

[WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER]

Church Ventilation.

O, ventilate the churches, Ye guardians, I pray! Don't let the heat of all the week Be centred in one day.

Of being WARM—O weakly Does that small word express The various sensations Of heated restlessness!

Then open wide the windows— Not an inch here and there— But fill the churches to their full With God's blessing of fresh air.

Why He Left the Cracks.

A south side Chicago man was building a new sidewalk in front of his house, and was placing the planks about an inch apart.

"Why don't you put the planks close together?" inquired a neighbor.

"O, you see," replied the sidewalk builder, "my boys must have a few nickels and pennies for candy money, and when people drop them on the sidewalk they go through the cracks and become prey for the boys."

The Chicago Ledger thinks this very smart, but we do the thing up better in Charlottetown, for all over our plank sidewalks are plank pockets.

The Fair Ticket Agent.

[Chicago Herald "Train Talk."]

At a station down in Indiana the Lake Shore Company employs a lady ticket agent. She is a good agent and attends closely to her business, but she is a woman still.

"Will the train be long?" she asked, meaning if it would be long in arriving.

"Oh, yes," was the reply of the fair ticket agent, "longer than last season, but without so many ruffles around the edge."

When a Woman Grows Old.

[New York Evening Post.]

"When does a woman begin to grow old?" was lately asked in an assembly of French women, who are said to be even more afraid of vieillir than the women of other countries.

"With the first gray hair," suggested one of the ladies, and "When she ceases to inspire love," thought another. The decision was put to a charming white-haired matron of some 70 years, who at once replied: "What do I know about it! You must ask an old woman to answer such a question."

A Good Illustration.

[Exchange.]

An ostrich egg weighs nearly thirty times as much as an average hen's egg; but to hear the hen's remarks after laying an egg one would suppose she had beat the ostrich out of sight. It is a good deal the same way with human beings. Some will make more fuss and brag over their little thin-shelled achievements than others do over an invention or work that becomes historical.

Offering an Inducement.

[New York Times.]

"I don't know about going bail for you, Sam. You are a bad nigger, and ought to be locked up. You're a disgrace to the community."

"I knows I is, sah. I's a bad niggah ebbery way. But if yo'll go my bail dis time, sah, I'll jump de country to-morrow mornin' and nebber come back. 'Deed I will sah."

Beautiful Was the Night.

[Exchange.]

"Oh, George! How superlatively still, clear and beautiful is the night!" she whispered, leaning her finally veined temple against his coat collar, "how soothing, how restful!"

"Yes," he replied, toying with her chestnut aureole of hair. "What a night to shoot cats!"

Forbearance

Endeavor to be always patient of the faults and imperfections of others; for thou hast many faults and imperfections of thy own that require a reciprocation of forbearance. If thou art not able to make thyself that which thou wishest to be, how canst thou expect to mold another in conformity to thy will?—[Thomas a Kempis.]

If you have a piece of fine machinery to mend that you know cannot be mended in any other shop on P. E. Island, just carry it to Brown and ask him when he can have it done, for he can make any piece of machinery that ever was made by the hands of man. Brown on the Atheneum corner.
