

COMMERCIAL

L & ADVERTISER.

PUBLISHED ON EVERY WEDNESDAY & SATURDAY.

Established 1823.

Charlottetown, P. E. Island, Saturday, September 8, 1855.

New Series, No. 272.

DEFENCE OF SEBASTOPOL.

We learn from Vienna, that in the military circles of that capital, where the published correspondence from the French and English camps is compared with ample private information of Russian origin, opinion is decidedly favorable to the prospects of the allies on the next assault. The Military Gazette, which at times has gone great lengths in hoping and predicting for Russia, now gives its voice in favor of the besiegers. "The French engineers," it says, "have now got so near the east fort and the Karabelnia fortifications, that the first Russian line of defence can hardly withstand the next assault. It would be possible to hold the middle line, even when the allies had taken the Malakoff Tower, but General Osten-Sacken well knows the danger which at this moment threatens the marine suburb and the Admiralty buildings, and has given orders preparatory to the eventual evacuation of this part of the town, and a retreat to Fort Nicholas. General Chrouff directs the defence of the Karabelnia, and his head-quarters in Fort Paul. It is inferred from his latest measures that while prepared for the worst, he is resolved to give ground in the last resort.

The Independence of Brussels and some of the Berlin papers state, as news from St. Petersburg, that orders have been given for the construction of a floating bridge, to be built by Fort Nicholas, on the south side, to Fort Nicholas, on the north side of the roadstead of Sebastopol, so as to assure the retreat of the garrison in case of need. There is some error of details in this announcement, Fort Nicholas being on the south side of the roads; but the character and object of the new construction is important.

The Odessa correspondent of the already quoted Military Gazette thus writes on the 30th ult. touching the situation of Sebastopol.—By our most intelligent military men it is universally admitted that if the allies push forward as energetically as they have hitherto done, the south side of Sebastopol must in the end inevitably fall. The garrison's heroic self-sacrifice and contempt of death, they but cannot avert, the steady progress of the besiegers who day by day gain ground upon them. All the various reports in the French and English journals about interrupted communications between the north and south sides, terrible epidemics which rage amongst the besieged, 15,000 sick, in Sebastopol, want of provisions and ammunition, and so on, are nothing but idle inventions. Letters from the interior of Sebastopol, dated July 22, assure us that the connection between north and south is unimpeded, that food and ammunition are abundant, and the magazines on the north side contain supplies sufficient to serve 300,000 men for a year. The hospitals, in the days of greatest slaughter, have never contained more than 9000 men. For sanitary reasons, however, Prince Gortschakoff had just given orders to remove all the sick from the hospitals in the northern forts and to take them into the interior of the Crimea. There are only 13,000 sick and wounded who are too ill for service. The sanitary reasons, however, which Prince Gortschakoff had just given orders to remove all the sick from the hospitals in the northern forts and to take them into the interior of the Crimea. There are only 13,000 sick and wounded who are too ill for service.

For sanitary reasons, however, which Prince Gortschakoff had just given orders to remove all the sick from the hospitals in the northern forts and to take them into the interior of the Crimea. There are only 13,000 sick and wounded who are too ill for service. The sanitary reasons, however, which Prince Gortschakoff had just given orders to remove all the sick from the hospitals in the northern forts and to take them into the interior of the Crimea. There are only 13,000 sick and wounded who are too ill for service.

solutely devoted themselves to death, and trusting in God wait with calm expectation till their time comes. Hence the indifference one might almost say the joyfulness, with which they play at cards and dice on the bastion, while shot and shell are falling around, so that, as soon as one is struck down, he is quickly removed, and the game without end goes on as before. Thus after the last unsuccessful attempted storming, Prince Gortschakoff visited the bastions, asking "How goes it, children?" "As God wills," answered the soldiers. The garrison of Sebastopol numbers at this moment from 60,000 to 65,000 men.

Accounts received from Odessa inform us that in Great Russia, the crops have been almost completely destroyed by drought and hail.

Boston, August 27.

DESTRUCTION OF THE FORTIFICATIONS AT PETROPOLUOWSKI.

The French brig of war Oligado, Captain Resencourt, had arrived at San Francisco from Petropoluowski, bringing intelligence of the destruction of the fortifications at that place by the Anglo-French squadron. The Alta California obtained the following details from Lieutenant de Foort of the Oligado :—

DESTRUCTION OF THE FORTS AND FLEET OF THE INVARIABLELY ALLIED FLEET, consisting of eight war vessels and steamers, arrived off Petropoluowski on the 15th of May, but the garrison had already left by the Amoor river, in the Russian frigate Amora, Cette Dwina, and two merchant vessels. The escape of the garrison was a master-stroke on the part of the Russians, who availed themselves of a dense fog which set in on the night of the 17th of April, and so eluded the English war steamer Encounter (screw) of 14 guns, and Barraouta (side wheel) of 6 guns, which had been blockading the harbour for fifty days previous. The orders to evacuate were received from the Russian head-quarters in Siberia.

On anchoring in the harbour, a detachment was sent on shore by the commanders of the fleets—Rear Admiral Bruce, of the English, and Rear Admiral Fouchin (a newly appointed and exceedingly energetic man, only 43 years of age,) of the French. They landed and found the town deserted, save by 100 Kamschatska dogs, a French naturalized American, and two Americans, who raised the stars and stripes over their houses when the forces landed, claiming that as the Russians had abandoned the place and left it to them, they were possessors of the soil. These men were engaged in trading, and are represented as doing a good business. The dogs were in a starving condition, and followed the invaders about for their bits of bread. The village was brought away by Capt. Resencourt, of the Oligado.

The parties were divided into companies, who proceeded to burn, blow up and destroy the arsenals, storehouses and all government buildings. Not a vestige of any public work was left standing, except the hospital, which, with the church and the dwellings of the poorer classes of the inhabitants, was left untouched. The inhabitants commenced deserting the place shortly after the garrison embarked. Accompanied by the authorities, they started on or about the 20th of April toward Tchink; but the Governor's wife being enclente, the flight continued only to the small village of Avache, some twenty miles inland.

The following day after the arrival of the allies, the destruction of the fortifications commenced. These were fascines constructed of immense logs—the walls being sixteen feet in thickness. Such were their strength, they resisted all efforts for some time, and were finally razed to the ground by the agency of powder. It appears that the policy of the Russian Government had changed rather suddenly in this matter. After the battle of last year, orders came for strengthening the forts, and though at that time, such a resistance was made as to repeat the assailants, there being but one tier of guns, it was ordered to increase it to a double tier.

The destroyers found the embrasures for 51 guns of heavy calibre. Why this sudden change of policy took place, may, perhaps be explained by that on which the Russians have always acted—of retiring into the interior from their invaders, and avoiding decisive engagements. This time, however, they were made nothing by the movement, and with the increased strength of the place, it would seem that they ought to have more obstinate resistance than before. The fleets did not leave the place until the demolition was complete.

EXCHANGE OF PRISONERS.—The fleet sailed, with the exception of the Trincomalee, and the Amoor, were left to Russian prisoners, whom it was proposed to exchange for a French sailor, whose arms were amputated after being taken prisoner in the battle of last year. The American residents there report that they have lived in perfect peace and friendship with the inhabitants up to the day of their departure, and that the French and English prisoners were treated with humanity.

Her Majesty, not in person, but represented by certain superior grade personages, has bowed out honourable members from her Palace at Westminster. The Royal Speech not only does not require the Madame compliment, you cannot speak about it without getting into a tone of commonplace and triteness worthy of Lord John Russell. The right to be rigorous upon the subject of the alliance with Napoleon is firm; her Majesty is satisfied with the doings of her Parliament; that is the whole of it. Her Majesty leaves Osborne on Friday evening, and enters Paris at six on that of Saturday.

In the last days of its existence, Parliament passed the Limited Liability Bill, and listened to a good deal of tolerable oratory. Lord Palmerston's speech, in answer to Mr. Bowyer's foolish question about the auspicious start of Italy, but not on Friday evening, was clear and sensible. The distressing condition of the country was declared, but the time and mode of action in the case were shown to involve the possibility of extreme difficulty. From that country we hear that Pio Nono has signified his displeasure at the doings of Sardinia and Spain.

The recruiting of the army is at present going on at the rate of 60,000 men a-year. The last despatch from the British Commander-in-Chief, on his attack on the Worcester Road. The enemy came on with an advanced column of 2,000 men, supported by large reserves, and was met by the British, who were promptly met and severely handled by the soldiers of the 39th, 80th, and 1st Regiments, on day there, though what might have proved serious was over in ten minutes, with no loss to the Allies. General Simpson remarks that the enemy "came on with loud cheers and hugging." Probably it is poltroons that included this General, who has the noisiest name among the Russians as heroes. Every one will remember that our soldiers who fought at Inkermann were not less than many times in the way of cheering by the epithets, "yelling and howling." It is an old and historical habit of theirs.

MEXICO.

Mexico.—Intelligence from Acapulco states that Alvarez was making his way fast to the city of Mexico, with constantly increasing forces.

Dates to the 22nd state, that Santa Anna left Mexico on the 29th of August, under an escort of 2500 men. On reaching Parote he has signed his abdication an embarked on the 17th at Vera Cruz for Havana.

Two days after leaving Mexico, 7 or 800 of his escort revolted, killing one or two officers joined the insurgents. The Alvarez platform was adopted and General Caire appointed provisional President, and Gen. Le Vega Commander in chief.

The mob had gutted several houses, including that of Santa Anna's mother-in-law.

A Toronto contemporary says.—"The almost universal prevalence of the credit system on newspapers is as irrational on the part of the subscribers as it is unjust. Every man who acts upon it, lends his influence so far, to cripple or destroy the very causes he desires, avowedly, to sustain. The humblest labourer in the Province could find no inconvenience to pay 5s in advance for six months of a weekly Journal, which would regularly every week.—Now, when many persons in circumstances of independence allow their debts to remain unpaid, not for months, but for years, what we ask every intelligent reader, must be the consequence? It must embarrass, if it does not crush the energies of the proprietor, and so far weaken the cause with which the paper is identified."

PREPARE FOR A STORM.—A few nights ago, a Mr. Bedkin, who had been out taking his glass and pipe, on going home late borrowed an umbrella, and when his wife's terrace was lashed, he sat up in bed and suddenly spread out the paraplu.

"Now, what are you going to do with that thing?" said she.

"Why, my dear, I expected a very heavy storm to-night, and so I came prepared."

In less than two minutes, Mrs. Bedkin was asleep.

Charlottetown Markets, Sept. 5.

|                           |                   |                 |               |
|---------------------------|-------------------|-----------------|---------------|
| Beef (small lb)           | 5s 7d             | Pearl Barley    | 3d            |
| Do. (quarter)             | 4s 6d             | Oatmeal         | 2 1/2 a 3 1/2 |
| Do. (half)                | 4s 6d             | Trappes each    | 5s 6d         |
| Do. (small)               | 6 1/2 s 8d        | Fowls           | 1s 10d        |
| Hans                      | 8d 10d            | Partridges      | 7d 8d         |
| 3rd 6d                    | Chickens per pair | 16d 2s          |               |
| Lamb, per lb              | 3s 6d             | Eggs dozen      | 7d 8d         |
| Veal                      | 3s 6d             | do              | 3s 6d 3 1/2   |
| Butter (fresh), 13 1/2 lb | 10s               | do              | 2s 2s 3d      |
| do by tub                 | 11s               | Taraps per bush | 2s            |
| Yellow                    | 11d 1s            | Carrots, do     | 1 1/2 2d      |
| White                     | 11d 1s            | Onions per 20   | 2s 6d 1s      |
| Flour                     | 4s 4 1/2          | Hay, ton        | 50s 60s       |

PAPER HANGINGS!

—JUST RECEIVED—
3,200 PIECES FROM BOSTON,
And for Sale by HASZARD & OWEN.
Aug 16, 1855.

COLT'S REVOLVER.

FOR SALE a few sets of the above complete in Cases, at Haszard and Owen's.