THE WEEK AT S.D.U.

With the echoes of holiday cheers trailing behind them, the students came streaming back to the hallowed halls on Jan. 10 to place their travel fatigue, their energies, and the toils of their waking hours on the altar of the higher learning here at Saint Dunstan's. The Rector himself voiced the official welcome in an address delivered to the assembled students the following Thursday. Delving into nautical metephors, he offered some timely advice to the students on the necessity of having a rudder and trimming it properly in order to reach the objectives that they have set for themselves when they entered upon their scholastic careers.

His advice was especially timely to those who through carelessness, neglect, or indifference had begun to let their anchors drag a bit. With a fair wind and the steadying hands of our faculty once again on the helm, we look forward to completing without incident the remainder oft his year's voyage through the A-B-Seas. The first major storm to be encountered, however, was also forcast in the same address, an examination of the log on Feb. 11 Armed with this warning we should be in shape to weather the squall when it hits. Now that the skyways have cleared, the remainder of our crew have come through the overcast to round out the ranks, and we can now proceed under full sail.

FILM SURPRISE

The returning students found an unusual surprise in store for them. On Saturday the 14th., the Alumni Gymnasium, usually regarded as the quasi holy of holies of the athletic department, became the scene of the showing of a filmtrip in which the lowlanders were acquainted with the art of "Riding the Hickories". Filmed in the various winter playlands on this continent and abroad by the renoun ski authority Hans Thorner, this film depicted some of the awesome beauty and recreational utility of snow to an audience many of whom were only too well aware of its equall; awesome destructive power.

Also in the realm of surprises, it has been decreed that henceforth the men in the college years will be free to leave the campus at will during the afternoon provided that they have no classes to attend, and that they are on the campus again before night prayers. It has been pointed out that discipline should tend primarily toward the attainment of harmony, and it is with this thought in mind that the faculty have seen fit to grant this concession in the hope that hose who find hat they must let off steam will choose to do so off the campus rather than burn the ears off of someone who is trying to study.

STUDENTS' LOUNGE

It seems that the era of the pool table on second floor Memorial is rapidly coming to a close. In its stead, a students' lounge is being projected for the room which the venerable old relic now occupies. As the old order has give place to the new (in the old it seems there was little order) the need for a common room where the students may congregate has grown weightier, due partly to the fact that the day studens on he campus are at present pretty much orphan with scarcely place to set their books down. In addition to this factor, it is hoped that the projected lounge will put an end to the curren tendency to congregae a whole corridor in one of the student's rooms for an impromptu bull session, perhaps at the expense of one of the residents who may wish to study. If this first trial project meets with the success which it deserves, it may be duplicated on the first and topmost floors of Memorial also. Should this be achieved, provision can be made whereby the music lovers can gather to compare discs, the card sharks will have plenty of elbow room, and a collecting point will be established for the newspapers, magazines, and other periodicals gleaned from each corridor.

BARBER SHOP

The sleuthing department of the executive of the Students' Union is reported to have located an empy room on the first floor of Dalton Hall, and informed sources state that this room will soon house the campus barber shop. We presume that this service will be available as soon as the right type of blood is found with which to stripe the pole that is to hang on the door. The two barbers, Mr. Gillis and Mr. Morrison, have already stated their willingness to wield the tonsorial tools on Thursday afternoons and between book reports.

COLLEGE CREST

Shades of the ancients! It seem that the oldest controvercial question on the campus (it's been with us from the beginning) is still kicking up its heels in legislative circles. Once again, the Students' Union is making an attempt to choose and standardize a definitive college crest. Heretofore, the choice has been left up to the individual student and the result is that we now have as many different types of representation as we have students possessed of the initiative to have a crest made.

It has been pointed out that it is about time that something definite was decided on his matter, after all one hundred years should be a long enough time to reach a decision. The plan at present is to display drafts of various suitable designs at the next general meeting of the student body and call for a vote to decide the question. In this way, it is hoped that at long last this question and all the confusion to which it has given birth will be able to be given a solemn, final, and overdue burial.

Concurrent with this question, the student body has been asked to ponder two other measures prior to the voting which will be called for in the next general meeting These two measures involve separate amendments to the constitution of the Students' Union and are: (1) The admission of the Sigma Delta Sorority to the Students' Union, and (2) The elevation of the present C.F.C.C.S. committee to the status of an independent society. These weighty measures were the subject matter of the last general meeting of the Union on Jan. 18. A few days prior to this meeting, a session of the executive passed the following resolution: "Whereas Gentlemen students have been paying more than ladies for admission to the St. Dunstan's socials, I therefore move that the admission for ladies to the St. Dunstan's social be raised by the amount of five cents, that is to bring the admission to fifteen cents."

Well, now that the age of "Women's Rights" is upon us, we suppose it is only just that they be granted equality and be allowed to pay the same admission price as the rest of us. Seriously, however, the situation was gravely weighed and the solution proposed seems to be the only one which will enable the social committee to remain solvent.

SAINTS VICTORIOUS

Last Tuesday evening, the men in the Red and White donned the blades to face off against the Montague Primroses. The tenacious net-tending of "Rabbi" Gillis staved of the attack to make Gaston Roy's second period goal the decidi one as the Saints emerged with a 3-2 victory. The squad will meet their next foe tonight in the Arena when they will tangle with the warriors from Mt. A. in an intercollegiate match at 9.00 p.m. The remainder of the N.B.-P.E.I. Intercollegiate Hockey Schedule has been released and reads as follows:
Jan. 21 — Mt. A. at S.D.U.
Jan. 27— S.D.U. at St. Thomas.
Jan. 28 — S.D.U. at U.N.B
Feb 4 — St. Thomas at S.D.U.
Feb. 11 — U.N.B. at S.D.U.
Feb 18 — S.D.U. at Mt. A.

HOCKEY DANCE

To aid in financing this program, Saint Dunstan's A.A.A. is sponsoring a Hockey Dance at the Rollaway Club this coming Tuesday, Jan. 24, to the music of the Downtowners. With the W.U.S.C. Formal in the offing (Feb. 6) this dance should present a fertile field for you ladies and gentlemen who may not have heard the starting gun. On the other side of the sports slate, we note that tonight the Saints will stage an exhibition hoop tilt with the St. John Atlantics in the Alumni Gym at 7.00 p.m. The complete schedule for this season's basketball tourneys will be released next week. While on the subject of basketball, we take great delight in offering our sincere congratulations to that star of the court who injured his leg in action before the Christmas holidays, Mr. just before the Christmas holidays, Mr. Richard Noonan. Last Thursday evening Mr. Noonan removed his final cast from his ankle and, beaming on it as though it were a coveted trophy, he stated with understandable pride that is was going to hang on his wall (after it had hung out the window for a few days).

Until next week, greetings from Saint Dunstan's and be consoled that it takes more grit than whit of wit to grasp the meaning herein writ.

Dairy Farmers Concerned About Decline In Earnings

SAINT JOHN, N. B. (CP)—Earnings of dairy farmers continue to get smaller and in some cases profit has disappeared, the president of the Dairy Farmers of Canada reported today.

"As a major group in Canada's economy, the farming industry has been obligated to take less while other goups have demanded and received more," Gilbert Macmillan of Huntingdon, Que., said in his presidential address at the 14th annual meeting of the DFC.

This applied to agriculture as a whole, but "no group has been worse hurt than the dairy farmers. This is the basic reason for the difficult position some of them are finding themselves in today."

The result was the largest labor force fully employed at the highest wages ever enjoyed in Canada while, on the other hand, the largest single group of the population was in a "very difficult position. Increasing cost of operations and declining returns cannot continue idefinitely without very serious results to more than farmers themselves."

150 DELEGATES MEET

Mr. Macmillan's statements were contained in the text of his address as issued before delivery.

He spoke at a general meeting following two days of closed sessions. About 150 delegates from all provinces were present. The convention ends Friday.

What is needed, Mr. Macmillan said, "is a realization on the part of all our people that food is their primary requirement and that the people who produce it are due equal returns with the other groups that go to make up our society. If the people who are producing many of our dairy products today were drawing the same hourly wages as are current in industry, their prices would appear prohibitive.

"If other groups refuse to recognize this fact, it then becomes the duty of our governments-both federal and provincial-to institute policies that will ensure that a fair balance is maintained among all classes."

NEED SUPPORTS

Mr. Macmillan repeated recommendations made at the federal-provincial agricultural conference at Ottawa last month. These included continuation of present price support and revision of the Australian - New Zealand agreements.

Statistics for the period 1951 to 1954 showed a drop from 63 to 51 per cent in the farmer's share of the Canadian food consumer's dollar.

RCMP Regulations Re Marriage Protested

OTTAWA CP — If certain senators have their way, Mountles will be able to get their girl as well as their man.

Senator John T. Haig, Opposition leader in the Senate, said Thursday that the sooner RCMP regulations requiring members of the force to remain single for five years after recruitment are removed, the better it will be.

"Lov doesn't stop at those kind of things," he said, referring in the throne speech debate to the case of six RCMP constables being discharged in Alberta for breaking the marriage regulations.

Only Wednesday, Senator David Croll L—Ontario championed the same constables' case in the Upper Chamber.

"I think it is time the government must be told by the people that they have no right to exact a condition from an employee to live an unnatural life," Senator Croll said.

Senator Haig said the dismissals were "an outrage."

The Mountie should be allowed to follow the natural course the same as other Canadians. A good wife would make him a better policeman.

Senator Haig said he certainly had been a better lawyer as a result of having married a good wife.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Alfred Yee who passed away January 21, 1953
Ever remembered and sadly missed by wife and family.

In fond and loving memory of my sister Mrs. Frank Stevenson who passed away January 21st. 1940.
In my heart there is a picture
More precious than silver or gold
It is a picture of you dear Sister
Whose memory will never grow old.
Always remembered and sadly missed by her sister, Mrs. Chester Bernard, Charlottetown.

In loving memory of Theodore W. Sentner who passed away January 21st., 1955.
We loved him as no tongue can tell
We loved him then and always will
God loved him too, and thought it best
To take him home with him to rest.
Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by wife, Janie, sons and daughters.

In loving remembrance of our dear husband and daddy, Craftsmen Norman Douglas Nicholson, who lost his life in Korea, Jan 21, 1952.
Those we love, we never lose,
For always they will be,
Forever near, forever dear,
In cherished memory.
Always remembered by wife Peggy, sons, Jamie and Randy, Saint John, N. B.

In loving memory of Angus MacKinnon who passed away Jan. 21st. 1955.
Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Dixon and family.

Ghostly Invasion Of Stately London Mansic..

LONDON (CP)—A hollow, rapping sound echoed eerily through a stately mansion in London's Highgate district.

"There they are," exclaimed Mrs. Doris Hatton-Wood, a wealthy widow who claims her North London home is haunted by the forces of evil.

"That's the work of devilish forces. And it has been going on for three horrible years."

Sitting in a second-floor living room of her Tudor-style home, the frail, attractive widow told of other strange manifestations — sounds of heavy boxes being dragged across the floor and of occupants of the house being "pushed" down steep flights of stairs. She told, too, of blood stains mysteriously appearing on the wall outside her room.

"The blood appeared to have been smeared on in places, splattered in others, and in spots was so thick it ran down the wall.

ANOTHER WTNESS

"I realize it sounds far-fetched, but all this is happening . . . happening much too frequently for comfort."

"I can vouch for that," said her housekeeper, Mrs. Winifred Allsop. "It is not wild flight of imagination. I've heard and seen these things myself. So has my husband."

There is nothing in the appearance of Olney, the Hatton-Wood home at 5 View Road, to suggest to a visitor that within its walls the forces of black magic are at work. It is a square, two-storey structure of grey brick and stucco, surrounded by lawns and gardens and enclosed by a high wooden fence.

Inside, the spacious hallway, four living rooms and nine bedrooms are tastefully furnished with period furniture.

Mrs. Hatton-Wood, who admits she has been "extremely interested in things psychic since I was 12 years old," blames the "supernatural invasion" of her home on a gibbet—an upright post and arm used to execute criminals in olden days.

GRUESOME RELIC

She said the gibbet—"a gruesome relc left in the house many years ago by a relative"—lay for years in an attic storeroom.

"The first manifestations emanated from that room. We continually hear sounds of boxes being pulled around in the room when no one is up there. The most frightening aspect is that the sounds are so real and physical."

Recently she sent the gibbet to the Kensington Palace Museum.

The widow, who guards her age as a "woman's secret" but says she has a grown-up daughter, says she has no intention of calling in the Society for Psychical Research, a group of British scientists who investigate reports of supernatural occurrences.

"I am afraid that any investigation like that would anger the forces of evil that have a hold on this house and so make matters worse."

Recently, under the urging of relatives, she has the house and ground exorcised by Rev. Gilbert Shaw, "a preist active in combatting black magic."

TELECAST TROUBLES

"I think it may have helped a little. . . the house seems happier now."

Just before Christmas Mrs. Hatton-Wood outlined her troubles in a television broadcast for the British Broadcasting Corporation.

"I have since learned that the priests are perturbed about the publicity attendant on their efforts to exorcise the evil spirits here and I very much doubt that they will make another attempt."
