

RAILROAD... KIDNEY

A Disease Peculiar to Railroad Men, which is readily cured by

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Did it ever occur to you that most railroad men die of kidney disease?

Such is the fact, however, and the disease is known among railroaders as "railroad kidney."

The first and most marked symptom is a weak, lame and aching back. You may think at first that you are only tired; but as this trouble increases day by day, kidney disease, with all its terrors, is fast claiming you as a victim.

Mr. Geo. Cummings, for over 20 years engineer on the Grand Trunk running between Toronto and Allandale, says: "The constant duty with my work gave me excessive pains in my back, racking my kidneys. I tried several remedies until I was recommended by my friend, Mr. Dave Conley, to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Two boxes have completely cured me and I feel to-day a better man than ever. I recommend them to all my friends."

Keep the Chickens Growing,

Most of the chickens are now hatched for the season, and it is time to consider the growth of the young stock. It is most important that the chickens be kept growing; that they do not stand still or, take a step backward in their steady progress toward maturity.

Many people neglect their chickens after they are a few weeks old and get weaned from the mother hen or taken from the brooder. They take every pains with them the first few weeks, and the chickens do well, but after a little the owners seem to think no further pains are necessary, or they grow tired and relax their zeal, and the result is the chickens get irregular feeds or short rations, or are left in filthy coops and the result is unfortunate.

The matter of cleanliness of coops is one of the most important. It is the greatest possible mistake to leave chickens in coops when night after night the droppings are left to accumulate, possibly a dead chicken left until it is positively rotten and worm eaten, and other unhealthy conditions. Chickens that are left to sleep night after night in a filthy coop cannot possibly grow. If the coops have floors, scrape clean and sand them every few days and if the coops are floorless move to fresh ground every few days.

Another important point is the food ration. A very common mistake is to think that chicks can find a good deal of their food themselves. They do find some in the shape of worms, insects etc., and they eat a good deal of grass, but regular feeds of sound, sweet grain are what they require to induce steady growth. The first feeding in the morning is a mash which consists of equal parts, by measure, of corn-meal, fine middlings, wheat bran, oat-meal and 20% of animal meal. Mix with skim milk if you have it, if not scald it with boiling water; do not make it too wet, just so that it crumbles and will break up when thrown upon the ground or feeding boards.

Animal food is most essential for promoting growth in chicks. It has been proved at experiment stations beyond all doubt that chickens come to maturity quicker and at less cost by the use of animal food than when grain diet is used alone. As other feed we give cracked corn and wheat, and when the chicks are over five weeks old we give wheat once or twice a day. Do not hesitate to buy oatmeal for your chicks. It pays and pays well, by promoting the growth of muscle and body and we must get sturdy frames if we would have good laying ability in the flocks. Clear, sharp grit is another very necessary article to keep the chicks going right. Grit is to chickens and fowls what teeth are to human beings, and without grit the chickens cannot grind up the food they eat.

Fresh, cool water is a most important feature in chicken raising not to neglect. Three times a day is not too often to water them. Also see that the chickens are provided with a good shady place to protect them from the hot sun. They enjoy a cool shady place very much.

After the chicks are old enough separate the cockerels from the pullets and force the cockerels along as quickly as possible for market, while it is best to give the pullets free range, so that they may develop into strong, healthy birds, which you must have if you expect to be successful in securing winter eggs and good strong early chicks. Health is the key to the whole situation in the poultry business. It means everything. We cannot, therefore do too much towards that end in our breeding yards. —The Co-operative Farmer.

good strong bone are required, and as packers are willing to pay for the bone, growers should feed to develop it. Where pigs are being forced along rapidly, especially if confined, they should have access to a box of wood ashes, charcoal and salt. Let them eat what they want of it. Some successful hog raisers feed bone ash or ground bones. Theo. Louis the noted hog raiser of Wisconsin, always uses the following mixture, which he calls his condition powder: Take six bushels of charcoal (the finer and smaller pieces into which they are broken or mixed with the dust of coal the better it will be), then put them in a large box or on a floor, and add one to one and a half bushels of wood ashes (hard wood) and six pounds of salt. Mix this thoroughly. Then dissolve one or a quarter pounds copperas in a large pail of hot water, sprinkle this on the above with a sprinkling pot, but be sure to mix as you sprinkle so as to evenly distribute it. Place some of this mixture in a box where the hogs can have access to it, but so that they cannot upset it. It will tell its own story, and once used no feeder will be without it.

Breeders of early litters of pigs in many parts of the States have been heavy losers of young pigs. The unfavorable weather is blamed for this, particularly as many breeders have not comfortable enough quarters for young pigs when unfavorable weather comes.

The American hog market shows a great falling off in receipts, and supplies of pork and lard are rapidly diminishing. Farmers are not marketing their hogs as the packers would like, although the prices are good. It is thought that the unfavorable weather is keeping back supplies. On the other hand, in Ontario the price of hogs has dropped so low that farmers are dropping out of raising so many hogs. The wise men will stay with the hogs and have an extra supply ready when prices rise again. —N. W. Farmer.

A PRESSMAN'S STORY

Mr. Parnham Tells How Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured His Lumbago.

TORONTO, June 19.—The story of the escape of the Globe pressman, Mr. John H. Parnham, from the agonies of Lumbago, by using Dodd's Kidney Pills is unusually interesting.

Mr. Parnham writes to the Dodd's Medicine Co., Limited, thus: "I am proud to testify the wonderful efficacy of Dodd's Kidney Pills. About eight months ago I was attacked by severe pains in my back. I consulted an eminent physician, who said I had Lumbago, and told me to take Turkish baths. This did me no good.

"A friend advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I did so, and one box cured me." My back has never troubled me since.

The average man who tries here measures gets a misfit.
