

APEC Directors Are Meeting Here

The key participants in an APEC sponsored meeting to be held at the Charlottetown Hotel on Friday, September 9 are A.D. Margison, present of the Island Development Company Limited, T.J. Flood, newly appointed head of the crown corporation, Industrial Enterprises Incorporated, and J.J. Revell, chairman of the Prince Edward Island Labor Relations Board.

This information was released today by Eric J. Kipping, Council Vice-President for Prince Edward Island. His topic will be "Developing Prince Edward Island."

The afternoon will be devoted to a thorough panel discussion of significant industrial developments and policies. Panel participants, in addition to Mr. Margison, will include T.J. Flood and J.J. Revell. "We believe the meetings will make an important contribution to a better understanding of the progress this Province is making," said Mr. Kipping.

Members of the Seed Potato Inspection staff, and their wives, assembled at Birch Court to honour L. Davis Ward on his retirement from the Plant Protection Division, Canada Department of Agriculture recently.

Mr. Ward has worked in many areas of the province during his thirty-three years of service, and many complimentary remarks

Centre Artist Is Selected

The Atlantic National Exhibition in Saint John saw the selection of Confederation Centre artist in residence, James Little as artist of the year.

The artist left Charlottetown over the weekend to attend the opening of a six-day exhibition of his work which opened Monday morning.

The ten works Mr. Little sent over include oil paintings "Portrait of Marjory" and "Early Morning" from "Water Street" and a pen and ink drawing titled "Atlantian Dream".

James Little has been artist in residence and assistant curator of Confederation Centre Art Gallery since last September.

Born in Calgary, Alberta, he came to Charlottetown after four years with the Glenbow Foundation in that city. He is a graduate of the Southern Alberta College of Art.

As well as being a painter, Mr. Little is a stained glass craftsman.
