and opportunities.

We can recall one bitter conflict in which the slogan of one party was: "Equal rights for all and special privileges for none." A recent statement of one of our own educationists stands out against the sky: "Education should be free for all capable of taking it up to the highest level."

In Canada we have a heritage worth maintaining. Our hope is that today men and women with conscience and intelligence will flock to the polls.

Veterans Held Their Meeting

On Thursday night, June 13th, the Main Brace Naval Veteran's association held its regular monthly meeting in the Main Brace Clubroom with President, George Barter in the chair. A good number of members and executives were in attendance.

After conducting the business, the highlight of the evening was the installation of Rev. Cecil Morrow as Roman Catholic Padre of the local Main Brace Association. A motion passed at the meeting authorizing the purchase of 24 tickets to the Kinsmen circus and these were turned over to Father Morrow to be distributed to Under privileged children of his choice throughout the city.

The possibility of extending the Main Brace Association to other centres of Prince Edward Island was discussed at length and an to look into the matter and report at the September meeting

A moion was passed to suspend for July and August except for the case of emergency, so there will be no further general meetings until September.

VIGOR OF INTELLECT, SOUL AND OPPORTUNITY FOR ALL

Years ago in a class in Theology some students asked Professor James Ross about the justice or injustice of the doctrine of election. What an echo that was of the problem and perplexity of the ages..

In Romans 9 St. Paul states the doctrine of Israel's election in uncompromising fashion, and then raises the issue, If everything flows from God's free choice, "why does He still find fault? For who can resist His will?"

Then he refuses even to touch the problem: "Who are you, a man to answer back to God?"

In the second century one Celsus, a bitter foe of Christianity, criticized this doctrine as favoritism in the action of the divine grace.

For the students mentioned, it was an insoluable problem, and to throw some light on it, Dr. Ross, in informal conversation, used this illustration:

"Suppose I meet on the street two men in need and give one of them the money I have in my pocket. When I refuse to give anything to the other fellow and he insists on his claim, I answer, 'Am I not free to do what I will with my own money?"

"In a sense I am right: the man has no legal claim. And yet, he has a moral claim. In two cases of equal need, it would not be fair to favor one and deny the other. But if I take this position — "I know these two men, and I entrust this money to the one because he can use it in the other's interests better than that man could use it for himself' would there not be justice in my choice?"

OBJECTIONS

Now anyone can raise objections to an argument of this type. Nevertheless there is a great principle underlying it. Our privileges are a sacred trust, to be used in the cause of the common good.

With every privilege there goes responsibility, and we must give account of our use of it to the Giver of all.

As the prophet Amos said to a generation which took pride in being God's elect: "You only have I known of all the families of the earth: therefore will I punish you for all your iniquities."

Now Israel was God's chosen people. But they were chosen for a purpose. When God called Abraham he said to him: "I will make of you a great nation, and I will bless you, and make your name great so that you will be a blessing . . . By you all the families of the earth will bless themselves."

It is a universal law that every organism that nature favors must serve some object outside itself, and mother nature has her own stern way of dealing with the parasite.

This is God's way of treating the highest organism of all — the elect man or nation.

A recent writer points out that Israel's nationhood originated in this divine choice confirmed in her history by a divine act of redempton.

Again and again God introduced His demand on His people's obedience with words like these:

"I am the Lord, thy God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage."

TWIN IDEAS

Those twin ideas of her election and redemption governed Israel through all the phases of her history, and kept alive her faith and hope through her darkest hours.

This writer says these things about this national consciousness: "This particularism in the exercise of the divine favor seems early to have been understood as in some way set within God's purpose of universal salvation. . . God's object was to establish His redemptive sovereignty over all the earth, and He chose Israel as His special agent through whom this aim was to be accomplished." (G. E. Wright).

So often a nation's beginning influences the whole course of her history.

For example take Scotland's new beginning at the Reformation.

John Knox's policy was to establish the church and school together in every parish in the nation. No policy has ever been adopted more wholeheartedly by a people as a whole Look over our own new land, and whereever Scosmen have gone they have taken the church and school with them.

Lenin has been quoted as saying "You can never enslave an educated people. '

This has been true of Scotland's people at home and abroad — vigor of intellect and soul has kept them in the forefront of the champions of liberty and opporunity for all.

THE MEEK

Professor A. B. Bruce had this to say on the text: "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth."

"The meek of England, fleeing from religious persecution, have inherited the continent of America."

The Mayflower's migrants and their descendants have carried the spirit of the crusader into the very heart of the nation they founded.

America, at her best, finds her destiny in her origin, and equality in opporunity for higher education was one of the principles contended for most strongly by our fathers.

This is far more than political issue. When we consider in these days of her world power and responsibility she claims for every race the freedom she herself has inherited.

As this article goes to press Canada will be electing her rulers and leaders for years to come. We too must remember our ancestry.

Many of our people are reading the new biography of Sir John A. Macdonald by Professor Creighton. In the thrilling story of the early stages of Canada's political development, one feature stands out prominently — the struggle for equality in our citizen's rights
