Student Militia Course Started

A five-week special students' militia training course began Monday at the Charlottetown Armouries, involving 40 selected high school students from the Charlottetown area.

The course, designed to supply officer cadets and non-commissioned officers to militia regiments, involves basic training and national survival training.

When the first phase of this program is completed Aug. 11, the candidates will be assigned to the P.E.I. Regiment as officer cadets and NCOs.

PHASE TWO SLATED

Successful candidates in this course will go on to phase two next summer, a special course at Camp Aldershot, N.S. It has not as yet been decided where phase three of the training will be held.

Candidates for the course, the first to be held in Eastern Command, although it has been in operation in other commands for several years, have been specially selected on recommendations from their respective schools.

Course officials have explained that only Charlottetown high school students are involved in the course this year because the course is not equipped to handle students from outside Charlottetown.

EXCELLENT RESPONSE

The response to the course has been excellent, officials say. This year's course has been oversubscribed and there is a possibility that by next year two concurrent courses will be held, involving 40 candidates in each.

A minimum age level of 16 years has been established, and students are selected from grades nine to 12, inclusive. While taking the training from 8.30 to 4.30 Monday through Friday, they draw regular trooper's pay.

At the end of the course a passing out parade will be held and prizes, donated by the Charlottetown branch of the Royal Canadian Legion, will be presented to the two top students.

Chief instructor for the course is Major J.J. Coyle, CD, DC. His assistants include 2nd Lt. Dave Rogers, second - in - command; Sergeant Major Harry Downe; Sergeants Al Leger, Barry Stevenson, Kevin Madore and George MacDonald.

East Royalty Man Is Found Guilty Of Charge, Fined $10

Following summation by defence counsel, John P. Nicholson and Crown prosecutor, Alan Scales, Wynand VanWestereng, East Royalty, was found guilty as charged by Justice of the Peace Albert Dinnis in Queens County magistrate's court last night.

Mr. VanWestereng had previously pleaded not guilty to failing to stop his motor vehicle when signalled to do so by a peace officer. Mr. Dinnis fined the accused $10 and costs or five days.

A second charge against the accused, that of speeding, was adjourned until July 12 to set a date for hearing.

In his summation, Mr. Nicholson said that assuming the charge was not a subject dealt with by the Criminal Code, as he had contended in earlier testimony, there was no evidence that Cnst. John Norton, Sherwood police officer, who laid the charge, was a peace officer. He said that just because Cnst. Norton said he was a peace officer, it didn't make him one. He said also that the authority of the Charlottetown police, the Summerside police and the RCMP, could also be questioned. He further stated there was no evidence to support the charge.

Mr. Nicholson noted that the main item involved in the case was the accused's own admission that he did not see Cnst. Norton on the highway signalling him to stop. He said that Cnst. Norton's police car was not on the highway and that when the accused was signalled to stop, after he had been chased a mile, he did so.

He said that if there was the least possible doubt in the case than the accused must be given the benefit of that doubt. He stated that with all things submitted by him there should be reason to raise doubt.

IN UNIFORM

Mr. Scales stated that in regard to the identity of a peace officer, the public, when seeing a man in a police uniform takes him to be a peace officer. He said that as far as this case was concerned Cnst. Norton is a peace officer and that he was in full uniform when he signalled the accused to stop. He asked that this argument be overlooked as it was the burden of the defence to prove Cnst Norton was not a peace officer.

He submitted that one of the main reasons Mr. VanWestereng did not stop when he was signalled to do so was that he may have wanted to escape action and may have believed that the constable did not see him, that he had no car, that he could not identify him nor his truck. Mr. Scales said that when the accused stopped later it was because he had no choice because the police car was on top of him. He said the evidence in the case was convincing enough to warrant a conviction.

Mr. Scales further stated that the main question was whether or not Mr. VanWestereng should have seen Cnst. Norton on the highway.

In handing down his decision, Mr. Dinnis said that it had been proven that Cnst. Norton was on the highway and that, in his opinion, Mr. VanWestereng should have seen him.

He said he agreed with Mr. Scales that the accused may have thought that the best thing to do was to get out of the area. He said he could do nothing but find the accused guilty as charged.

375 Acres Are Insured

Out of the province's estimated 40,000 acres of potato land, 375 acres are insured under the potato crop insurance program, Agriculture Minister Andrew MacRae said yesterday.

He said that 54 growers had taken advantage of the government insurance plan this year. As the grower pays a premium of $5.06 for each acre insured, total premiums amount to $1,900.

Mr. MacRae said he felt that the insurance program got off to a good start in its first year. He pointed out that in Saskatchewan, in its first year of crop insurance, about 100 growers took advantage of the plan.

Deadline for insuring potato crops this year was June 30.

Mr. MacRae emphasized that the insurance plan was well publicized, and no grower would have any excuse for not knowing the plan existed. He made it clear some time ago that uninsured growers who suffer crop losses will not be compensated.

She said the law has been in the books requiring the minimum wage on all contract work in the city for some time, but has never been enforced.
