The Hanovarian Wrecked.

St. JOHN'S, Sept. 4. Particulars of the wreck of the Allan Line steamer Hanovarian have just been received. They are as follows:—During Monday and Tuesday the weather was foggy, and Tuesday night was worse. At daylight Wednesday morning, the captain saw net buoys off Cape Pine, but thought the ship was off Cape Race, and changed his course for St. John's. Shortly after he saw a fishing boat. It was very foggy at the time, and the wind was north-east. Soundings at 9.30 showed eighteen fathoms of water. Immediately after a passenger saw a house off Portugal Cove, Trepassay Bay. The engines were immediately reversed, but it was too late. The ship struck nearly 400 yards from the shore. Boats were speedily lowered. The passengers behaved well, and all landed safely with the mails. The shore people saw the steamer a mile off before she struck and went in boats to assist the passengers, who were soon comfortably housed on shore. A portion of the luggage was saved, the balance with the cargo is under water, which is now over the saloon decks. The vessel is a total wreck in thirty feet of water and is breaking up fast. H. M. S. Tenados is at the scene of the wreck. She will bring the passengers to St. John's.

Horrible Tragedy in St. Catherine's

Ottawa, Sept. 4. The particulars of the tragedy at St. Catherine's, Ont., which occurred last fall but has only just come to light, are as follows:—Alex. Easterly killed his wife, and had as an accomplice in the murder his brother John. Another brother named Howard assisted John in disposing of the remains. The three brothers afterwards had a quarrel, and Howard was nearly killed in the fray. Alexander then shot himself, but not fatally, and he received the quietus from John, who cut his throat and buried his remains. Howard makes confession of the double tragedy, and John was placed in custody. The body of Alexander and that of his wife were found where they had been dumped into a hole without other covering than that of a blanket.

Sergeant Mumford, of the 63rd Battalion, made the highest individual score—86 points. In the Bankers' prize the grand aggregate score ties are yet to be fired off. As it stands at present, the Association Medal Badge and $30 go to Sergeant King, of the 47th Battalion, who scored 262 points. Badge and $25 goes to Sergt. Robertson, of the 37th Battalion, with a score of 262. Capt. Corbin, of the 63rd Battalion, Halifax, wins a badge and $20; and Sergt. Mumford ties with Lieut. Blain, at 257 points.

NOTES.

Not the promissory, but facts about WELCOME SOAP, an article that does not contain one particle of the adulterations used to reduce the cost of "Fure Goods," but does possess the value of legitimate Washing Soap, the demand for which proves the advantage gained by the use of the genuine over Soaps of doubtful character. None should be deceived even by Red and Yellow Wrappers, or any of the imitations of the WELCOME, as a pair of clasped hands is stamped on every bar. Made by CURTIS, DAVIS & Co.

The Temperance Centennial.

No person can deny, says the Toronto Globe, but that the temperance movement is one of the most important now in existence for the moral elevation of the race. There may be a difference of opinion in respect to the working of some of the temperance organizations, but all are willing to acknowledge the utility of temperance, and all rejoice when drunkards are reclaimed. Everybody, including brewers and distillers, as well as wholesale and retail merchants, denounce drunkenness. The civilized world owes a debt of gratitude to the temperance men of the nineteenth century for the fidelity and earnestness with which they have unflinchingly advocated their principles in the face of the most formidable opposition, until now temperance under its various designations has become such a power that no one can afford to ignore it or treat it with contempt. This is the centennial year of temperance. One hundred years have rolled away since Dr. Benjamin Rush, of Philadelphia, published his famous treatise on "the effects of ardent spirits on the human system." This little tractate, we are told, produced a wonderful commotion, and was published and republished in Europe and America. In 1811, Dr. Rush presented one thousand copies of his essay to the Presbyterian General Assembly. Ministers of different denominations afterwards preached and published sermons on the same subject. It is claimed that the first Temperance Society was organized in Massachusetts in 1813, by Dr. Rush and others. In 1833 this Society took a more national form, and was known as the American Society for the promotion of Temperance. Some of the more active labourers in the temperance cause have thought well to take advantage of this centennial year of temperance by holding a series of meetings in its celebration. Accordingly the "National Temperance Society," whose headquarters is in New York, has issued a circular recommending that on Sunday, September 20th, sermons shall be preached everywhere, and celebrations held in connection with the Sunday schools, and that public meetings also be held on Monday evening, 21st. Then on Wednesday and Thursday of the same week a grand Centennial Temperance Conference will be held in Philadelphia, when various papers on the several phases of temperance will be presented. It is expected that the gathering will be the most important that has ever been held in connection with temperance.
