P.E.I. Workmen's Compensation Board Report

"While our financial statement shows our credit balance is gradually increasing, we are informed by experts that we should have a reserve fund of approximately $500,000 before we will be in a sound position to handle any emergency which might arise," states the report of the Workmen's Compensation Board, which was tabled in the Legislature yesterday. The report is for the year ending December 31, 1951.

"In view of this fact and also considering that our rates and benefits are well in line with those of other Boards which have been operating over much longer periods," the report adds, "we feel that our employers who contribute to the accident fund will cooperate with us and do everything possible to keep down the accident rate, with the ultimate goal of a sound reserve fund and at that time a revision of assessment rates."

Tables illustrating in detail the Board's activities during the year show that in 1951, 900 claims were dealt with compared to 781 claims in 1950. $52,781.48 was paid out in claims in 1951 compared to $44,-815.63 in the previous year. As another item of interest it is noted that in 1949 the Board worked on assessments from payrolls totalling only $3,222,702 for the half year. In 1950 the payrolls on which assessments were levied amounted to $7,944,710 and in 1951 it is estimated that the actual assessable payrolls will approximate $8,850,-000.

Members of the Board comprise Brig. W. W. Reid, chairman, D Jerome Gillis, commissioner, and J. E. R. MacEwen, commissioner.

Bureau Receives Many Inquiries Re P. E. Island

A school in Cross Plains, Texas, is studying foxes at the moment; a young couple in Beverly, Mass., are planning a seaside holiday; a North Billerica, Mass. man is interested in establishing a resort on the shore road between Charlottetown and Borden; fifty-three persons want literature about the Island; twelve other inquirers are planning definitely on an Island holiday.

One bath of mail for the Prince Edward Island Travel Bureau produces this and just as varied a assortment of information each day.

One day this week, several letters in the unmistakable scrawl of a young school child wrote for information and pictures "of fox farms and how foxes are raised." It is evident their class is studying fox farming And it is also evident that Prince Edward Island's fame as the world's best fox country is still very well known.

A letter from a Beverly girl said she and her fiance were planning their holiday and "have heard much about Prince Edward Island." Her letter continued, "We are interested in a very nice hotel and night clubs (and, of course, swimming)." The Island can offer her the nice hotel and swimming but she will have to find a replacement for the night club.

The man inquiring about the possibility of a resort on Route 2A wanted some information including whether or not the road is open all the year around.

All such letters are answered on the day they are received and literature is packaged and despatched the same day.

Debate On Address Resumed By Opposition Leader Bell

Despite the fact that this Province has developed the best bacon hog in the world, farmers are not getting the price they should for them, stated Mr. R.R. Bell, leader of the Opposition, as he resumed his part in the debate on the Draft Address in the Legislature yesterday.

He said that the cost of feeding a hog was approximately $30 and when the 150-pound animal was taken to market, the farmer received only $37.50. He compared this to the prices received last year and said present conditions created a hopeless situation for the farmer.

Conditions were as bad in the poultry industry, he said, and he thought there must be something wrong with the system of grading poultry as many raisers were complaining that their birds were marked Grade B which meant a loss of 7 cents per pound compared to receipts for Grade A poultry. Mr. Bell contended that when farmers could not make a profit from hogs and poultry, they were inclined to get out of mixed farming and concentrate on only one end of the business.

He feared that a large number of small farmers would again turn to growing potatoes this year and the result might be another surplus. Last year some farmers, mainly big ones, made money on potatoes and that was encouraging the small farmers to grow more this year. That meant they would have to buy seed at a high price.

Fertilizer Prices

He said that fertilizer prices seemed to be getting out of hand as they were increased last year and again this year. Many farmers could not grow potatoes last year because of lack of credit for fertilizer. At the same time he stated there was no crop a farmer could turn his hand to which would cost him as much as potatoes — and when the fall comes there would again be no asurance of good prices.

In general the agriculture picture here was not as bright as it should be, the speaker maintained, as everything which has to do with a farmer producing his crop is

Recalls Former Paardeberg Day Observance Here

Lieut. Col. W. C. Cook has received the following letter from Mr. W. Chester S. McLure, M.P., at Ottawa:

"In reading through The Guardian of February 28 I notice some cuts of the survivors of the South African Contingent, everyone of whom was known to me. When I saw those cuts, I was wishing that you had gotten the five together and taken a photograph.

"It is only a few years ago since I attended a Paardeberg dinner at the Queen Hotel and there were quite a large number of veterans at that dinner, but time thins them out. However, at this time I want to congratulate you on keeping the remembrance of Paardeberg Day.

With kindest regards and hoping you will celebrate many more anniversaries."

Ch'town Chapter P.E.I. Association Of Nurses

The quarterly meeting of the Charlottetown Chapter of the Association of Nurses of P.E.I. took place on March 11th at 8 p.m. in the classroom of the P.E.I. Hospital, with the chairman, Sister Mary Stanislaus presiding.

Dr. P. A. Creelman, the guest speaker for the evening, gave an interesting and informative address on "New Methods in Treatment of Tuberculosis". He spoke of the constantly changing practices and treatments in tuberculosis therapy, and that anything older than six years is now out of date.

He mentioned particularly the importance that some of the newer drugs are playing, and that further discoveries may be expected. He illustrated with diagrams and slides different treatments carried out in chest surgery and spoke of the gratifying results which have been obtained with some of the newer treatments.

Plans Voyage In A Barrel

KELOWNA, B.C., March 13 — (CP)— A veteran of the sea, 68-year-old Peter Olsen plans to return to his Norwegian homeland this year—in a barrel.

The barrel is ready at Sydney, N.S., for Skipper Olsen and he plans to set sail late in June.

"I hope to make the crossing in about 35 days," he said today "I'll take some Swedish hard bread, a little butter, canned goods, about 30 gallons of water and pray for the best."

The barrel-like vessel, six feet nine inches in diameter, was built by machinist Mark Carlton of Windsor, Ont., who, when his plans to sail it to England failed, made a present of it to Olsen.

It has a 700-pound keel and 250-pound rudder and a sort of stabilizing "scoop" at the stern. He has a compass, sextant and a sea-anchor.

The course he's laid off is to Newfoundland, Strait of Belle Isle, Greenland's Cape Farewell, Iceland and Norway.

Olsen left his hometown of Frederickstad 51 years ago when he was 17 and went to sea. He became a sailmaker and later was a whaler and sealer on the east coast and a cod and halibut fisherman.

South African Celebrations Are Officially Opened

CAPETOWN, South Africa, March 13 — (Reuters) — South Africa's lavish tercentennary celebrations got into full swing today with the official opening of the three-week Van Reibeeck Festival Fair.

More than 5,000 persons were on hand as Governor-General Ernest George Jansen opened the huge exhibition hall in commemoration of the first Dutch settlers in South Africa in 1652.

The whole of 1952 is a festival year, but these three weeks provide the high spot of the celebrations, coming to a climax April 6, actual date of the landing of Jan Van Riebeeck and his 70 Dutch settlers.

For the fair, 25 buildings and open-air exhibitions have been used to depict African life and industry. The period will be marked by a music, drama, sport and art festivals throughout the Union.

Celebrations opened Jan. 4, when Prime Minister Daniel Malan gave the signal for bonfires to be lighted and bells to be rung across the country.

One of the highlights of the fair will come April 4, when Van Riebeeck's landing will be re-enacted from a model of his ship, "Dromedaris" at a nearby bay.

Five-Year-Old Found In Gully

TORONTO, March 13—(CP)—Michael Saunders, 5, murmured "thank you" to firemen who rescued him today from a 100-foot gully where he had lain for 17 hours. Then he was given a glass of warm milk.

Fifteen firemen and police formed a human chain to pass the numb but conscious child to safety after he was found following an all-night search.

It was not known how the lad fell into the gully.

Michael disappeared yesterday afternoon. A few minutes before he was found two miles from his North Toronto home a police officer remarked:

"If he has been out all night in this temperature I don't think we are going to find him alive."

Passed Uususpected

again in Saint John, N.B., he passed large old-fashioned $2 bills which should have arouse curiosity. The Montreal police had him in their clutches when they swooped down on a brothel and took its inhabitants off to jail but let most of them, including the spy, go after paying a deposit.

In Ottawa, he left the Lower Town Hotel in August, 1943, when the proprietor started asking for his sugar ration coupons, moved to a rooming house and started eating in restaurants. This is the story from the beginning:

Landed Off New Brunswick

At midnight May 13, 1942, German U-boat Y213 surfaced 1½ miles off the New Brunswick shore near the mouth of the Salmon River, roughly 30 miles southwest of Saint John and a few miles from the village of St. Martin's.

The spy had boarded the sub at Lorient, France, in the uniform of a naval officer and the crew was kept in the dark about his mission.

The spy put on civilian clothes and at midnight climbed into a small rubber boat and was rowed ashore. With him he had the radio, covered by a valise wrapped in waterproof material. He had in his wallet a fake Canadian National registration certificate such as those carried by all Canadians during the war.

It had been made in Berlin from a copy taken off an R.C.A.F. prisoner of war. The spy took the name Alfred Haskins and gave his address at 182 Younge Street, Toronto. He later worried that the wrong spelling of Yonge Street would trip him up but it didn't.

The shore where he landed is wild with huge rocks and cliffts. at dawn he climbed the cliff and buried the radio, then walked to St. Martin's. He had a road map with him.

He also had $7,000 in U.S. dollars and $12 in Canadian dollars. German intelligence apparently didn't know that U.S. dollars in abundance might well arose interest in Canada or that antiquated, out-sized $2 bills might either. The spy had both.

Hitch-hiked To Saint John

He passed the first $2 bill in St. Martin's to get some toilet articles. From there, he hitch-hiked a drive by truck into Saint John, left there the next day by train, for Montreal. He passed another $2 bill in Saint John in buying a suitcase

He soon realized the embarrassment of his many U.S. $50 bills and decided that the best way to get Canadian money for them was to go to places which would ask no questions. He started frequenting various places including Montreal brothels which took the $50 without question and gave him Canadian change.

He was in a brothel one night when the police arrived. After he paid them $50 he decided he'd better get out of town. He headed for Ottawa and spent the rest of his time there.

The Mounties say they are firmly convinced from what he told them and from a check of German intelligence after the war that he never had the slightest intention of spying here.

Finally on Nov. 1, 1944, six months before Germany collapsed, he gave himself up. The Mounties won't give the details but they say he turned out to be "a wonderful" source of information.

He eventually was sent to an interment camp and after the war was sent home to his wife.

Baby Flown To Montreal Hospital For Treatment

A five days' old baby born in the Prince Edward Island Hospital last Saturday with a condition known as a spina bifida was flown to the Montreal Neurological Institute yesterday. Arrangements for this child's admission to the Institute were hurriedly made by wire on the recommendation of Dr. E. S. Giddings, the family physician, by Miss Verna Darrach, R.N., Director of Red Cross Crippled Children's Work, who accompanied the tiny baby to Montreal. It is to be hoped that it will be possible for specialists in this line of work to operate on this child immediately and restore the baby to as nearly normal as possible.

This case is just typical of the many who are continually under treatment through the Junior Red Cross Handicapped Children's Fund which handled 408 cases for different kinds of treatment during the past year. Many were treated locally while others had to be sent to Halifax or Montreal. While funds for the actual treatment of these children are provid by the Junior Red Cross, and the Rotary Club of Charlottetown with the assistance of the Masons of Montague, the administration costs of this Department must be met from the campaign funds which are currently being solicited.

NEW GLASGOW BOY MISSING

Claim Czechs Would Desert If War Started

STRAUBING, Germany, March 13—(Reuters)—Six Czech border police who fled their Communist homeland claimed today that if eastern countries staged a war against the west, about 70 per cent of the Czech forces would desert.

But they believe Czech Communist leaders are planning an aggressive war, despite low morale.

The six, five privates and a corporal, answered reporters' questions today at U. S. Army Headquarters here.

The anti-Communist spirit is growing in Czechoslovakia, they claimed, with the Roman Catholic Church leading the movement. A decline in living standards during the last year spurred the feeling.

The six—one of whom left a wife and two children behind—said they escaped March 1 because they were fed up with seven days a week on duty, practically no leave and a surfeit of political instruction.

"There were no dances, no entertainment, only more and more propaganda," he said.

Escaping was easy, since they constituted one section of the border patrol—a security force which has received military training.

"We had talked it over before and decided to get out at our first chance. Then one night two weeks ago we checked the duty roster and saw no one else was due to come around until midnight.

"We assembled in a guard room and 20 minutes later we let ourselves slip through our own patrol and crossed at Waidhaus into Bavaria."

Speaking through interpreters, they said they hoped to emigrate to the U. S., Canada or Australia. They did not wish to stay in Western Germany, believing the Germans to be hostile to Czechs.

They are all between the ages of 23 and 26.

Security measures along the Czech frontier are rigid, they said, with mines, high-tension wires and trip wires set up to prevent escapes.

General Motors Report Huge Drop In Profits

NEW YORK, March 13 —(AP) General Motors Corp., world's biggest manufacturing firm, today reported a 39-per-cent drop in net profits in 1951 on sales of nearly $7,500,000,000, about the same as in 1950

The company's net income totalled $506,199,560. Equivalent to $5.63 a common share after payment of $12,928,313 in dividends on proferred stock. This compared with $834,044,039 in 1950, an all-time high for any corporation, or $9.35 a share.

The steep drop in earnings, said the company was due to "higher tax rates, lower civilian volume, higher costs, price controls and a greater proportion of defence business, on which the profit margin is lower than on civilian products."

First Execution In 15 Years

AUCKLAND, N. Z., March 13—(Reuters)—William Fiori, 29, was hanged in Auckland prison today —the first execution in New Zealand since 1935. The death penalty was abolished in 1941 but was restored in 1950. Riori was sentenced to death for the murder of a lumber mill manager and his wife.
