I ADMIRE the rhetorical power with which, before a large, mixed audience, Mr. Cook knew how to handle the different topics and to cause the teachings of German theologians to be respected. -Prof. Schoblerlein, Gottingen University.

THE sale of live stock at the late Hon. J. H. Longworth's, was a success. The stock which was very choice, generally realized fair prices. J. J. Davis, Esq., of the Rankin, purchased the span of heavy grey horses, which were very much admired, for $345.

JOHN BILLINGS died worth somewhere in the vicinity of $150,000—nearly all of which he made out of his almanacs. John's demise leaves a grand opening for our own (p)huany almanac publisher. He would, no doubt, prove a worthy successor to the late lamented John.

GIANT POTATO.—Mr. John Dan Steele, of Gaspereau, sold to the schooner Greyhound a potato, ("McIntire") weighing two pounds, thirteen and one-half ounces. The weight can be proved by the Captain or Mr. Lewelyn, on whose scales it was weighed. Come I wake up, Queen's and Prince Counties.

IRON ORE FROM VERNON RIVER—Robert Smallwood, Esq., has placed in our hands a specimen of native iron, obtained by a friend of his while sinking a well at Vernon River. It shows a fibrous crystalline structure, and some facets of a larger crystalline form. It is exceedingly dense, fine grained and pure, excelling in these respects the best merchantable iron. It is obtainable in quantity this will prove a very valuable ore.

ONE of the sights of the city of Hamilton is the factory in which the celebrated "Myrtle Navy" tobacco is made. Some people may suppose that putting up plugs of tobacco must be a very simple matter, but a walk among the ponderous and complicated machinery of this establishment would speedily undeceive them. Here are hydraulic presses, screw presses, iron frames, all of enormous strength, besides a steam engine and many other pieces of machinery.

LOCK COMPANY AFFAIRS.—After arrangements have been completed for the payment of Moncton stock to the new Brass and Iron Manufacturing Co., (to purchase the Lock Factory property in liquidation) a representative of the company will be sent to outside points to see stockholders personally. Parties other than the stockholders in the old company, it is understood, have signified their intention of taking stock in the new, and the prospects for the future of the enterprise would seem to be much better than most people have supposed.—Times.

MR. ALFRED GLIDDEN, Jr., arrived last evening from Newcastle, Me. It will be remembered Mr. Glidden was the greatest sufferer by "the Capes Disaster," and that up to the time of his departure for his home in Newcastle he was under treatment in the Charlottetown Hospital. Mr. Glidden in that unfortunate accident lost the greater part of both feet, all fingers on the left hand, and only saved part of the index finger and thumb of the right hand. He speaks highly of the treatment he received by the surgeons of the Hospital here, and the attention of the good Sisters. Medical gentlemen who examined his feet and hands in the United States expressed surprise at his being treated so skillfully in Charlottetown. Mr. Glidden left to-day to resume work in his old position with J. H. Myrick & Co., Tignish. His health is, we are pleased to see, excellent. He can walk quite smart, write a good hand, and in fact, he is able to do anything his business requires of him.

Not at Variance

LONDON, Oct. 22. Goschen, in a speech at Hendon, denied that he was at variance with his party. He adhered to Gladstone's programme, but retained freedom to criticize extreme Radical proposals. He counselled unity in the Liberal party, so that Liberals might obtain a majority in Parliament sufficient to defeat the combined forces of Conservatives and Parnellites.

Conway Notes.

Trowsdale's Mills are doing good work this season in the lumber trade. They are working night and day to fill orders. Section-men report that a bear has been several times on the line west of Portage Station.

At Portage Station Champion's Mills are kept busy night and day, filling orders. For the benefit of sportsmen, I might say that partridge are very plentiful this season in this section of the country. A railway official has paid several visits to this place after birds. What he did not shoot he bought, being very well pleased with his bargain, paying only 20 cents a pair.

There is some talk of having a trotting match on the park at Bideford this fall. He speaks highly of the treatment he received by the surgeons of the Hospital here, and the attention of the good Sisters. Medical gentlemen who examined his feet and hands in the United States expressed surprise at his being treated so skillfully in Charlottetown. Mr. Glidden left to-day to resume work in his old position with J. H. Myrick & Co., Tignish. His health is, we are pleased to see, excellent. He can walk quite smart, write a good hand, and in fact, he is able to do anything his business requires of him.

Engines of war are short-lived nowadays. Three years ago no praise was too high for the machine-guns which had brought to a close the bombardment of the forts of Alexandria, by driving the gunners from the guns they were serving. Now those same guns of Mr. Nordenfeldt's invention are pronounced obsolete, and no longer fulfilling the necessary requirements. Recent experiments carried out in Weymouth Bay by the Polyphemus against dummy torpedo-boats have shown that the quick-firing gun, manufactured by Messrs. Hotchkiss, is the only one at present whose results are satisfactory.

The Frog Lake Murderers.

A Washington despatch states that the American Government has been informed by the Indian agent at Fort Belknap that a band of Canadian Crees, supposed to belong to Big Bear's tribe, have crossed the border, bringing with them plundered goods. The agent requests that the refugees be forcibly compelled to re-cross the border, a proceeding which the Secretary of State points out would be tantamount to kidnapping. The Secretary rightly concludes that they cannot be arrested or interfered with except their extradition be asked by the British authorities. We think that this suggestion should be acted upon by our Government, if these refugees turn out to be, as they probably are, the cold-blooded, treacherous and ungrateful murderers of the Frog Lake people. Only one of these murderers, Wandering Spirit, who was, perhaps, the chief of them all, was brought to justice, and he has been sentenced to be hanged. The story of this massacre forms one of the most thrilling chapters of the whole history of the Red rebellion in the North-West. On news of the Duck Lake fight being received at Frog Lake, on March 30th, the Indians on the reservation there treacherously assured the whites of their friendship and protection if the Mounted Police would withdraw. Trusting to those whom they had befriended, the whites hurried off the Mounted Police. The next day the Indians massacred most of the white men and took the rest and the women prisoners. The actual murderers were Travelling Spirit, who shot Father Marchand, the Worm, who killed the agent Quinn, and Gowanlock; Little Bear, whose victims were Willcraft and Gilchrist; and Bareneck, who shot Delaney. Diel, another white, was murdered by a number of the band. Among the more active of those who were not seen to do any actual killing were Yellow Bear and Miserable Man. These men were simple murderers, and their extradition on this ground should be obtainable from the United States. They were certainly made war upon afterward, but the crime of murder is, in this case, distinct from any other political offence. Before being extradited a prima facie case of murder would have to be made out against each of them, and they could only be tried for that crime, and would be safe against prosecution for treason or any political offence, of which eminent jurists appear to hold that Indians are incapable.

Recent statistics demonstrate that England has 65 square miles of colony to the square mile of her own area; Holland 54; Portugal, 20; Denmark, 6.30; France, 1.90; and Spain, 0.86 square miles. The area of the British colonies is nearly 8,000,000 square miles—rather less than the area of the Russian Empire, including Siberia and Central Asia, but if the area of the native feudatory states in India, amounting to 509,284 square miles, be added, over which England exercises as great control as Russia does over much of the territory under its sway, together with that of the United Kingdom itself, 120,757 square miles, then the area of the British Empire exceeds that of the Russian Empire by about 200,000 square miles; and it covers within a fraction of one-sixth of the whole land area of the globe.

A Mutual Friend.

Two stood in converse by the river's brink. The one was old in years and wisdom both: The other full of youth and hope and faith. To taste life's pleasures he was nothing loth. In eager accents questioned youth of age. "What is the hardest office man can fill?" The look upon the old man's face was such As made the atmosphere about them chill. He answered—solemn came the words and slow—"From life's beginning until life shall end. The hardest work a man can undertake Is faithfully to be a mutual friend." The young man shuddered, some sad chord was struck. Which answered as the fingers touched the keys; Then said, "What is the falsest thing you know?" A moan seemed echoed from the shadowy trees. The old man's brow grew dark, his lips were pale, A fire sprang to each sunken faded eye; The clenched hands spoke of bitter agony. The man's familiar lip he came to die. "My life," he said, "has been both long and sad; I now rejoice that it is near its end. For all its sweetness, all its dearest hopes Were blighted by a sometime mutual friend.

When I look back along my weary way, And note the scars which mark both youth and age, I thank my God that only He and I Can read the writing on the blotted page. Falselyhood is cursed wherever it appears, And surely to destruction ever tends; But in my life—falsely than Satan's self— Stands out the falsest of a mutual friend." JOAN. Charlottetown, 22nd October, 1885.
