WESTVILLE'S BRAVE MINERS.

While walking down the slope Mr. Madden thought he heard the rope going with a "whizz" and said to Patton, "My God, he'll kill those men." Patton looking behind saw away up the streak of light and exclaimed, "It's the rope broken," and almost immediately the "rake" of cars and some hundred feet of rope, about thirty of it being at a white heat, whizzed passed them at lightning speed. The tremendous heat of the bank house had burned the big wire rope and caused the cars to run away down the pit. Miraculous was their escape. Then hurrying to the bottom the first thing to do was to get out of the mine where the rope was lying and send a man up to put out any fire which the rope might have started while falling down. Meantime, while these brave men were toiling up the slopes, a land of brave men and true were fighting the fire from the mouth of the shaft. This was the supreme effort. These brave men were fighting for their daily bread, for their families and for their brothers down below, and well and nobly they worked without a thought of self. Their efforts were the efforts of men who were ready to conquer or die, and well they were rewarded, for at length, after a fierce two hours' fight they had won and the pit was safe, and the men all up, although at one time it looked as if the mine was doomed.—New Glasgow Enterprise.

TREASURE HOUSE BOBBED.

A strange story comes from Moukden, the ancestral home of the Chinese Imperial family, and their ancient treasure house. It is told in letters brought to Victoria by the steamer Empress of China, and is to the effect that when the Japanese reach Moukden to possess themselves of the fabulous fortunes accumulated there during the past century they will not find the millions of taels supposed to be safely stored in Moukden's great vault. "I imagine that merchants will grasp the correspondent's meaning," says Mr. A. Elliott Gordon, of Shanghai. "It corroborates what we have long believed, namely, that the treasure of Moukden, instead of containing countless millions are well nigh empty. In fact we have no doubt some of the most powerful enemies of the present Chinese dynasty would rejoice to have the Japanese invade Moukden. It would furnish a splendid explanation for the disappearance of treasure, which, if the tales of the Orient be true, have been removed in a series of gigantic thieving operations, covering many years. The thieves being among the highest in the land, the purpose is presumably to use the treasure of the ruling house to accomplish its overthrow. The appearance of the Japanese at this juncture may spoil a quietly, but not the less skillfully arranged revolution, which otherwise would have attracted the world's attention to China this year or next."

THE ANGLO-RUSSIAN ALLIANCE.

The Moscow Gazette protests against the Anglo-Russian alliance, saying: "Practically, whenever Russia was in a difficulty England aimed to help her to her own profit. We do not believe England is cordial to Russia. She appears so only because she is convinced of the Franco-Russian alliance, and the meaning power of the triple alliance, and hastens to join the stronger side." Despatches from St. Petersburg rid the reports of an Anglo-Russian alliance, and the free passage of the straits, mutual assistance in the far east, etc. The negotiations in progress between the two governments relate solely, it is said, to a more accurate definition of the straits, and a settlement of the Pamir question has been effected and a protocol been signed. The entente covers also the succession to the throne of Afghanistan, in which Russia has pledged herself not to interfere. This is a practical gain for England, as it relieves her of an Afghan pretender, who now will be little more than a subsidiary ally. The matter does not concern Germany and their settlement causes neither satisfaction nor regret. The German government has the best reason to know the relations between Germany and Russia are growing more friendly every day. If the sudden Anglo-Russian cordiality causes regret anywhere it is in France. The German press predicts, however, that the cordiality will cool soon.

THE MISSION OF THE NEWSPAPER.

The Boston Globe says: "The clergyman of the period have much to say first and last, about the mission of the public newspaper. None, however, have better set forth its work than the reverend gentleman who was the center of the Antislavery celebration. Said Mr. Wales, with perfect truth: 'It is the mission of the newspaper to publish news. This is a fact, that from the man who waters his milk to the cobble-headed murderer, all degrees of criminal mankind want news suppressed. Liars, thieves, scandal-mongers, deceivers, burglars, fighters, adulterers, gamblers, drunkards, and gentlemen recalcals, all cry out against publishing the news. Their business is disturbed by the enterprise of newspapers. But no one, who is open and honest and free from any taint of transgression, wants news suppressed.'"

NEWS NOTES.

A rising is reported at Van, Armenia, against Turkish rule. The new Car is said not only to be much attached to his English relatives, but to be possessed of English sympathies. Subscriptions aggregating over $156,000,000 are said to have been offered for the new $50,000,000 loan of the United States Government. Wilson, the murderer, who will be put to death by electricity at Auburn prison, N. Y., has refused to allow scientists to experiment on his body after he is dead, with a view to resuscitating him. He said that if he restored him to life he would be arrested for felonies in the West, and once dead he wants to rest that way. Certainly Mr. Wilson's comfort should be consulted.

HENRY IRVING.

THE GREATNESS OF LIVING ACTORS. HERO IN THE HOBARTS. BEST. HIS OPINION ON "VIN MARIANI."

It is said of Mr. Irving that, though an upright and thoroughly honorable man he plays the Devil (Faust) as no other man can. After perusing the many strong expressions from other eminent men and women throughout Europe as to the merits of Vin Mariani as a tonic, Mr. Irving says: "I can certainly add my testimonial to the virtues of 'Vin Mariani,' which I have found excellent, and an well continued of its use. This tonic cures wine (Vin Mariani) invigorates and sustains weak constitutions, runs down by over-excitation of body or brain. It is a most valuable medicine, and the written endorsements of seven thousand prominent physicians. Send stamp to Lawrence A. Wilson & Co., Montreal, the Canadian agents of this beautiful wine, and get a little album, free, containing the photos and testimonials of celebrities throughout the world."

There was a great outcry at Winnipeg and the West, some time ago at the excessive freight rates of the C. P. R., but when the commission of enquiry went to Winnipeg to take evidence, no one came forward to give evidence. Mr. Greenway should at least furnish some explanation of his neglect to state his grievances.

—Mr. Gladstone says in his latest published letter: "In my opinion which I have endeavored recently to set forth in the pages of the Nineteenth Century—an undermoral system of religion, framed by or under the authority of the state, is a moral monster. The state has no charter from heaven, such as may belong to the church or to the individual conscience. It would, as it is, be better for the state to limit itself to giving secular instruction—which, of course, is no complete education—than rashly to adventure upon such a system."

Broken in Health

That Tired Feeling, Constipation and Pain in the Back Appetite and Health Restored by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Mr. C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass. "For a number of years I have been troubled with a general tired feeling, shortness of breath, pain in the back, and constipation. I could get only little rest at night on account of the pain and had no appetite whatever. I was that tired in my limbs that I gave out before half the day was gone. I tried a great number of medicines but did not get any permanent relief from any of them until, upon recommendation of a friend, I purchased a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, which made me feel better at once. I have continued its use, having taken three bottles, and I feel like a new man. Hood's Pills are prompt and efficient, yet easy in action. Sold by all druggists, etc."
