jacoby on the other. Presumably, the match was to determine which system was superior.

The contestants began play on the evening of December 7, 1931. The bridge battle of the century ended 150 rubbers later on the following January 8th. The Culbertsons were victorious, winning by a margin of 8,980 points. The victory could hardly be called decisive since the winners outscored their opponents by only an average of 10 points per deal.

Moreover, it was not clear whether the victory could be attributed to the triumph of bidding principles, or the strength or weakness of the individuals who applied those principles to the hands dealt.

The public followed the match with the keenest interest, convinced that the ultimate victory would settle the question of the merits of the two systems. And so it was. Culbertson became the biggest name in bridge. His name dominated the bridge world for many, many years.

The publicity attending the match was nothing short of sensational. Newspapers throughout the country devoted columns of space each day, reporting the progress of the match and the trials and tribulations of the contestants. Invariably the errors of the players received the greatest publicity because such items were news. Brilliant bids and plays received scant notice because these were expected of the experts.

Millions of converts to contract bridge were added to the fold. Not only the newspapers but also the radio brought the exciting game to the attention of the public. Dozens of books by self-appointed authorities appeared. Behind the scene was Ely Culbertson, with his flair for publicity, constantly promoting the game and asserting his authority.

Of the four contestants, two are no longer with us. Ely Culbertson and his wife, Jo, died last year, a few months apart. Sidney Lenz is today a spry young man of 84 who has given up the rigors of tournament competition. Oswald Jacoby went on to win many championships and is still a potent force in bridge.

This week, in this column, we will recreate some of the hands that were played 26 years ago in the Lenz-Culbertson match.

S. I. U. Want The "Facts Known"

MONTREAL (CP)—Under the heading The Canadian People Should Know the Facts, the Seafarers' International Union (CLC) took a full-page newspaper advertisement here Thursday to set forth its case in the dispute with Canadian National (West Indies) Steamships.

Eight CNS vessels were transferred recently to Trinidad registry by the government - owned company after a strike begun last July 4.

"Little more than four cents an hour separates the union and the company on wages," said the ad. "This would cost the company not more than $24,000 per year."

It claimed "$500,000 by company announcement has been spent in efforts to break this legal strike."

The vessels are idle at Halifax.

The last company wage offer was for 15 per cent more. The union, initially seeking 30 per cent, scaled this down to 20 per cent which it said is still below the minimum paid any other Canadian flag fleet.

It claimed an average monthly wage before the strike of $204 as against $270 for deep-sea crews and $343.36 for Lake crews.

"Rather than pay the $24,000 a year, the company deprives the government of $84,325 per year in lost income tax and unemployment insurance contributions," said Thursday's SIU claim. "It also deprives the country's gross national wage of $800,000 to $900,000. . ."

Need A Positive Moral Ideology

OTTAWA (CP) — The main need of Canada and its partners in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is "a positive and moral ideology" to combat the Communist ideology, Liberal C. W. Carter said Thursday.

The MP for Burin - Burgeo, Nfld., said during a Commons defence debate that the West is paying too little attention to the war of ideas.

While keeping prepared for a possible hot war, Canada and other Western countries were neglecting the ideological war being fought by the Communists.

Mr. Carter said the word ideology is not one Canadians use very often. Many did not understand its meaning.

"An ideology is an idea in action; an idea that includes a plan for remaking the world; an idea that has become a force because it has captured the hearts and souls of human beings so that they are ready to give up all for its triumph."

He said at another point:

"What NATO needs primiarily —and what we should contribute —is a positive and moral ideology that is capable of counteracting" the Communist ideal.

Probe Breaking Diplomatic Code

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Smith said Tuesday that queries addressed to Canada's ambassadors in Venezuela and Chile about reports that Venezuelan security police have broken Canada's secret code for diplomatic communications have not been answered yet.

Venezuela last Friday expelled Jorge Basulto, attache at Chile's embassy in Caracas, and in consequence Chile severed diplomatic relations with Venezuela. Basulto alleged that information he had given Canadian ambassador Richard Bower about the likelihood of a revolution in Venezuela had been cabled to Ottawa in code and that Venezuelan security police broke the code.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
