SPECTACLES.

Over twenty-five years I have been in the Spectacle business and during that time have fitted hundreds and hundreds of persons. Some had put off getting glasses so long that they could not see a large 4 inch letter A without going within 2 or 3 feet of it, and might have gone blind if they had put off getting glasses much longer. Others have been fitted or rather misfitted, with wrong glasses by travellers, and charged a great deal more than they ought to have been. This year our traveller, Mr. C. H. White, intends calling on parties at their homes in the country, to test eyes and show samples of our goods. Should he call on you I bespeak for him your favorable consideration, and any order you may give him will be filled as soon as possible and guaranteed by me. Glasses can also be exchanged at the store, CAMERON BLOCK City, if after a trial they do not prove as satisfactory as you wish.

E. W. TAYLOR, City

Warning!

I wish to inform the public that several parties are travelling the country using my name and pretending to be selling Spectacles for me. Mr. C. H. White is the only traveller that I employ. He is competent to test eyes and fit Spectacles properly. If any others call and say they are selling for me please ask them to show their license.

DAVID HELD THE BABY.

This Because a Young Woman Was Detained on a Fast Train.

There were only four persons in the party, including a very small and silent baby, but their advent caused a revolution of emotions in the car, which was completely filled with passengers. The undersized father and portly mother of the baby, together with Cousin Em, boarded the train at C—, bound for New York, and, as it was a Jersey coast express train on the Pennsylvania railroad, the stop at C— was of short duration. Immediately after the train started the announcement was made in three different vocal keys that Cousin Em was being carried away from home against her will.

"Here! Stop this train, David! Stop it, I say, and let Cousin Em off!" commanded the baby's mother, pushing her little husband toward the door of the car.

"Stop the train, conductor! Hold her up! Hold her up!" echoed the husband, running frantically down the aisle. "Yes, for goodness' sakes, let me off," chimed in Cousin Em shrilly. "I ain't fit to go nowhere. I've got nothin but a check apron on."

The conductor, however, was somewhere else, and the brakeman's authority did not extend beyond keeping the excited young woman from jumping off the fast moving train. With a wall of despair, therefore, Cousin Em retreated to the center of the car and proceeded to relate to the passengers how she had only come aboard "to help Cousin Em with the baby and the things, because Cousin David is no earthly use where women folks are. And here I am with nuthin but a check apron on," she sobbed in conclusion.

Meanwhile the baby's mother was making vigorous use of an ample vocabulary in setting clearly before her little husband's mind a few facts regarding his general uselessness. "Now you just fork over the money to pay Cousin Em's fare to the next station and back, and then you'll hold the baby till we get home," she said, with an emphasis that brooked no dissent. David handed out 40 cents and quietly took the baby.

When the conductor appeared, he was inclined to treat the incident as a good joke on Cousin Em, but that young woman indignantly bade him observe that she had "nuthin but a check apron on," and to keep his jesting for some more suitable occasion. To a few of the sympathetic female passengers she confided that she had some "betting frocks" at home, and as she left the car at M— station she expressed the hope that she might meet her new friends again "with nuthin better than a check apron on."

Cousin David held the baby until the train stopped at Jersey City. His wife kept her eyes on him, and so did the rest of the passengers.—New York Times.

CHINESE WILD HORSES.

Curious Little Animals Found in the Western Part of the Empire.

The horse has become so thoroughly domesticated in all parts of the world that really wild representatives of the species are extremely rare. There still exist in parts of Hungary partially wild horses, but these when captured young may be broken in and put to harness with as much readiness as horses reared on a farmstead. It is, however, far different with the wild horses of the Tartars, which are untamable and will not live in captivity.

During his journey through western China G. E. Grum Grizmailo met with a wild horse in the Dzungarian desert, and after much trouble succeeded in securing two specimens, though neither of them were taken alive. The herds are extremely cautious, and it was only by the utmost patience and cunning that the explorers were able to conceal themselves near enough to a small salt lake where the horses came to drink to shoot a couple of them. The wild horse has something in common with the Altai, Caucasian and Finnish ponies. It is of short stature—1.46 meters high—has a broad chest and back, a short, massive neck and fine legs, as elegant as those of a race horse, ending with broad hoofs.

The head is rather heavy in comparison to the body, but the wide forehead is handsome, the line from the forehead to the nose straight and the upper lip covers the lower one. The upper part of the tail has the color of the body, but is black at the point, and, like that of the wild ass, is not entirely covered with hair. The mane begins in front of the ears, the longest hairs being in its middle part. It is black in color and hangs over to the left. In the scantiness of hair about the body the wild horse rather resembles the Tekke Turcoman horse, but the killed specimens had a strange looking pair of whiskers, about four centimeters long.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Age of Music.

"This appears to be an age of music," said Mr. Bugleton. "Here in the forry-house you find a phonograph, into whose ever open mouth somebody drops a nickel. As it begins to play people waiting gather around to listen, and the man who has started it displays his peculiarities by standing at one side and listening with the rest or by planting himself square in front of the horn and getting all he can out of it himself and letting the rest listen with him."

"Then there is the musical weighing machine, which plays a tune for you as you stand upon the platform, and finally tosses out to you a little card, upon which you find your fortune told and likewise your weight."

"Or you may 'hear the band play' by dropping a penny in the slot, the band being a music box with a cylinder as big as a rolling pin."

"It is indeed an age of music—for a consideration—but was there ever a time when you didn't have to pay the piper?" —New York Sun.

We wish we could make everybody believe that promptness is prevention; that there should be no delay when you are losing flesh and when you are pale, especially if a cough be present. The continued use of Scott's Emulsion in the early stages of lung affections does prevent the development of Consumption. Your doctor will tell you this is true and we state it without wishing to make any false claims or false promises. Free book tells more on the subject.

These two cases led me to prescribe Tutti-Frutti Gum chewing in a number of cases of Atonic Dyspepsia that came under my care. I have not kept notes of these cases, but in nearly all a cure was effected, and in the few that did not progress to a complete recovery the benefit from the procedure was marked.
