CORNWALL—Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Ackland Cornwall were pleasantly surprised on the occasion of their 61st wedding anniversary when their four daughters entertained at a dinner in their honor.

Centering the table was a beautifully decorated anniversary cake. Besides their four daughters and their husbands, the affair was attended by a number of guests who reside in the province, by one grandson-in-law, a great grandson and two sisters of Mr. Ackland.

During the evening the presentation of a gold tin service was made to the honored couple.

ment emaculated and indelibly etched him.

As of now, he is almost hopelessly crippled, due to the quality of his unchanging feelings about her. Had he started earlier—say about the time he married—she would have been the damage done by her, he might have made the grade and arrived at constructive use of his faculties.

However, it is never too late to do better, a proverb tells us. Thus, even today he ought to get hold of himself and have a thorough physical check-up by a good diagnostician skilled in geriatric medicine (care of the elderly), even such help, he might spend his remaining years in comparative peace, freed from the nightmare clasp of the past.

South Queen's Institutes Hold Convention At Uigg

The South Queen's district convention of the Women's Institutes was held recently in Uigg. Mrs. Murdoch MacLeod presided at the meeting, which opened with the Institute Ode and the Mary Stewart Collect.

Mrs. Martina Doyle extended a welcome to all who attended the meeting and this was responded to by Mrs. Norma Hayden. Mrs. James Doyle and Mrs. Fred Fursess gave splendid condensed reports of work done in the various districts during the year. Some projects sponsored were pinning classes and 4-H clubs and Institutes purchased items for the schools and made contributions to various organizations.

Miss Myra Smith from the WI branch office urged more Institutes to enter the Tweedsmuir competition and also encouraged the Institutes to enter the 4-H clubs. Speaking briefly on the Canadian Association of Consumers she cautioned members to buy known brands in clothing and government inspected meats.

The "fun and nonsense" presented was in charge of the Earncliffe WI and it provided much amusement. Mrs. Douglas McArthur brought greetings from the provincial executive and gave an interesting and informative talk on rural beautification, urging the members to help keep the province beautiful.

Mrs. Mellish also spoke on the membership book and commended the editor of the Institute News.

Mrs. Emma Storey reported on her resolutions, one of which was the appointment of a music teacher for the convention area.

The hostess Institute for 1962 will be the Cherry Valley as a special feature. Mrs. A. J. Ivan Docherty as president and Mrs. Brent Mutch as secretary.

SOUTH LAKE WI
On July 4, Mrs. Henry O'Brien was hostess to the members of the South Lake WI for their monthly meeting.

The meeting opened in the usual manner. Correspondence was read by secretary and business arising out of these was dealt with. It was decided the Institute would purchase a gift of fruit for a former member on her eighty-second birthday.

Five lovely baby shirts, knitted by Mrs. Cameron for the use of the Institutes were presented to the Institutes in Charlottetown.

The program was then enjoyed and consisted of household hints, readings, jokes and music. The meeting closed with a song.

ELLEN'S DIARY

July Puts Her Accent On Cool And Damp Weather

It still pleases July to accent the cool damp weather. And thinking back to certain perfect June days, we have a yearning for the sunshine now, and the warm winds again.

This however was an idea in the morning, between showers, in which to transplant seedlings in the flower-borders; manure and common earth and marigold.

Certain ones of the house-plants, we carried outdoors to receive a cleansing rain-bath there.

"That's an odd one" one who came by said stopping his car on the driveway to "pass the time of day" with us there on the lawn "what do you call it?"

"It's our good-luck plant: an aspistrata" we chuckled.

"Golly—what a name! I don't believe I've heard it before. Or have I? Yes, I remember Mrs. — mention that to my mother one time long ago. They were chatting about what they were intending to take to the Exhibition—it used to come late in the autumn. And when she was eating black-currant jelly and a fruitcake, and an — what you said."

"And" he grinned "I didn't inquire into it, for I was only a little lad. I just thought of something she had knit, or crocheted — Does it bring good luck?"

"Oh like a horseshoe over the door" we said. "It's a pleasant fancy to think so. It's a superstition, of more peaceful times. Sort of nice to look at when the world is upset."

When we were young and he was sick a long time, he wanted me not to use his insurance money if he died. What I'd use for expenses he didn't say.

"I'm of rather good remembrance," of the hard things of the past; but present conditions keep reminding me. Do you write something that might help me live in a different light? Sometimes I feel I've got to have help or crack up—F.V.

Dear F.V. Somehow you've managed to blind yourself for nearly 50 years, it seems to me the fact that your husband is emotionally sick. Apparently he has been chronically illing, semi-invald on that score, since you've known him.

In relation to your wife he has been trying, all along, to pay off old grudges against his mother. Gradually speaking, he has dealt with her from the unconscious plane as if you were his mother when he had her under his thumb.

In relation to be helpful or answerable to you, in a common sense way, he is not. He is a wife might expect of a good husband—he has been "getting back" at his mother, for overpowering him is his pre-arranged years.

MARY HAWORTH

Man's Neurotic Behavior Is Problem For His Wife

Dear Mary Haworth: My husband and I are past retirement age. We had children in school continually for almost 30 years, not getting them through grade six and high school. He never bought a suit, coat or dress for anyone of them.

His mother was an overpowering personality, who brought him up on belittling. He never made a decision on his own until after we were married, then he made a series of wild ones. His money evaporated and he learned that he felt no responsibility to clothe or support me.

For over 40 years he has claimed that I never loved him as he loved me. It was impossible to talk this out with him. He was a huggler; a kisser; he spoke a lot of love; but it meant his love was in his plans than deeds of kindness.

When he was sick and I was weary, I would see a car in his back yard. He had a heart attack, some years ago, he was up in the clouds—glad that he'd never have a work again; that we'd have to support him.

There isn't much employment for a woman my age, but I work when I can, to keep money when we live better now than ever before (on retirement insurance) and things should be pleasant. He has gone into a nursing home.

He is so afraid that I'll spend any of his money, even for bread or groceries, I've even short-
