No Break Seen In Trieste Deadlock

Transportation Facilities Discussed By Trade Board

The recent accident to the ferry "Abegweit" which necessitated her removal from the Borden-Tormentine run on two occasions May was discussed by members of the Charlottetown Board of Trade at a general Board dinner meeting held at the Charlottetown Hotel last evening. Reference was made to the congestion resulting from the old ferry "Prince Edward Island" being unable to cope with the situation. The decision of the Board to press vigorously for another boat on this service without further delay was left with the Council to decide.

The extension of facilities at the Charlottetown Airport is by no means a dead issue although a letter from Hon. C. D. Howe to Mr. Walthen Gaudet, secretary of the Board, said that all new Canadian airport buildings is being done by Municipal or Provincial Governments.

Mayor J. D. Stewart in a letter to the Board Secretary said: "It might be well to note that this is the only Province in Canada that does not have a modern up-to-date airport operated by the Department of Transport and I would suggest to the Board that they press the Federal Government through the local members along these lines."

Mr. Farrell Gaudet, Public Relations Officer of the M. C. A., said there was no doubt as to the need of an extension to the runways and added that a recent survey by engineers of the Department indicated that an entire new runway would be more desirable and feasible if anything was agreed upon.

The whole matter was referred back to committee for further study, especially in view of the recent assurance given by Mr. Nell A. Matheson, M. P., that he would explore every avenue open at Ottawa to improve the situation. Consideration of the Wood Island

First Armistice Day Parade Recalled

There will be a few old timers in today's veterans parade to the Cenotaph in Queen's Square who will remember the first armistice parade, that first Armistice Day in Mons, Nov. 11th, 1918, in the centuries old Grand Place of the ancient Belgian city the battle-scarred and war-torn town.

Regiment after regiment they circled the great open space of the place, with pipe, trumpet, and brass bands playing regimental marches. In the background the famous chimies of St. Waudras Cathedral pealed out O Canada.

It was a conquerors' parade, and no one would ever forget the proud bearing of the troops, nor the swing and snap with which they swung past the saluting point, where General Currie and the civic dignitaries saluted. Their robes of office took the men who in the last hundred days of continuous fighting had fought pitched battles over many miles of country and had endured years of brutal trench warfare.

Their dead filled many graveyards in Flanders, Belgium, and in the Ypres, at Vimy, at Hill 70, at Arras, on the Somme, at Amiens. But they shed their weariness during that triumphant and stirring parade, in the realization that they had triumphed, and had long since become recognized as the hardest hitting striking force in the world. They had just cause to be proud.

Many Islanders took part in that first Armistice Day observance, many who are no longer with us.

Some of the survivors nevertheless are still active and alert, among them Colonel D. A. MacKinnon, D.S.O. The Colonel was at the head of his unit in that memorable march-past.

Today as the veterans of the two wars assemble for the moment, the Colonel and a sprinkling of older vets, will recall in "the Silence" that other day so long ago in Mons, and the comrades who have heard the last Reveille.

Fine Display Of Paintings At Art Society Exhibition

The many colors and many sides of nature were on view last night when the 14th annual exhibition of the Prince Edward Island Art Society opened at the Harris Memorial Gallery.

The exhibition, entered by Islanders including non-members of the Art Society, showed mostly land and seascapes, although there were a few portraits and the less conventional semi-abstracts and abstracts.

An outstanding oil portrait by Margaret Ellis, showed the strong, defiant face of a young man whom she painted with subtle yet certain strokes. The alert artist had her subject sit in a pose which paralleled his facial expression—he sat on a simple wooden chair, his back facing the camera to say "I chose to sit this way!"
