The Telephone Company —OF— P. E. ISLAND.

Parties using the telephone would find talking much more satisfactory if they would observe the following rules:—

1st. Speak with the mouth about four inches from the transmitter.

2nd. Speak in a moderate tone of voice, not too loud, and distinctly.

3rd. Place the telephone so as to cover the ear just as if you wished to shut out all other sounds. Do not press too hard on the ear.

It is possible to talk and be heard when standing back two or three feet from the transmitter, if you shout loud enough, but it is not a pleasant mode of conversation, is entirely unnecessary, and is a useless waste of wind and lungs, besides being very annoying to all within range of your voice.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

HISTORIC MONTREAL THE SCENE OF THIS YEAR'S CONVENTION.

How Delegates Will be Received and Entertained—Attractions of the Town—Information for Intending Visitors—History and Purposes of the Society.

The annual convention of the Society of Christian Endeavor, which meets this year at Montreal, Canada, beginning July 6, is expected to attract upward of 25,000 people to that historic city, a much greater assemblage than has ever been gathered there for any purpose. The preparations already made by the local committee, however, promise ample accommodations for this vast number, and it is quite certain that all will be cared for at reasonable rates. The city has been thoroughly canvassed for sleeping accommodations, and contracts have been entered into for the erection of three large dining tents where 1,500 people can be fed at once, which will obviate the necessity for running to distant parts of the city for meals.

PRESIDENT CLARK. SECRETARY BAER. TREASURER SHAW.

The meetings are to be held in the large government drill hall and on the Champ de Mars adjoining, where a large tent will be erected, in which services similar to and simultaneous with those in the hall will be conducted. The drill hall will seat 9,000 people, and the tent is to accommodate 8,000 more. The regular sessions will begin Thursday morning, July 6, at 10 o'clock, though on the previous day there will be a meeting of the trustees at Windsor hall and large preparatory meetings in the evening in the different evangelical churches. Many of the most eminent divines will take active part in the proceedings, and celebrated evangelists, lay orators and temperance workers have been assigned places on the programme of the four days' proceedings.

President Francis E. Clark, D.D., has positively announced his intention to be present. He will be home in ample time, as he leaves Liverpool on the Alaska on June 17, after the meeting of the national convention of Christian Endeavor for England at Bradford, which he will attend. Dr. Clark had a rough time of it in Turkey, where he undertook to foster the work of the society, and he will probably have something to say to the convention about his experiences. The government got after him and did everything possible to hinder his work, confiscating his books and other literature and forbidding him to use the name of the society in his addresses. Many of the societies there have been broken up, and if the Christian Endeavor movement progresses in Turkey it will be despite the efforts of the authorities.

President Clark and Secretary Baer will make their annual reports on Thursday night, alternating between the drill hall and the tent so that the audiences in both places may have the benefit of hearing them. There will be no regular session on either Friday or Saturday afternoon, but denominational meetings in connection with the work will be held in some of the churches. On Friday evening the Hon. W. C. P. Breckinridge of Kentucky will address the assemblage in the drill hall, his topic being "The Age and Its Possibilities." In the big tent at the same time Rev. B. W. Arnett, D.D., bishop of the African Methodist Episcopal church, will deliver an address on "Christian Stewardship, or Money in the Kingdom," and Dr. Burrell of New York, one of the prominent trustees of the society will discuss "Good Citizenship." Saturday morning will be devoted to missionary topics, and in the evening there will be a roll call in the drill hall of the states, territories, provinces and foreign countries represented in the convention. The evening session in the tent will begin with what is called "the pastors' hour," one of the most interesting of the whole convention, at which some 20 or more eminent ministers will deliver what are called "minute guns" or "60-second sermons."

MONTREAL Y. M. C. A. BUILDING.

There will be no session on Sunday morning, but in the afternoon Thomas E. Murphy will deliver an address on "Gospel Temperance" in the drill hall, while Mrs. Frances J. Barnes, president of the National Young Women's Christian Temperance union, will lecture in the tent on the same topic, to be followed by Rev. D. Burford Hooke of London, who will discuss "The Religious Press." The sessions will close on Sunday evening with sermons and consecration services in both drill hall and tent. Rev. Dr. T. H. Lewis of Maryland college will preach in the hall, and President Clark will lead the consecration service. Rev. B. Fay Mills will both preach and lead the consecration service in the tent.

The local committee has ordered a map of Montreal to be printed and sent to every delegate, so that all may familiarize themselves with the plan of the city and learn something of its peculiar institutions and the enjoyable excursions in the vicinity, of which Montreal has a great many. A drive to Lachine, going by the upper road and returning by the lower one, is very interesting and will give one a sight of the rapids of Sault St. Louis and of the aqueduct that supplies the city with water, near the head of which still stands the house of De la Salle. Opposite Lachine is the Mohawk Indian village of Caughnawaga, very picturesque until you get close to it. Those who have not come down the St. Lawrence by steamer can "shoot the rapids" by taking one of the small steamers at Lachine for Montreal.

The steamboat excursion down the St. Lawrence to Quebec will amply repay those who have leisure to take it, and the lover of grand scenery should sacrifice a good deal rather than miss the trip to Tadousac and up the Saguenay. A delightful excursion may also be made to the White mountains and Lake Memphremagog, and those for whom it is convenient may go right on to Portland, Me., Boston and New York, or to anywhere in the world, for that matter, where railroads or vessels carry passengers.

But a person might go much farther from the city and not see anything finer than the view from Mount Royal, the hill behind the city whence Jacques Cartier looked upon the land and saw that it was good. This has been appropriated for a public park, and the drive thither is something not to be missed. Neither should the little trip to the park on St. Helen's island be omitted, for it will give you the chance of inspecting the famous Montreal quays and the picturesque Bonsecours market and church, which are both near the wharf whence the steamers leave for the park. You cannot avoid the Place d'Armes and the Church of Notre Dame if you want to, for they are very much in evidence in the heart of the city, and you will not even have to inquire about them, no matter how strange the town may be to you. By all means take the elevator up to the tower roof and get the view, which is worth the time and trouble.

Then there is the Seminary of St. Sulpice, which adjoins Notre Dame in the rear (and into the quaint courtyard of which you can look from the tower), the Hotel Dieu, the Gray Nuns' hospital, McGill university and any number of churches and religious, educational and benevolent institutions of all the creeds in Christendom and all schools of architecture, which you can spend your spare time in visiting. The Episcopal Christ Church cathedral and the Catholic Cathedral of St. Peter are both magnificent buildings, the latter a reduced but very effective copy of St. Peter's at

FRANCES J. BARNES.

Rome. All good Endeavorers will of course pay a visit to the Young Men's Christian association building at the corner of Craig and Radegonde streets if only to see the exterior of the pretty building which is the home of an association whose objects are so similar to their own, "For Christ and the church."

It is not necessary to devote much space to setting forth the history and purposes of the Christian Endeavor society. Everybody knows how it originated 11 years ago in the pastor's study of the Williston church, in Portland, Me., and how it has gone on flourishing till now its membership amounts to a million and a half, and there are upward of 25,000 branches established throughout the civilized world, and some in localities not commonly considered to be civilized. "Father Endeavor Clark," as the founder and president has been caressingly nicknamed by some of his followers, planted better than he knew, no doubt, but nevertheless he must be gratified at the increase from his grain of mustard seed, which has already waxed into a tree of surprising greatness, not unlike that to which the kingdom of heaven is compared in the gospel, and in which there can as yet be discovered no sign of decay.

Nor, so long as the society is true to its original purposes, is there any need or likelihood of decay. Founded primarily for the "quickening of the Spirit" in the individual and working for the general good mainly through individual influences, no valid reason can be given why its phenomenal growth should not be more than doubled in the next decade if only the same care be taken to keep it within the lines originally set forth.

A USEFUL FORMULA

For Ascertaining the Cubic Contents of Cylindrical Vessels.

A correspondent has sent us a very useful formula which is thought to be quite new. In finding the contents of cylindrical vessels the ordinary rules call for the use of aggravating decimals or fractions. This neat little device does away with all the bother. Let the diameter of any cylindrical tank be given in feet; then take five times the square of the diameter; take off 2 per cent. and the result is gallons per foot high. This is simplicity itself. Both the simplicity of the rule and the near approach of its results to the accurate contents will appear from an example or two.

Let the tank be 10 feet diameter (inside of course).

10x10—100
500
Take off 2 per cent.....10
490 gallons

per foot deep, which is within one gallon of the accurate measurement (490.87 gallons).

Take an 11 foot tank:

605
2 per cent.....= 12.1
592.9 gallons

per foot deep, which is only one gallon away from the accurate contents (593.96). A rule so simple and so useful almost deserves a place in the common school texts. A note by the author draws attention to the fact that the 2 per cent. to be subtracted is always just one-tenth of the first term written down—10 for 100 and 12.1 for 121 and so on.

An Appropriate Name.

"Why is it called strawberry short cake, I wonder?" asked Gus de Smith of Hostetter McGinnis.

"Because it is generally short of strawberries, I suppose," replied Hostetter.—Texas Siftings.

A FATAL QUARREL.

The Tragic Tale of a Snake That Loved a Rooster.

"Snakes don't grow very big up our way," said a Pike county man to the snake editor of the New York Sun, "but they grow uncommon smart. A friend of mine, who lived back in the High Knob country, captured a young blacksnake once and made a pet of it. The snake got as tame as a kitten and had the run of the premises. One day he got egg hungry, and he stole an egg from under a sitting hen and swallowed it. The egg was just on the eve of hatching, and the chick picked its way out of the egg as it lay inside the snake, and not finding daylight yet kept on picking until it had picked a hole through the snake and stuck its head out. That was as far as it could get, and there it stuck.

THE ROOSTER CROWS.

"The snake didn't like it at first, but by and by the novelty of the situation seemed to strike him, and he grew proud of that strange living protuberance. My friend didn't interfere, curious to see what the result of that singular companionship would be. The chicken and the snake grew very fond of one another, and it was worth a farm to see 'em go to sleep together, the snake turning its head back and snuggling down by the chicken's head. The snake kept the chick well supplied with food, catching flies and worms and insects of various kinds and passing them back to the chicken by the hundred. The chicken grew like a weed, and along toward the end of the summer the blacksnake's body was pouched out like a small hand satchel where the chicken was spreading out, and the latter's neck stretched nearly six inches above the snake's back. It was the funniest sight you ever saw and touching, too, the two creatures doted on each other so. But their end was sad.

"One day along in August the snake and his friend were taking a nap. Presently the chicken woke up, stretched his neck to its full length and got rid of his first crow. The first crow of a young rooster, even when he has the aid that seems to be in the flopping of his incipient wings, is always a heartrending performance, and as this rooster couldn't use his wings his first crow was real spooky. The snake woke up with a start. He looked wildly about. He was scared and no mistake, but finally made up his mind that he had been dreaming and settled down to finish his nap. He had scarcely closed his eyes when the young rooster, encouraged by his first attempt, stretched his neck and tried his voice again. The snake jumped as much as 10 feet, his eyes full of terror, and sailed around that yard as if he were flying from an avenger. He came to a stop by and by, but glared wildly and panted like a hot dog. The chicken seemed to enjoy the performance hugely, and while the snake was still trembling he let go another crow.

"Then the snake discovered where the queer noise was coming from, and he turned a look on the chicken that was terrible in its reproachfulness. The young rooster would have done well if he had heeded it, but he didn't. He stretched his neck as high as he could and crowed again, square in the snake's face.

"The snake struck at the chicken's head, but missed it. The chicken got mad and clipped the snake in the head with his bill. And then it went. They tumbled and fought around that yard for five minutes. Then they suddenly became quiet. The snake had got the chicken's head in his mouth and swallowed it, neck and all. He had killed his friend, but had choked himself to death in doing it."

Relics of Lafitte, the Famous Buccaneer.

Fishermen in Galveston bay, near Virginia point, recently discovered at low tide two old cannons, which were found to be made of copper mixed with small quantities of silver. The two pieces are of same make and weigh about 750 pounds each, and both bear the inscription, "Santa Fe de Bogota, June 13, 1788." One is stamped "El Cruel" and the other "El Fuerte."

There seems to be no doubt that these guns once formed a portion of the armament of one of Lafitte's vessels, for it is a well known fact that in 1818, while that pirate chief held possession of Galveston island, a terrible hurricane swept over the place, driving four of his schooners ashore on Virginia point, where they were afterward burned by savages, and drowning the greater portion of their crews.

During Lafitte's occupation the island was a regular slave mart, thousands of Africans being taken from Spanish slavers by the privateers of the freebooter. The average price of a healthy negro was $1 a pound. These negroes were run into Louisiana by land, where they were sold to planters, the celebrated Bowie family being engaged in this business, by which they amassed thousands of dollars.

At 5 years I weighed 302 pounds; at 22, 725 pounds; at 27, 758 pounds; at 28, 774 pounds; at 29, 791 pounds; at 30, 806 pounds; at 31, 836, and my present weight is just 907 pounds. I am 6 feet and 5 inches high, measure 8 feet and 4 inches around the hips, 18 inches around the ankle, 29 inches around the knee, 66 inches around the thigh next to the body. I require 41 yards for a suit of clothes and 3 pounds of yarn for stockings."

Swindled a Pawnbroker.

In Minneapolis recently a man entered a pawnshop and offered to "put up" a $300 watch for $50. The pawnbroker was glad to take it at that price, and while he was getting the money the customer cleverly substituted another watch exactly similar in appearance to the first one, but with a possible market value of $2. He got the money and vanished.

To Discourage Dueling.

The Mexicans are framing a dueling law to make the distance so short and the weapons so deadly that no one will want to go out except those who desire to kill and be killed.
