MARCH 18, 1880.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL.

Remarks on the Budget.

THE CREDIT OF THE COUNTRY

In the English money markets has very much improved within the year, Canadian four per cents being quoted in London at 96, the securities of Canada in their relative position standing ahead of those of any other British Colony. Last year these securities were quoted at 7 per cents less than at present. It is not necessary to take much more of the space of the EXAMINER in referring to these points of such vital interest, as the speech of the Finance Minister, in full, no doubt, will be published. Sir Richard Cartwright, after recess, followed the Finance Minister. His speech, although an able one, was not remarkable for any new arguments or facts. There was, all through, a repetition of what has been uttered by himself and his colleagues in and out of Parliament. When he began the galleries were crowded to excess by those who came to hear the debate, but, after he had been speaking an hour and a half, the people moved out rapidly, and this exodus did not cease till Sir Charles Tupper took the floor. Perhaps one of the most vigorous speeches that Parliament ever listened to was that made by Sir Charles in reply to the late Finance Minister. When it was known that Tupper was speaking, members flocked in from the Reading Room and other places, and took their seats. Sir Richard was unfortunate in making any allusion to deficits, for Sir Charles rung the charges upon him so tremendously that every member of the Opposition fairly writhed under his lashes. Cartwright also alluded to the few that gathered upon the square in front of the Parliament Buildings a short time ago, employing this as an argument to prove that labor was more difficult to procure now than under the late Administration. Tupper, with a force that was perceptibly felt by the Opposition, replied that no Minister of the present Cabinet was ever imprisoned in his office, as was the late Minister of Public Works (Mr. Mackenzie), when 500 men besieged his office imploring for work, and nothing could be done for them. The difference between the present time and then is simply this: that labor can now be found for a number of these men, while no work could be had for them then. Work had been offered to 100 of them under contractors who have hitherto been unable to get men to work on their contracts. While men engaged in manufacturing lumber required others, and are now ready to employ them, and will be able to give work to numbers more in the saw-mills, when the ice breaks up on the Ottawa River. Sir Charles Tupper showed that the tax on flour, made so much of by the members of the Opposition, only amounted to 3 (three) cents per annum, per head, on all the flour imported into New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. This announcement took the members by surprise, as no one had previously thought the tax was so light. He repeated the statement made by Sir Leonard Tilley, that the lowering of the duty on tea and molasses more than overbalanced the increased duty on flour. Sir Charles Tupper was frequently applauded by the members, all of whom listened with the greatest attention to the successful demolition of Sir Richard Cartwright's statement. Mr. Mackenzie followed Sir Charles, but was extremely moderate for him, his speech being also much shorter than former ones on the tariff. The difference between Tilley and Tupper on the one side as speakers, and Mackenzie and Cartwright on the other, is very marked. While the former always show that they have a firm grasp of their subjects; the latter, as a general thing deal in generalities and assertions. Tilley and Tupper always have a means of proof by which to substantiate their statements; while the others frequently leave the impression that they are not certain as to the correctness of their assertions. One portion of the speech of the Finance Minister will afford satisfaction to the promoters of the the estimates of last year which was not realized was the revenue from liquors. He was pleased to know that the consumption had fallen off, and he believed it was the item above all others in which the people of Canada would least regret the decrease of revenue derived therefrom. These utterances are in striking contrast to those of Sir Richard Cartwright who said in one of his Budget Speeches that he hoped to have an increased revenue for the year, from the consumption of spirits. The Speech of Sir Leonard is at the Capital, and from what can be seen at this early date after its delivery, it has been well received in the leading business circles of the Dominion. A contemptibly mean political trick was performed by Mr. Burpee of St. John, just previous to the delivery of the Budget Speech. He laid upon the table a petition signed by his own supporters, praying that certain changes be made in the tariff. This was done to embarrass, if possible, the Finance Minister, but nothing could be finer than the scorn which came with withering effect upon Mr. Burpee when Sir Leonard exposed the act, and characterized it as a piece of political clap-trap. If those men who forwarded the petition were sincere, why did they not send it to the Administration instead of to a member of the Opposition, who is powerless to effect any change. The House treated the effort of Mr. Burpee to embarrass the Finance Minister on the eve of the delivery of his Budget Speech, with the contempt it deserves, and he evidently felt ashamed of the part he had played when the words of Sir Leonard elicited the applause of the House.

ACCORDING to the latest returns, Copenhagen has a population of 235,000. In 1850, it contained 129,000; in 1860, 150,000; and in 1870, 181,000.

THREE million acres of fall wheat have been sown in California, the early and abundant rains enabling farmers to put in a full crop, which is said to be a very unusual thing.

The Trade Unionists are pushing things in New York and elsewhere in the United States. Strikes are the order of the day in many directions there. The fact will tell heavily on the cost of production, and on the power of the United States manufacturer to compete abroad with his foreign rivals.

PEDESTRIANISM.—At the close of the six days walk in San Francisco, on the 15th inst., there was a large crowd present, but there was very little excitement as it was evident O'Leary had the match his own way from the start. At the finish, the score stood—O'Leary 576 miles; Weston 490 miles. O'Leary was fresh and apparently capable of continuing on indefinitely.

"VAT'S DER DAMAGE."—He was a Dutchman and it was his first visit to town. He wrote a letter and went to the Post Office to post it. He gently dropped the epistle in the box. He then proceeded to the wicket and knocked. The gentlemanly official—he of the three card monte experience—approached and inquired of the Dutchman what was wanted. The latter, hauling out a large leathern pocket book, said:—"Look heah pass, I vas shust drop a letter in ter box, vat's der damage."

HERE'S A GO.—The Opera House people in Toronto are under prosecution for holding a secular concert on Sunday. They threaten that, if convicted, they will commence an action against the Methodist churches of the city for taking up collections on Sunday as well as against newspaper proprietors for employing labor on that day. There is apostolic authority, at all events, for taking up collections in places of worship on the first day of the week. The case for the printers would have to stand on other ground.

Those who were foolish enough to leave the Maritime Provinces for the West, during the recent "Colorado" or "Kansas" craze, are beginning to return home even sooner than was expected. A Nova Scotia correspondent of the Moncton Times writes:

HOME AGAIN.—Mr. Robert Baird, of Little River, N. S., was one of several who "went out with the tide" to Colorado about four weeks since. He returned last week and expresses himself highly satisfied with the country—as a good place to keep out of just now. Mr. Baird is a mason by trade, and it would naturally be supposed that such a man would be in demand in a new country. He visited Denver, Leadville and other places, and reports that for one man of the emigrants who is wanted, fifty are not required. The cities are overcrowded, and some of the surplus, and doubtless many who have gone from the Low R Provinces in haste, are by this time repenting at leisure.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—The Summerside Progress of last week says His Lordship Bishop McIntyre and Dr. O'Brien went via Northern Light to Pictou. Such is not the case, as the Northern Light has not put in an appearance since she left Georgetown on Friday, the 5th inst.—just twelve days from this date—nor is there any word at latest dates of her present anchorage.

Surely, the K. C. Advertiser and the few others who are prejudiced in this matter, will now cease to harrange the people any more, but quietly submit to the inevitable, viz., the Northern Light being sent to the Capes, where she can ply daily and not be lost sight of even for an hour, much less for eight and ten days at a time, as at present.

The crossing is good at the Capes now, and many of the passengers who have been waiting at Georgetown for eleven days, have at last come to the Capes, and are daily being put across in short time. Our Government will soon learn to know that the means of crossing must take place in winter at the Capes. Yours, &c., &c.,
RESIDENT.
Cape Traverse, March 17th, 1880.

THE GROWTH OF CHRISTIANITY.—The following tabular statement will present a proximate idea of the growth of Christianity through all the centuries. The number of believers at the close of each century was as follows:—

J. B. McNamee, of Montreal, is spoken of as a probable candidate for the seat in the British Parliament for Cavan, Ireland. Of course, Mr. McNamee would fight under the Home Rule flag.

It was reported at one of the clubs in New York that Lady Dufferin would in all probability return to Ireland from the Russian Capital, in the event of matters on the Continent assuming any more serious aspect than at the present.

A Denver, Colorado, special of March 15 says:—"News of a terrible massacre near Blue Mountains have been received. A large number were killed. Several bodies have been found and buried. There is great excitement Ames Valley. The parties killed were on a prospecting trip."

The London Standard says information has been received of a rupture between France and Madagascar in consequence of a misunderstanding between the French Consul and the Government of the Island, and the Consul has hauled down his flag and appealed to his Government for support.

The Earl of Dysart attained his majority on the 3rd of March. His grandfather, who died last year, left estates worth £40,000 a year and more than £1,000,000 in personal property for the young man's benefit. The late Earl was eccentric, almost to insanity.

Jamaica papers give full reports of the trial of two members of the crew of the Halifax brig George L. Berry, Capt. Howard, from Pensacola to Montevideo, with a cargo of lumber, for mutiny on the high seas. One man was sentenced to 20 years and the other to 20 years' penal servitude.
