

Troubled Ireland.

THE LATEST DEVELOPMENTS—OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

(By Cable to the New York Herald.)

The publication of an authorized statement to the effect that "the reports of dissensions in the Cabinet are totally devoid of foundation, and no such variance of opinion exists between members of the Cabinet as to justify the supposition that any Ministers are so much opposed to their colleagues as to contemplate the necessity of retiring from the Cabinet," would show that the subject of suspending the Habeas Corpus act in Ireland has been dropped by the government. The Birmingham Daily Post contains to-day the following significant statement:—"With regard to Ireland there is a point beyond which the radical members will not yield an inch. If the Habeas Corpus act is to be suspended on such grounds as are at present urged in justification of such a step they will leave the Cabinet. That this would sooner or later imply the collapse of the Cabinet is tolerably certain. The direct link between the administration and the forces that called it into being would be broken, and the former would, in no true sense, be representative of the principle which, with a great popular wave, swirled Mr. Gladstone into power. It is a barbarous remedy at best, and ought never to be resorted to until other measures have indisputably failed. A feeble government would fly eagerly to coercing; a strong one, with a cool head and collected judgment, would just let it alone. The members for Birmingham are right if they have but staved off the demand till the country has had time to recover its judicial calmness, and they will have earned the sincerest thanks of every lover of liberty. Lawlessness in Ireland must be put down. Crime must be traced out and punished. But all this, we hope and believe, can be done without going back to the clumsy expedient of brute force and forfeiting the liberties of a whole community in order to deal with the wickedness of the few." The semi-official assertion is therefore simply misleading. Coercion would have been demanded but for the opposition of Messrs. Bright and Chamberlain.

On the 19th, the Times, in a leading article, said:—"If the Cabinet, or a majority of its members should be compelled to accept what, as we have said, the Irish Executive deems indispensable for the performance of its functions, we trust there will be no unwise attempt to obstruct or curtail that course. If the government should not deem it necessary to apply for extra powers it is apparent that they must be prepared to face a storm of opposition when Parliament meets, which will seriously imperil the prospects of a just settlement of the land question." The Pall Mall Gazette, replying to the Times' editorial article on Irish affairs, declared that every liberal newspaper in England and Scotland dissuades the government from an immediate session of Parliament and a policy of coercion. "The country," it says, "desires to see a new policy tried in Ireland. Coercion, without a strong land bill, would not be a new policy." The Daily Telegraph points out that the Cabinet must await the report of the Irish Land Commission before any land reform bill can be announced or any vigorous measures can be taken. The News, in its leading editorial, says:—"The Cabinet did not come to any decision yesterday in regard to the meeting of Parliament. It was not, we believe, considered that the time had yet come when it could be finally decided whether an earlier session is necessary. The government are likely to be engaged for some time in considering a scheme that they intend to introduce on the subject of land tenure in Ireland."

Truth says:—"The newspapers howl for a suspension of the ordinary law in favor of exceptional coercion. So did the Italian papers when brigandage was rife in a large portion of Italy. 'Any one,' Cavour said, 'can govern in a state of siege.' It may possibly become necessary to govern Ireland in this fashion, but resort should not be had thereto until every other means has been tried and failed, until the grievous wrongs of the Irish have been met with legislation."

A NEW LAND BILL.

The Cabinet is now elaborating details of an Irish programme, which will most probably include, besides an improvement of the system of land tenure, the purchase of certain lands and estates with government assistance for the purpose of placing the scheme of peasant proprietary on trial. The Pall Mall Gazette, in a leading editorial article, says:—"Unless Mr. Forster refuses to be any longer responsible for the government of Ireland without coercion, instant coercion cannot be necessary, and Ministers Bright and Chamberlain are right. Something is said about Lord Selbourne (Lord Chancellor). It is invidious to introduce personal comparisons, but if the gossip be true that Lord Selbourne is on one side and Mr. Bright on another, public opinion, among the liberals at any rate, will not be long in deciding between the statesman who was so purblind as to insist, only ten years ago, on the maintenance of the Irish Church and the statesman who has spoken what the liberals of all shades recognize to be more solid wisdom about Ireland than all of his colleagues put together." Special despatches to Paris papers mention rumors of a succession of radical members from Mr. Gladstone's Cabinet, to be followed by overtures to Lord Derby and other moderate conservatives. The St. James' Gazette, in a leading editorial article, says:—"It is safe to affirm that there are differences in the Cabinet between the views of Lord Selbourne, Lord High Chancellor, who holds that the vindication of the law should have priority over the redress of alleged grievances, and Mr. John Bright, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, and Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, President of the Board of Trade, who believe coercive measures unnecessary."

The latest news is:— That a determined attempt was made on the night of the 18th to murder an army pensioner, Mr. James Hanlon, acting as sheriff's bailiff at New Pallas. It appears that Timothy Bourke, a farmer on the estate of Mr. Erasmus Smith, owed two years' rent. Being unable to pay the amount, he was evicted on the 5th inst. He and his family took refuge in the house of a relative a short distance away. Mr. Sanders, who is Mr. Smith's agent, took determined measures to prevent Bourke from retaking the farm. He placed six armed bailiffs in Bourke's house. The neighborhood was much excited regarding the eviction. The tactics employed in Captain Boycott's case were used. No provisions were sold to the bailiffs, who were starved out at the end of a week, and refused to continue to hold the house. They were replaced by six others, who, up to the present time, have held the fort pluckily, going regularly to Limerick for provisions. Mr. Sanders himself was shot at and the intimidation continued, but unsuccessfully. Mr. Hanlon, with another bailiff, went to Limerick for provisions and returned after dark. He had almost reached home. The men were passing a grove of trees when a man, partially concealed by the trunk of a tree, fired a heavy charge of buckshot into Mr. Hanlon's face. Mr. Hanlon replied with three shots from a revolver, but without effect. He then fell, having become insensible. The wounded man was soon removed to a neighboring house. The doctor who was called discovered that he had received a terrible fracture of the skull. He now lies in a precarious condition, though he has regained consciousness. Michael Looby, a grocer at New Pallas and a nephew of Bourke, is suspected of the crime. He was immediately arrested, being taken out of bed. He was conducted to Mr. Hanlon's bedside and identified, Mr. Hanlon having been able to see him in consequence of the bright moonlight. Mr. Hanlon's deposition was taken, when Looby was committed and conveyed to Limerick Jail.

That the Herald's Brussels correspondent has reason to place implicit faith in the statement that some steamers took on board, at two or three Italian ports, 8,000 Wetzlar rifles. Two or three thousand of them are magazine rifles, and they are said to have been shipped for Greece, but really intended for Ireland, and were purchased in Switzerland by some Irishmen who had come from the United States.

That additional troops have been ordered to Ballinrobe. Some of those there have been directed to be in readiness to proceed by forced marches to Galway.

That "intimidation is even on the march to Dublin itself, as there have been some instances of threatening letters sent to persons in Dublin county."

That the Land League has removed all its books and papers to a place of safety, fearing their possible seizure.

That a portion of the hussars encamped at Ballinrobe were ordered to return to Dublin immediately, in consequence of their horses suffering from exposure to the severe weather.

That the Ulster men will be at Lough Mask farm another week. They have finished the digging of the potatoes and turnips and have now begun to thresh the corn, which is the most serious part of the work.

That a meeting of the tenant farmers of Monaghan county has strongly denounced the agitation.

That the expense of the military portions of the Boycott relief expedition will be levied on county Mayo.

The Concert for the Blind.

There was a fairly large and appreciative audience; and the Concert, as a whole, was decidedly good. Some of the most popular of our amateurs were missing from the ranks of the performers; but, on the other hand, several ladies and gentlemen made a most creditable "first appearance." The Charlottetown Quintette Club, whose assistance is now necessary to the success of a Concert, played well—but not so well as, with more practice they could have played. Mr. Vinnicombe's violin solo drew forth a genuine burst of applause and an encore, and Miss Magee, of St. John, played a piano solo—the Delta Cappa March—with surprising power. Her performance was, as it deserved, heartily applauded and encored. The accompaniments were very well played by Mr. Earle and Miss Palmer. Mrs. M. McLeod and Miss Palmer contributed a beautiful vocal duet and very pleasing trios and quartettes were sung by Mrs. Maxwell, Mrs. R. FitzGerald, Miss Palmer, Miss Lee, Miss Bourke, Miss F. Palmer, Captain Maxwell and Mr. Fred. Mitchell. Mr. Williams sang two solos. Both were highly appreciated by the audience and the last was encored. Mrs. M. McLeod sang "Looking Back," the music of which was composed by Arthur Sullivan. It was a song well suited to Mrs. McLeod's musical and well cultivated voice, and was received with much applause. Miss Mabel Bourke sang "Saved from the Storm," and refused an encore. It was the first solo Miss Bourke ever contributed to a public concert; and the effort was most praiseworthy. Miss Bourke's voice is, we hope, destined often to be heard in circles larger than those of the drawing room. Miss Palmer gave a brilliant rendition of "When the heart is young;" and, we think, added to her established reputation as a vocalist. This concert may be termed the "first musical treat of the season;" and it was highly creditable to Miss Palmer and those who assisted her.

Mr. S. CARSLY, the retail merchant prince of Montreal entertained 110 newsboys and several newsgirls and newswomen at lunch at his establishment, the other day. An entertainment, taken part in by invited guests, and speeches by Protestant and Catholic clergymen, followed the lunch. At the close parcels containing warm winter clothing, were distributed to each.

NEWS BY TELEGRAPH.

LONDON, Nov. 25.

A Dublin despatch says the commander of the forces in Ireland received a sudden summons on Wednesday, to meet Mr. Forster at the Castle.

The merchants and other citizens declare they cannot serve on the jury in the State trials for fear of injury to their business, and murder. As the merchants have business with all parts of the country, they fear being "Boycotted" if the traversers are convicted.

Boycott has received a threatening letter bearing a London date.

A Berlin despatch says the government is about to complete a number of branch railway lines.

The Press Association says it is authorized to state that Forster declared at the Cabinet Council to-day, there was no necessity to adopt coercive measures in Ireland at present.

The Cabinet has finally agreed upon proposals to be submitted to Parliament on the Irish land question.

The steamer State of Nevada which arrived at Glasgow on the 23rd inst., from New York, encountered fearful weather during the passage. Her deck houses were smashed, and 35 head of cattle killed. She was hoisted to for two days.

A despatch from Paris says the body of Pascal Smith, the millionaire, from St. Paul, Minn., has been found off the Marseilles coast. He left a lunatic asylum in May, and arrived at Marseilles with his wife and son on the 19th inst. Next evening he was missing, and is supposed to have drowned himself.

UNION CITY, IND., Nov. 25.

Samuel Eagles was shot last night while entering the house of his divorced wife. He is sinking fast, and says Henry Pierce shot him.

SPEZZIA, ITALY, Nov. 25.

The steamer "Oncle M. Joseph" was run into by another steamer, name not given. She sank almost immediately with over three hundred persons on board, of which fifty were saved, principally crew. Great uneasiness is felt in English circles, as it is feared many English and American passengers were on board.
