The bidding:
South West North East
1NT Pass 3NT Pass

Opening lead—four of clubs. A certain amount of guesswork goes on in bridge, and a great deal of it cannot be avoided. Somehow or other, the good player manages to guess correctly more often than the bad player, which naturally leads one to believe that so-called guesses are susceptible to some degree of skill.

Some situations arise, though, where the guess is self-created, and for these a player has only himself to blame if he happens to guess wrong. Take this case, for example, where South got to three no-trump. A club was led and he won East's king with the ace and then had to decide, after running the four diamonds, whether to tackle hearts or spades. When he led a low spade from dummy, East promptly climbed up with the ace and returned the ten of clubs. Declarer ducked, but West overtook with the jack and led another club. South had only eight tricks available. When he led a heart, West took his ace, cashed two clubs, and set the contract one trick. It turned out that if declarer had guessed to lead hearts ahead of spades, he would have made the hand, since West's entry to the club suit happened to be in hearts. The fault in declarer's play was due not so much to his unlucky guess as it was to his play on the first trick. He should not have taken the club king. By ducking, he would have been relieved of the subsequent guess of which side suit to attack first.

The chief danger to guard against is that West has a five-card club suit and a side ace. By ducking the club lead, enemy communications are disrupted.

With the club return, South wins and can play either a spade or a heart to make the contract. Thus, if a spade is chosen, East wins but has no club to lead back. Or if a heart is chosen, West's entry is removed and the clubs are neutralized.

No guesswork is involved if the opening club lead is ducked.

FREDERICTON (CP)—Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation took over construction of a 225-unit housing project at the army's Camp Gagetown Monday. Work halted with the project 90 per cent complete last week when Brookfield Construction Company Limited of Halifax, one of the oldest construction firms in the Maritimes, announced bankruptcy. J. Chester MacRae, federal Progressive Conservative candidate for York-Sunbury, said all employees affected by the company's failure returned to work Monday. He said they numbered fewer than 100. A company official said Brookfield's lost money on recent government contracts.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
I S L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
