

Most Voters Happy Election Campaign Is Nearing Climax

By RALPH CAMERON
Guardian-Patriot Staff Writer

With the election campaign in its final week, it is believed all parties will confine themselves exclusively to local speakers at the last meetings to be held around the province.

Both Liberal and Progressive Conservative headquarters will come here from outside the province and only the candidates will address the audiences. However, they will probably be supported by other island political figures.

to the trend in the past two federal elections, there seems to be little wagering on the outcome.

But there does appear to be one thought in the minds of many and it is the fear that next Monday might produce another parliamentary stalemate such as was observed in the last session. But whether the danger of such a situation recurring can create a sufficient availing of the necessity of avoiding it by voting on election day will only be determined on Monday next.
