Montreal: Market higher, trading active.

New York: Market higher, trading heavy.

CURRENCIES

MONTREAL (CP)—U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds up 1-32 at $1.07 11-16. Pound sterling up 3-16 to $3.01⅞.

NEW YORK

NEW YORK (AP) — Steels held the spotlight Thursday as the stock market finished the second day of a vigorous rally. Trading was heavy.

Volume climbed to 7,420,000 sharse from 6,220,000 Wednesday. It was the third 7,000,000-plus share day of the week.

Increased participation in the market by the public and by big investment institutions was plainly evident.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 8.23 to 931.18, not far from its historic closing high of 939.62 reached May 14.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 2.3 to 341.6 with industrials up 4.3, rails up .8 and utilities up .8. The AP 60 - stock indicator neared its all-time peak of 344.7 reached May 6.

A strong rally by steels was ascribed to the fact they have been "behind the market" in the latest rallying phase.

U.S. Steel, up 2¼, was the most actively traded in its group. Jones and Laughlin rose 2⅛, Bethlehem 1, Republic and Armco 1⅜, Lukens 5¼ and Youngstown sheet 2⅛.

Among Canadian issues traded, McIntyre Porcupine advanced 1, International Nickel ⅞, Granby Mining ⅝, Canadian Pacific and Walker Gooderham ⅜ each, Distiller Seagrams ½ and both Aluminium Ltd. and Hudson Bay Mining ⅛. Dome Mines lost ½.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were mostly higher in active trading. Canadian Javelin added ⅝, and both Preston and Scurry Rainbow Oil ¼. Brazilian Traction, Canadian Marconi and Jupiter Corp. all fell ⅛ while Fargo Oil slipped 1-16.

Management Decentralizing Is Predicted By Professor

VANCOUVER (CP) — T. L. Whisler, professor of industrial relations at the University of Chicago, said here that management of tomorrow will be decentralized with the single chief being replaced by a committee.

However, information services, a function of much of management today, would be centralized with the use of computers.

Prof. Whisler, making the keynote address to the annual convention of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants, said he was in the presence of "one of the largest groups of rapidly obsoleting craftsmen sitting together in one place at this date."

He said he and members of the audience were going "out of date enormously fast—and most of us don't even know it."

The text of his speech was released to the press in advance of delivery.

Prof. Whisler spoke extensively of the effects of computers on management, and the fact that persons on the technical and professional level are taking over management, to an increasing degree.

DRAWS FIVE CONCLUSIONS

He came to these conclusions.

1. "We should clearly expect the business organization 10 or 15 years from now to look less and less like a military hierarchy and more like a partnership of professionals" . . . permitting decentralization of the creative management functions which will be retained by men, and centralization of operating functions given to the machine.

2. The growing number of professionals will change managerial attitudes and behavior. . . . Less emphasis on organizational loyalty and greater individual mobility.

3. A breakdown in the present tightly coupled organization structure will result in a breakdown of some contemporary personnel procedures. For example in the future there will be more concern in organizations for individual salaries determined by the market and less concern for maintenance of a systematic wage structure.

4. The use of multiple chiefs or committees in top management will follow in the next decade. No one person can be expected to know all there is to know today in a large organization and the skill and needs of managers will grow rapidly. Managerial training must continue through the career of the executive.

5. An unfortunate byproduct of all this will be the difficulty of maintaining the "entrepreneurial spirit and ability in the organzation."
