Meeting of Presbytery.

The Presbytery of P. E. Island met in Zion Church on the 2nd inst., and was constituted. Present—Revs. Jas. Allan, Wm. Scott, J. M. McLeod, Allan McLean, Wm. R. Frame, J. G. Cameron, Wm. P. Archibald, B. D. Alexander Raulston, Jas. Carruthers, A. S. Stewart, Geo. McMillan, B. A. Wm. A. Mason, B. A., Ewen Gilles, John McLeod, A. B. McLeod, D. B. McLeod, B. A., A. W. Mahon, Roderick McLean, and J. W. McKenzie, members; and Messrs. D. M. Fraser, John A. Lawson, Wm. Ross, and Angus Matheson, ruling elders. Rev. Alexander Falconer, of Pictou, being present, was invited to sit in Presbytery as a corresponding member. Rev. George McMillan was elected moderator, and Rev. J. M. McLeod re-elected clerk for the current year. A cordial vote of thanks was tendered Rev. Alex. Raulston, retiring moderator, for the able and faithful manner with which he discharged the duties of that office during the past year.
Rev. Wm. A. Mason, B. A., tendered his resignation of the pastoral charge of New London North and Summerfield. Rev. George McMillan was appointed to preach in New London and Summerfield on Sabbath, the 14th inst., and cite that congregation to appear for their interests at a meeting of the Presbytery to be held in Summerfield on the 16th inst., at 8 o'clock, p. m.

An appeal from a decision of the session of Dundas was considered, when, after all the papers bearing on the case had been read and all the parties heard, came to the following finding: The Presbytery, while commending the zeal of appellants in their contention for the authority of the Scriptures, yet having heard the explanation of Mr. Matheson and also the views of the session, are satisfied with the same.
An extract minute of the general assembly, 1886, Rev. John Hutchinson's application to be received as a minister of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, was read, intimating that the Synod of the Maritime Provinces was authorized to issue the case on receiving the necessary document. The Clerk was instructed to transmit this extract minute and other papers bearing on the subject to the Synod's committee on bills and overtures.
The committees on statistics, the state of religion, Sabbath Schools and temperance, of last year were reappointed for the current year.
Leave was granted the Woman's Foreign Mission Auxiliary Societies within the bounds of the Presbytery to organize themselves into a Woman's Presbyterial F. M. Society, under the supervision of the Presbytery of P. E. I.
Rev. Mr. Archibald, convener of the Western Visitation Committee, submitted a carefully prepared report of the visitations of the congregations west of Charlottetown, from which it appeared that those charges are in a very healthy and flourishing condition, both financially and spiritually. The report was received and the diligence of the committee highly approved.
Rev. Mr. Carruthers, convener of the augmentation committee, reported that they had visited all the congregations in the eastern section, which were giving less than the minimum $750 and a manse,—that Souris and Bay Fortune are aiming at the same direction, and he hoped to be able to report at next quarterly meeting that they had reached the minimum salary.
Rev. Messrs. Carruthers, Frame and the clerk were appointed a committee to make arrangements for the visitation of our congregation by the agent of the church, Rev. P. M. Morrison.
Rev. Mr. Carruthers gave notice that at the next quarterly meeting he will move that the moderator of Presbytery be elected every six months.
Six sessions are instructed to submit their records for examination at the next quarterly meeting.
Rev. Malcolm Campbell was authorized to moderate in a call in Belfast, at such time as may be agreed upon by the session.
Mr. J. M. McLeod, student, was appointed to preach in Belfast on 7th and 14th August, and in Richmond Bay West until the opening of college.
Mr. Dill was appointed to preach in Richmond Bay West on the first two, and in Brookfield on the last two Sabbaths in August; and Mr. D. McLean to preach in Brookfield on 7th and 14th, and in Belfast on 21st and 28th inst.

The next quarterly meeting was appointed to be held in Summerside on the first Wednesday of November, at 11 o'clock a. m.
The Presbytery then adjourned to meet at Summerfield on 16th inst., at 8 o'clock p. m.
J. M. MACLEOD,
Pres'y. Clerk.

In Brief, And to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.
The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.
Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cooking, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.
But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.
Remember! No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.
F. E. BARNES, 344 Fourth Avenue, New York, writes: "I have used Adamson's Balsam, as have also some of my personal friends. We found it the best remedy to be had for coughs and colds." Trial bottles 10 cents.

Russia and Germany.

A HOSTILE FEELING STILL MANIFESTED BY RUSSIA TOWARD THE LATTER.
Instead of the Russian government ceasing war on German commerce, as promised by Ambassador Schouvaloff, fresh measures paralyzing trade relations are either impending or already in operation. Under Schouvaloff's assurance, the crusade against Russian stocks ceased. During the week Russian securities have been neither bought nor sold, but the anti-Russian feeling, again excited by the fresh display of hostility on the part of the St. Petersburg government, will not now be allayed until some practical check is given to the systematic persecution of Germans by Russia. General Von Schlievintz, acting under instructions from Prince Bismarck, made overtures to M. DeGiers, the Russian minister of foreign affairs, suggesting a modification or a delay in the operation of the ukase affecting foreigners holding land in west Russia. M. DeGiers, after a ministerial council, replied that the law upon which the imperial ukase was based could not be modified nor its operation delayed, at the same time negotiations, the object of which was to obtain a special exception in the cases of the Princes Cadzwill and Hohenloe and other German dignitaries who are land owners in western Russia met with a curt rejection. The same ministerial council drew out instructions which were sent to the heads of all the state departments, to report what foreigners were carrying on work within the empire, whether as owner or employer, and what was their nationality. The design of these instructions became known in Berlin lately, with the appointment of a commission, the sole purpose of which is to extirpate the German leaders and the German people in the Baltic and western provinces. Russian officialdom shows a similar spirit to that of the ministry, an instance of which is the revival of a frontier law which had long since elapsed, and under which persons crossing the frontier are not permitted to carry German coin of a denomination less than a thaler, or gold money. All travelers holding Prussian landrath passports are obliged to show the Russian frontier commissioners what coinage they possess, and are not allowed to take into Russia anything less than thaler pieces. There is no whisper now of the Czar meeting the Emperor William. The former will go to Copenhagen on August 7th, without touching a German port.

The Flag of France

In the twelfth century, says a writer in the Cornhill Magazine, the fleur-de-lis became peculiarly French and royal, and in 1223 Philippe Auguste powdered his white banner with gold fleurs-de-lis; and again, a hundred years later, Charles VI adopted a blue flag with a white cross—a cross as distinctive of their soldiery as the red was of ours. In the fifteenth century the flag had a blue field, not powdered with lilies but charged with three, and was for the first time attached to the staff. From Francis I to Louis XIV, the regimental colors (white we suppose) bore arms and emblems selected by the colonels; the white flag, uncharged, was the personal and distinctive emblem of the Colonel-General and was finally adopted by Louis XIV himself, and became the King's own flag. But then, white had been known as the Royal color since the days when the Protestants (who took it as an emblem of their superior purity) were joined by Henry III, an emblem that at the battle of Ivry in 1630, became as the ensign of Henry IV, both royal and national, and so disposed of the old blue flag with the white cross. Till the revolution, whatever the flag, the lilies of France were the national emblem; then came the eagle of the republic and the empire surmounting the tri-color; 1815 brought back the Bourbon white, and 1830 ousted it; and now it is clear that the national flag of France is the tri-color, of which the disposition is, by law—the blue fixed to the staff, the white in the centre, and the red in the air. The Gallic cock of which one sometimes hears, seems to have been a temporary caprice of Louis XIV.

Famine in Europe.

Famine from drought is ravaging the people of many a district of the old world, while we are having such copious rains in our small corner. On Saturday last the American board received at Boston a despatch from W. W. Post, treasurer of the famine relief fund at Constantinople, saying that "5000 people in Adana have nothing to eat." Number increasing. Other towns ask help. Adana is a town of Asia Minor, in the center of the Cilician plain, ordinarily most fertile, but now quite barren because of drought. It is on the river Sihun, not far from the site of Tarsus, the birthplace of Paul. Contributions are being taken up in Britain and already over $4000 has been contributed for the relief of the starving in Turkey in Asia, and transmitted by the treasurer of the American board to the committee, which distributes the funds without regard to race or religion.
The authorities of the penitentiary of St. Vincent de Paul are contemplating the advisability of constructing special irons for the notorious convict Vian. After his last attempt at breaking out, he was lashed. After he had received twenty strokes, he turned fiercely on his tormentors and said: "The next time I shall deserve punishment it will be hanging." And the officials in charge of him believe that he will be true to his threat and they have determined to take all necessary precautions.
John R. FITZPATRICK, of Tracadie, will be able to accommodate about thirty horses and carriages from Charlottetown, within five chains of the Tea grounds, in which there will be a dinner saloon in connection, in good order.
