MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

snow, he came back. This is just one of many times he has run away...

We just don't know what to do; but perhaps somebody would know. We have raised a son who is in the service, and all the children are perfectly normal except this bad boy, who needs help so desperately. If possible will you please advise us soon; any guidance will be greatly appreciated.

SHOCKING ABUSE OF AILING CHILD

DEAR R.P.: I have asked a specialist for light on this subject. As he turns has a question. He asks: "If a child gets sick and vomits and has diarrhea, do we punish him for it? Is that any help?" Well, obviously, the answer is no; it would be savagely ignorant to punish a child who is sick and can't help vomiting, etc. And as for the boy tried to, to lambast your small son for having an emotionally sick personality.

Your duty is to get to the root of the difficulty and remedy the cause of the moral disorder. And you certainly aren't doing this when you beat the boy for admitting his sickness to you. The doctor says the outstanding fact of your story is that the boy tried to, to lambast your small son for having an emotionally sick personality.

"And the sad part is," the doctor says, "that the parents haven't been—in any way, abnormal or even remotely helpful to the child." He adds, "When a child does what he shouldn't do, a baffled parent's rigidly punitive or condemnatory attitude can easily drive him to worse behavior. We don't have to be permissive; but as grown-ups, we ought to realize that a child with this sort of problem is going through at least as much mental anguish as his parents."

PARENTS NEED UNDERSTANDING

Your completely wrong handling of the latest instance suggests that you've bungled things from the start with this boy. Heaven only knows what chain of mistakes and misunderstandings and hidden abuse (on somebody's part) has victimized him. When a child runs away from home repeatedly, it means he isn't getting the specific help that he needs, the doctor says, and that should be plain to anybody.

In the town through which you write, there is a Guidance Clinic (so-called) for the city and county, which concentrates on psychiatric care of children. My consultant advises you parents (one or both) to go there, without your son at first; and get specialist coaching in how to prepare him to unburden his soul to a staff counselor, with faith in that expert's good will. Also you will be given help in learning the affirmative pitch, the loving, understanding pitch, of good parenthood. - M.H. Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. FIRST ALBERTON BABY - Mr. and Mrs. Erskine S. Gavin, Alberton, are the proud parents of the first baby born at Alberton in the new year, a boy born in the Western Hospital at four-thirty in the morning.

IS RECOVERING - Alan Gallant, 17, of Summerside, who was seriously injured on December 3rd while working at the Railway Wharf is able to be up and about at the Victoria General Hospital, Halifax, where he has been a patient since December 5th. He is expected to be well enough to come home in about a month. Alan, son of Mrs. Annie Gallant and the late Walter Gallant, North Market Street, was struck by pulpwood which slipped from a sling being lowered into the hold of the ship "Hegra" and suffered a fractured skull as well as other internal injuries. He was attended by Dr. Hubert MacNeill before being removed to "Alifax."

Let's Talk It Over

by "A"

The two men we are going to talk about are not actual people. They are hypothetical people; mythical personages we have conjured up for purposes of comparison. Yet most people know them pretty well. Let's call them Algernon and Joe. Joe is a simple, uneducated soul who thinks the Punjab is what Robinson knocked out Olson with, and that Khrushchev is a fruit salt. He spent a few bewildering years in school, of course, but education left a rather dim imprint on his personality. But if your car is stuck in a snow bank, or if you are having trouble putting up stove pipes in the fall, Joe is the best possible fellow to have around. He is a handy man, is Joe.

Algernon is a "magna cum laude" boy from a well established university. He can recite reams of Shelley and Shakespeare, and tell you all about algebraic variables and constants. He will even have a go at the theory of relativity. But on a "Robinson Crusoe" adventure on a remote island with no Boy Scouts in the party he would have a much better chance of surviving as a catfish in the Sahara Desert.

Modern education should strive to round out the personalities of these two gentlemen. It should try to encourage Joe to stay in school a little longer, and give him a better grounding in cultural pursuits, or in other words, the art of living a fulfilled life. Let's not indulge in pipe dreams. Joe will never be a connoisseur of art and beauty, but a better education will generate for him more enjoyment in life. As for Algernon, the lad with the far-away look in his eyes, a little down-to-earth instruction in the manual arts won't do him any harm. Just so he can handle the ordinary everyday problems of this workaday world without getting bitten too often. Both these mythical, but very real characters could better fulfill the pledge in the poem, which goes: "Oh, motherland, we pledge to thee—head, heart and hand in the years to be."

Statistics From S'ide Hospital

Seven hundred and 44 births at Prince County Hospital in Summerside during the past year show an increase of 18 over the number of babies born there in 1954, when 731 births were recorded.

An analysis of the statistics for both years reveals that, by sexes, the male births increased by 14, from 379 in 1954, to 393 in the past year, while the female births decreased by 11, from 362 to 351.

These figures also show that male births outnumbered female births by 42 during the past year, while the difference amounted to only 17 in 1954.

There were eight sets of twins born at the Prince County Hospital in 1955, as compared to 10 the previous year.

The first baby of 1956, as reported in yesterday's paper, was a son born to Cpl. and Mrs. Carl Ryan of Slemon Park, who have been residing in the housing development at the Summerside R. C. A. Station for the past two years. They have three other children.

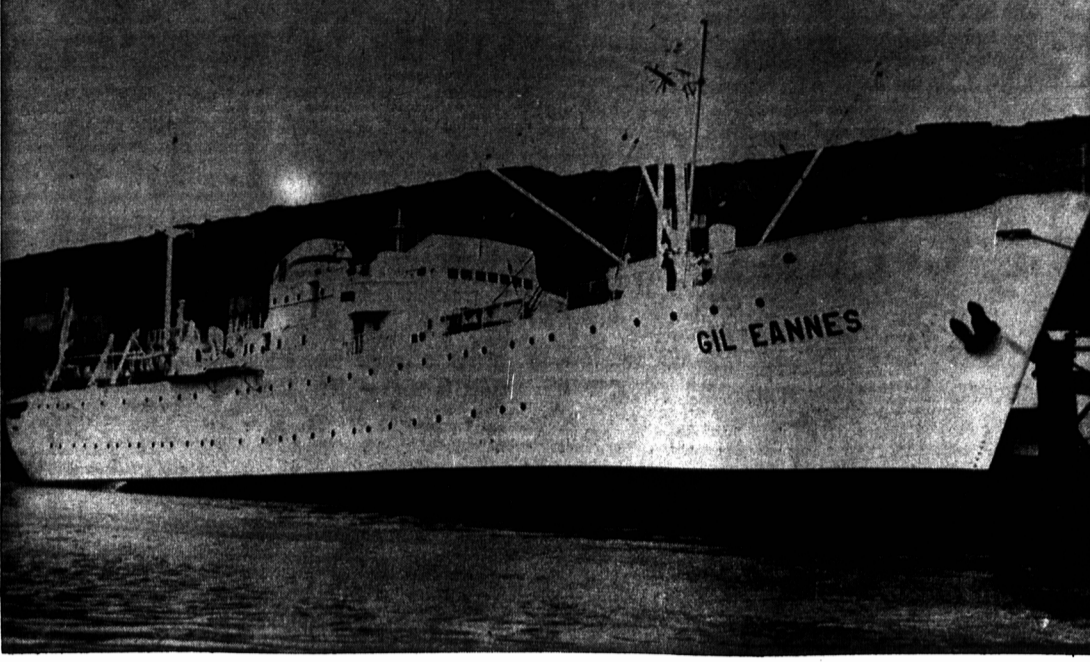

The baby, named Warren Leigh, was born at 1:20 a.m. on New Year's morning, and weighed 7 lbs. 13 oz. The attending physician was Dr. Hubert MacNeill. It is believed that this was the first baby born within the Province following the new year. There were three other births at the Prince County Hospital on January 1st.

Large Cascumpec farm Home Destroyed By Fire

Six residents of a large farm home at Cascumpec were forced outside in zero weather yesterday morning when the dwelling and practically all of its contents was destroyed by fire which broke out about five o'clock.

LITTLE SAVED Only a chesterfield, organ and refrigerator were saved from the ground floor and Charles was scorched about the head when he attempted to return upstairs to try and save some articles of clothing and a sum of money. A cellar full of potatoes was lost as well as a woodshed near the house containing a winter's supply of wood.

Neither the O'Leary or Albertson fire brigades were able to reach the scene as the roads had not been plowed out following the weekend storm.

Look For Business Boost As Ferry Bluenose Begins

By DAL WARRINGTON Canadian Press Staff Writer YARMOUTH, N. S. (CP)—This is the day Nova Scotia and eastern Maine awaited almost six years. The $5,000,000 Canadian National auto ferry Bluenose makes her maiden voyage from here across the mouth of the Bay of Fundy to Bar Harbor, Me.

Adding the cost of terminal facilities, close of $7,000,000 of the taxpayers' cash is tied up in the project, hailed by its advocates as a boon to business on both sides of the bay.

The Bluenose's birth was long and painful. Technical troubles followed argument developed over the route. Rival port delegations from both sides of the bay besieged government offices.

More argument developed over the route. Rival port delegations from both sides of the bay besieged government offices.

When the gearing finally arrived it didn't work properly. Months of trial and adjustment followed. The Bluenose reached here at last Dec. 20, just beating freeze-up in the St. Lawrence river.
