(From the Summerside Journal.)

A very large bear made his appearance at Wellington a day or two ago, and quietly relieved Mr. Barlow of a fine sheep.

The ladies of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Alberton, intend having a tea and bazaar on the 28th inst. Look out for a good time.

The reports from the fishing stages up west are very encouraging. Mackerel are very plentiful although averse to taking the hook. Lobsters were never known to be so abundant.

Michael McNeill, of Lot 16, met with a severe accident on Wednesday. As he was starting from Campbell's stables his horse took fright, started to run and threw him out of his wagon, and he fell on the sidewalk with such force as to cause considerable injury.

Crops are looking well, in general.

Washington Letter.

THE PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN.

WASHINGTON, July 12.

Every day, now, there are new charges that Cabinet officers dismissed their clerks or other employes because of refusal to pay political assessments, but any charge of the kind so far has been met with full denial. So far as such dismissals might be a matter of principle, probably those who make the complaints would, under opposite circumstances, be at least as guilty as those of whom the complaint is made. As a matter of policy I should be astonished to know that any person would authorize such dismissals at the time. It is announced, however, on authority which seems to be unquestionable, that the President and his Cabinet will do all they can with propriety for Republican success, and that with this end in view, the patronage of all the Department will be used as has been customary.

No preliminary question of the campaign excited more interest here than that concerning Gen. Hancock's proposed resignation of his place in the army. It may be said with certainty that all the General's original friends in this respect that he will quit the army on his acceptance of the Presidential nomination.

The resignation of Judge Porter, first controller of the Treasury, took effect today. He will leave this city Monday night to open his gubernatorial campaign in Indiana. Col. Robertson, of Fort Wayne, Indiana, is most prominently spoken of as his successor, now that Judge Lawrence, to whom the office was tendered, has declined.

Dr. Tanner.

The man who is giving the New York doctors all the trouble is one of their own craft, although, we believe, he is not of what is called the regular school. Tanner is to-day on the seventeenth day of his fast. The general opinion of the medical fraternity was that he could not hold out beyond the fifteenth. That would be the fatal day. The despatches this morning announce that Tanner has in reality broken his fast so far as to take water in what may be regarded as considerable of a quantity. He drank six ounces on Monday, and has "munched" broken ice. Up to that time he had not in reality taken any nourishment beyond what might be absorbed into his system by washing his body, or by rinsing of his mouth. The water so used is weighed, both before and after its use, and the loss by absorption is practically noted. We don't believe that there is any fraud. The watchers are very keen, and include not only physicians, but reporters for the press who relieve each other regularly. "Dr. Tanner is insane on the subject of fasting," said a prominent New York physician, and that, no doubt, explains to a great degree the way in which he has been able so far to set, apparently, at defiance the ordinary laws which affect mankind. But these laws are in force. Tanner is living on himself. He is gradually consuming his own vitality, and is wasting away the tissues and fluids of his body. He may prolong this so far as to be unable to recover himself even when he, or his attending physicians, decide to end the trial. His indomitable will has no doubt much to do with his maintenance of his fast. The Herald reporters describing his appearance on Sunday say:—

Though his body still presents the appearance of being well nourished, his face grows daily more cadaverous in aspect, and an eager, pleading look that is ever present in his waking moments is somewhat painful to contemplate. He exhibited more lassitude than is customary with him on rising for the day, and was as fidgety, querulous and irritable as might be expected under the severe mental strain he is undoubtedly undergoing.

The Prince of Wales stated, at a recent meeting of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, that, as the result of an effort made by the Ladies' Committee, 10,000 essays on "Man's duty towards Animals" had been prepared by the children in 500 out of the 2,500 London schools. It is a good idea to enlist the children of the public schools in the work. The more the duty of kindness to the lower animals is impressed upon the young, the less will be the need for societies like the S. P. C. A.

Prince Leopold.

Prince Leopold George Duncan Albert, K. G., K. T., Duke of Saxony, Prince of Coburg and Gotha, is the youngest son of Her Majesty. He was born April 17, 1853, and is accordingly in his 28th year. He was educated under the tuition of Canon Duckworth, and later at Christ Church, Oxford, whence he graduated with high honours and the degree of B. A. The Prince has shown a studious disposition and has led a comparatively retired life. He has the reputation of a scholar and is credited with a strong love of music, art and literature. He is said to be a great student of Shakespeare and to delight in the study of metaphysics. In many respects he resembles his lamented father, the late Prince Albert, especially in the evenness of his temper and in his tastes and the encouragement which he is disposed to give to the cultivation of the arts and sciences. The Prince is a good speaker on public occasions, his utterances at times being characterized to be the ring of genuine eloquence.

It is a great pleasure to Canadians to have Prince Leopold, or any other son or daughter of our Queen, amongst them. We are truly glad that he has been able to spend some weeks in Canada amidst scenes which can be witnessed in but few countries in the world. His fishing experiences in Quebec, we hope, have been all that a true lover of nature could desire to enjoy. At the same time it is matter for regret that the Prince has not been able to arrange a route through New Brunswick on his way to England, so as to learn something more of this portion of Her Majesty's Dominions than he is likely to gather from atlases.—St. John Sun.

Married Her Own Brother

A well dressed and handsome lady recently called upon Chief Judge Neilson, of the Brooklyn City Court, and informed him that she had something of a strange and important character to communicate. "I was born of respectable and wealthy parents in Sweden," the lady said, "and came to this country with an aunt when but a child. In my youth I had a companion, a boy about two years my senior, whom I was taught to regard as an orphan adopted by my parents. His name was different from ours. My father died after I left home and mother married again. Then the companion of my youth came to America. The meeting between us was most happy, and all the love and affection of our childish days were renewed. Some time after he secured a good position, and we were married without the knowledge of our friends. Our married life was a most happy one, and in due time a beautiful babe was born to us. My mother came to America rather unexpectedly, and called at the house. Upon being informed of my marriage and the name of my husband she expressed the utmost grief, and made the startling announcement that I had married my own brother." Judge Neilson's visitor was so overcome in relating the story that she sank back in her chair and sobbed for several minutes. She was informed by His Honor that in the sight of neither God nor man had she committed any crime. It was evidently the wish of both, he said, that they should cease living as man and wife, and he would take the proper steps to have the marriage null and void. The lady left after thanking him in an earnest manner. The case was referred to counsel for settlement. The names of the parties are strenuously withheld.

N. S. Industrial Notes.

Opponents are beginning to admit a change. The Yarmouth Tribune has come to the conclusion that the immigration to our shores is slightly in excess of the "exodus."

The Pictou Standard says the shipments of coal from the port of Pictou, last week, were the greatest ever known in the history of the port. There's the "hum" for you.

Windsor is happy over an export of plaster of 12,286 tons in excess of the quantity exported up to the end of June, last year.

The lumber business and the hemlock bark business are also lively in Windsor.

A VERY painful and at the same time curious accident occurred to Mr. Edward C. Haviland, a traveller for Messrs. J. G. Mackenzie & Co., Montreal, one evening last week, at Pembroke. It seems that Mr. Haviland accompanied a friend to a drug store for the purpose of procuring some nitric acid. The druggist filled a small vial of the liquid for the customer, and while passing it across the counter to him, the bottle exploded, as Mr. Haviland was standing near, the entire contents of the bottle struck him in the face and head. Fortunately his eyes escaped injury, but his face and forehead were badly burned. The proper remedies were at once applied and the pain somewhat alleviated, but it will probably be some time before he recovers from the wounds inflicted. His hat and coat were eaten full of holes by the powerful stuff, and his general appearance on his arrival at Arrprior on Tuesday suggested the idea that he had been struck by sky rockets. We trust that he will soon recover, and never again meet with such an unlucky mishap.—Arrprior Chronicle.

A Good Account.

"To sum it up, six long years of bed-ridden sickness and suffering, costing $200 per year, total $1,200—all which was stopped by three bottles of Hop Bitters taken by my wife, who has done her own housework for a year since, without the loss of a day, and I want everybody to know it for their benefit."

"JOHN WEEKS, Butler, N. Y."
