BRISTOL

With the contract let for the new United Church here that will replace the four other older churches we made an inquiry about the Bristol United Church that has been a land mark for so long. Harry W. Davison, a long time farmer, now residing in the city recalls when the Bristol Church was built in 1888. Now living in the city at the Sunset Lodge are Mrs. May McEwen and Mrs. Effie McEwen members of the old church choir.

The old memorial in the church is to the memory of one minister the Rev. Peter Gordon who served here in 1806, and it goes back to the still older Presbyterian Church that stood here two centuries ago.

Mr. Vincent McGrath has retired from fishing after seventy nine years as a fisherman. Still hale and hearty as he nears the century mark Mr. McGrath decided this spring it was time to retire and take it easy for the next decade.

Mrs. Vincent McGrath, who has been working as a home nurse in the city for some time is home for a while.

Work on the new high school is moving along after the winter hold-up and it is expected the building will be in readiness some time this fall.

Recent visitors to the city included: Mrs. Bill Connolly, Mrs. Charlie Eldershaw, Mrs. A. B. McAdam, Mrs. A.B. McAdam, Mrs. Arthur Blaxland and Helen McAdam.

Joe Kelly, proprietor of the village meat market was in the city for a couple of days on business last week.

Mr. Owen Kelly, manager of the Kelly's Flower Shop, Summerside, was a recent visitor to the old Kelly home here where his mother still resides.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Steele were in the city last week on business.

Among those graduating from Notre Dame Academy in Charlottetown this month is Miss Teresa O'Brien, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter O'Brien.

The severe electrical storm on Saturday night caught a lot of people who were attending the big lobster supper in the community hall.

When the village high school closes this month quite a few will see the doors close behind them for the last time.

One of the oldest schools still going here is the old harbour school and some of the scholars who are past the eighty year mark say the school is on the same site it was on a hundred years ago when the old long desk and long benches were in use and such smart teachers as the late H.D. McEwen, sat behind the teachers desk.

This district has more than sent its quota of doctors, members of the clergy and lawyers from here into the world from that old school in the harbour when there were no high schools no radios, no TV no cars nothing in fact but study and work.

The very first writer from the district for Island papers, the late John T. O'Brien, was a student from this old school and for a time a news correspondent for fifty years.

U Thant Sees Tests Danger

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Acting Secretary - General U Thant of the United Nations has labelled high - altitude nuclear testing "a manifestation of a very dangerous psychosis" U Thant recalled he had supported UN General Assembly resolutions calling for a ban on all nuclear testing. High-altitude tests, he said, are more objectionable than other types.

His views were expressed at a press conference.

He declined to elaborate on his reference to psychosis.

Thant cited two reasons for his opposition to high - altitude tests. First, he said, many eminent scientists have objected to them and, second, space "is not the property of any country."

The U.S. plans to detonate a nuclear device in its current test series in the Pacific.
