REPORT ON THE LORNE HIGHLAND WHISKY:
"We have visited the bottling stores of Greenlees Brothers, and have selected from the vats, samples of their Lorne Highland Whisky, and have subjected them to careful examination and analysis. The samples were very fragpossessed all the characteristics of pure

THE WAR-TRAIL!

CHAPTER XI. (CONTINUED).
On the night before the battle, Ijorra was missing. The Texan army was captured after a brave defence, in which they slew more than their own number of the enemy, and under guard, the remnant was marched off for the capital of Mexico. On the second or third day of their march, what was the astonishment of the Texan prisoners to see Rafael Ijorra in the uniform of a Mexican officer, and forming part of the escort! But, that their hands were bound, they would have torn him to pieces, so enraged were they at this piece of black treason.

"I was not in that ugly scrape," continued the lieutenant, "As luck would have it, I was down with a fever in Brazos bottom, or I guess I would have had to draw my bean, with the rest of 'em poor fellows!" Wheatley's allusion to "drawing his bean" I understood well enough. All who have ever read the account of this ill-starred adventure will remember, that the Texans, goaded by ill-treatment, rose upon their guard, disarmed, and conquered them! but in their subsequent attempt to escape, ill managed and ill guided, nearly all of them were recaptured, and decimated—each tenth man having been shot like a dog! The mode of choosing the victims was by lot, and the black and white beans of Mexico (frigoles) were made use of as the expositors of the fatal degrees of destiny. A number of the beans, corresponding to the number of the captives, was placed within an earthen olla—there being a black bean for every nine white ones. He who drew the black bean must die! During the drawing of this fearful lottery, there occurred incidents exhibiting character as heroic as has ever been recorded in story.

Read from an eye-witness:
"They all drew their beans with manly dignity and firmness. Some of lighter temper jested over the bloody tragedy. One would say: 'Boys! this beats raffling all to pieces!' Another:
'Well, this is the tallest gambling-scrape I ever was in.' Robert Beard, who lay upon the ground exceedingly ill, called his brother William, and said: 'Brother, if you draw a black bean, I'll take your place—I want to die!' The brother, with overwhelming anguish, replied:
'No, I will keep my own place; I am stronger, and better able to die than you.' Major Cooke, when he drew the fatal bean, held it up between his finger and thumb, and, with a smile of contempt, said: 'Boys! I told you so: I never failed in my life to draw a prize!' He then coolly added: 'They only rob me of forty years.' Henry Whaling, one of Cameron's best fighters, as he drew his black bean, said, in a joyous tone: 'Well, they don't make much out of me anyhow; I know I've killed twenty-five of them.' Then demanding his dinner in a firm voice, he added: 'They shall not cheat me out of it.' Saying this, he ate heartily, smoked a cigar, and in twenty minutes after he had ceased to live! The Mexicans fired fifteen shots at Whaling before he expired! In spirit a giant, said that he was perfectly willing to meet his fate—for the glory of his country he had fought, and for her glory he was willing to die.' Edward Este spoke of his death with the coldest indifference. Cash said:
'Well, they murdered my brother with Colonel Tannin, and they are about to murder me.' J. L. Jones said to the interpreter: 'Tell the officer to look upon men who are not afraid to die for their country.' Captain Eastland behaved with the most patriotic dignity; he desired that his country should not particularly avenge his death.
Major Dunham said he was prepared to die for his country. James Ogden, with the usual equanimity of temper, smiled at his fate and smiled and said: 'I am prepared to meet it.' Young Robert W. Harris behaved in the most unflinching manner, and called upon his companions to avenge their murder. * * *

"They were bound together—their eyes being bandaged—and sit upon a log near the wall, with their backs towards their executioners. They all berged the officer to shoot them in front, and at a short distance, saying, they 'were not afraid to look death in the face.' This request the Mexican refused; and too make his cruelty as refined as possible, caused the fire to be delivered from a distance, and to be continued for ten or twelve minutes, lacerating and mangling those heroes in a manner too horrible for description." When you talk of Thermopylae, think also of Texas!

"But what of Hollingsworth?" I asked.
"Ah! Hollingsworth!" replied the lieutenant; "he has good cause to remember Ijorra, now I think of it. I shall give the story to you as I heard it;" and my companion proceeded with a relation, which caused my blood to curdle in my veins, as I listened. It fully explained, if it did not palliate, the fierce hatred of the Tennessean towards Rafael Ijorra.
In the Mier expedition, Hollingsworth had a brother, who, like himself, was made prisoner. He was a delicate youth, and could ill endure the hardships, much less the barbarous treatment to which the prisoners were exposed during that memorable march. He became reduced to a skeleton, and worse than that, fotsores, so that he could no longer endure the pain of his feet and ankles, worn skinless, and charged with the spines of acacias, cactus, and the numerous thorny plants in which the dry soil of Mexico is prolific. In agony, he fell down upon the road.

Address to Mr. Unsworth.

Address to Mr. Unsworth.

MR. UNSWORTH, the recently appointed Mechanical Superintendent and Storekeeper of the Island Railway, appears to have been quite popular at Riviere de Loup. He has entered on his duties here; and if we are to judge from the tone of the following address presented to him on his departure for this city, he will prove a valuable acquisition to this community: To Joseph Unsworth, Esq., Mechanical Foreman, Riviere de Loup.
DEAR SIR,—We learn with feelings of the deepest regret that you are about to take your departure from our midst. During a period of nine years, you have been intimately associated with most of us, and by your fine business and social qualities, you have become specially deared to us all.
We therefore take advantage of the present opportune occasion to express the unanimous sentiments of good will and unbounded friendship entertained for you, not only by those who have been under your immediate charge, and others connected with the Intercolonial Railway with whom you have had daily intercourse in the ordinary routine of duty, but by the citizens of this town in different lines of business, who have had the pleasure of your acquaintance, and we shall long cherish pleasant memories of your sojourn amongst us.
While deploring the loss we sustain by your departure, it is extremely gratifying to us to know that your entry on a new field of labor is to be of material benefit to you, and your appointment to one of the highest positions on the Prince Edward Island Railway, in the gift of the Government, shows conclusively the highest opinion of the executive officers of the Government Railway system have of your sterling worth.
Be pleased also to convey to Mrs. Unsworth our best wishes for her future welfare and happiness, and we trust yours; if and family may long be spared to enjoy the prosperity in store for you. (Signed), Jas. Yeo, M. Crean,
X. W. Anderson, Thos. Crckett,
T. Lavoie, Wm. Wall,
J. R. Murphy, W. P. Brown,
T. W. Burke, and many others.

MARKETS.
OATS.
The English market for oats, according to most recent reports, was not active, and there is not much chance of active enquiries springing up at present. The price is nineteen shillings per quarter of 304 lbs. to English ports, and nineteen shillings and six pence to French ports. We understand that a cargo or two were sold for nineteen shillings and nine pence to be delivered at Rouen.
POTATOES.
The market for potatoes in the United States remains the same as last reported.
The export for this season has been completed. It has been a large one both in quantity and value. A Baltimore circular of the 20th inst., says: At the wharf we note further arrivals the past week of six cargoes from P. E. Island, in all 26,000 bushels, which, with previous arrivals, causes rather a glut. A good deal of the stock is going into store, and the sales which are being made from vessels range from 90 cents to $1 per bushel, as to variety for Blues, White and Early Rose.
We hear of no further direct importation of Irish, though some have been received via New York, landed at that port by steamer, and we quote for prime stock at $1 to $1.10 per bushel.

FLOUR.
The Montreal Gazette of the 12th reports: "In flour there was a fair local enquiry at somewhat stiffer values. The sale was reported this afternoon of 1,000 bags of Ogilvie's strong baker's at $3.75, and of 50 bbls of white bread sponge flour at $8.25. For broken lots of Superior $6.25 was paid to-day. Sales reported on Change were: 50 bbls extra at $6.00, 50 middlings at $4.00, 50 medium bakers at $6.15, 50 strong bakers at $6.15, 100 do at $5.50, 50 do at $7.00."
Superior Extra..... $6 15 @ 0 00 Extra Superfine..... 6 00 @ 6 05 Fancy..... 5 95 @ 6 00 Spring Extra..... 6 00 @ 0 00 Superfine..... 5 70 @ 5 75 Canada Strong Bakers..... 6 50 @ 6 75

PORK AND LARD.
In Montreal market on the 12th there was no important change in hog products, Western mess pork being quoted at $20 for old, and $20.75 and $21 for new. Lard was quiet at 14 1/2 for Canadian in pails and at 15c for American Dressed hogs were steady at $7.75 and $8 per 100 lbs in car lots, but no sales were reported except in a jobbing way. Smoked hams are beginning to receive a little more attention, and several sales of city cured were mentioned at 13c, among which was that of a 100 pieces at 13c, and a lot at a shading below that figure.—Gazette.

A FIRE at North Sydney on Monday last, destroyed eight buildings, including W. H.
Moore & Co's store, one of the largest in the town. The loss is estimated at $100,000.
