FLOATING CHAPEL DREW THRONGS ON LAST TRIP HERE

Floating Chapel Tour To Include Island Ports

The Floating Chapel from Pugwash, N.S. will visit Charlottetown's Victoria Park on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week at 8 o'clock nightly for outdoor services.

Harold Thorne of First Baptist Church is chairman of the area committee and is assisted by laymen from several Christian groups. The three nights in Charlottetown follow the historic and successful Saint John River Crusade. During that mission, Mayor Eric L. Teed of Saint John summoned the Pastor to open the City Council with prayer.

Operated by Rev. Roy Campbell of the Pugwash-Wallace River United Baptist Church, the Floating Chapel is a 34 foot Cape Island style cabin cruiser with a beam of 11.6 feet.

She is equipped with amplifying equipment, a ship-shore radio telephone, a Fathometer by Raytheon, an Inverter to transform the 12 volt current to domestic, a Tape Recorder, a planorgan, and a galley with propane stove and can sleep four people. Benches line the sides.

Built by Larkin-Shand of Shag Harbor, N.S., the craft is powered by a Chevrolet engine with marine clutch for simple handling.

Officially launched at Shag Harbor on June 2nd, 1963, with a bottle of water from the River Jordan, the craft visited Lunenburg, Halifax, New Harbor, Port Hawkesbury, and Pugwash - Wallace harbors, as well as Northport in her Nova Scotia tours.

HERE LAST YEAR

The Prince Edward Island segment included thronged services at Charlottetown, Summerside, Montague, Georgetown and Murray Harbor. The 1964 season calls for return to most of these ports and others.

Officially dedicated on June 30th, 1963 in Pugwash Harbor by Dr. R. E. Whitney, superintendent of home missions for the Atlantic United Baptist Convention, the craft has already brought the Christian Gospel to thousands who almost never attend church. The public is warmly invited to attend.

Protests Heard Over Contracts

OTTAWA (CP)—Protests were voiced in the Commons Monday that the government is trying to conceal the number of public works contracts awarded without public tenders.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker unsuccessfully opposed a government move to provide the figures only for the Commons files and not for the Hansard record of day-to-day debate.

He noted that since April 27 Louis-Joseph Pigeon (PC — Joliette - L'Assomption - Montcalm) has had a question on the Commons order paper calling on the government to list in Hansard the total of public works contracts awarded without calling competitive bids.

He objected to the action of Dr. John B. Stewart, parliamentary secretary to State Secretary Lamontagne, in proposing that the figure be provided but not for the printed Hansard record.

Transport Minister Pickersgill said Mr. Diefenbaker's government initiated the practice in the last Parliament of not providing such information for the printed record. The question called for a vast amount of statistical work.

Mr. Diefenbaker retorted that Mr. Pickersgill's comments were no answer at all. For three months, the information had been sought. Never was there such a flagrant case of trying to conceal information.

Chance Find Is Widow's Joy

A chance discovery on the part of a department store employee in Charlottetown brought happiness to a Hunter River war widow Saturday.

Walter O'Brien, a long-time employee of R. T. Holman Ltd., last week was searching through an about-to-be-abandoned chesterfield when he came across a medal and a newspaper clipping from a 1944 Guardian.

He found the medal belonged to Mrs. Janie M. Gamester, Hunter River, whose husband, a private, had been killed in World War Two.

Mr. O'Brien wrote Mrs. Gamester who arrived in Charlottetown Saturday to reclaim the medal. "Am I ever happy to get this back after so many years," she said.

Neither Mr. O'Brien nor Mrs. Gamester has any idea how the medal got into the chesterfield lining. It has been missing for 20 years.

Red Cross First Aid Posts In Big Demand For Summer

Requests for mobile Red Cross first aid posts have been coming in "thick and fast" during the past few months in connection with all the special Centennial celebrations being held throughout the province, according to Dr. W. R. Stewart, provincial chairman of the Red Cross first aid committee.

"The Charlottetown Committee, headed by L. G. Gillespie, has complied with by far the largest number of requests," said Dr. Stewart who commented that this committee has been providing trained volunteers for duty at the Confederation Centre Theatre in Charlottetown for all the night performances under the leadership of Mrs. Malcolm MacDonald.

Other events at which Red Cross volunteers have staffed first aid posts included all the meeting held during the Billy Graham Crusade, the various sports events held at Victoria Park, the Eucharistic Congress held at St. Dunstan's University.

Volunteers from the Summerside area, under the chairmanship of Albert Stairs who is the Red Cross supervisor of First Aid for the Prince County area, staffed the first aid post at the Civic Stadium—the centre of activity for the Lobster Carnival—as well as for the Eastern Canadian Age Class Track and Field championships.

Mobile first aid posts were also manned by Red Cross volunteers at the Centennial Celebrations held at Kensington, Crapaud, Souris, Georgetown, Montague and Borden.

Each of the Life Guard Stations in the National Park is equipped as a first aid post at which the Red Cross-trained life guards render first aid to hundreds of those who use the facilities provided by the National Park.

Two Civil Defence vehicles have been made available for use as mobile first aid posts.

Problems In Education Aired At G'town Resources Meeting

GEORGETOWN — A recent meeting of the Georgetown Resources and Development Group was held in St. James Parish Hall, with the president, Temple MacDonald, presiding.

The minutes were read by the secretary, Charles Mair. The group discussed education and other matters vital to the area.

Attending the meeting was John MacDonald, field representative for resources development. Reports were given from the committees on education; small industries, agriculture and tourism.

J. A. B. McConnell reported for the education committee and presented certain statistics on school attendance and this led to a discussion on the matter of family allowances for children who fall below the necessary attendance average and are reported by the teachers.

It was deicded that the only way to obtain satisfactory information on this matter as well as on the question of the qualifications necessary for entry into trade school and vocational courses, was to hold a meeting, solely devoted to education and invite the school's supervisor and representatives from the Department of Education.

To arrange for this meeting two additional members were added to the educational committee. They were Rev. L. B Dooley and Mrs. Clair Currie.

TWO MEETINGS

It is planned to hold two meetings in August, if possible. The second meeting to discuss small industry, industrial planning and housing in Georgetown.

To arrange for this meeting the small industry committee was authorized to approach the town council and invite them to attend and enlighten the group on the above matters as they pertain to the town.

It is possible that also to be invited to this meeting will be a representative from the provincial town planning board and from the department of industry.

Great Alaskan Earthquake Described At Rotary Meet

"Earthquake Alaska" — Then and after, was the subject of an address before the Rotary Club at the weekly luncheon meeting at the Charlottetown Hotel yesterday by Rev. William Warren from Fairbanks, Alaska, where he has spent the past five years.

"On Good Friday a truck driver was unloading his vehicle on a wharf with 30 feet of water at the head when the quake surged everything into a new depth of 180 feet. On Easter Monday we held a memorial service for him," was the way the speaker described the suddenness of Alaska's last and most fearsome quake.

Sharp jolts are common in Alaska and 144 such disturbances per week is a fair average as recorded he said, but dogs, who appear to be super-sensitive, alone show uneasiness.

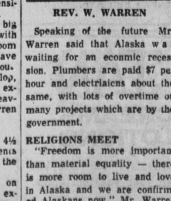
"On the morning of the big earthquake I was sitting with my family in the livingroom when the lamps began to heave back and forward. Standing outside to what might develop, it was a strange and awful experience to see the street weaving towards us." Mr. Warren said.

END HAD COME

"At Anchorage they had 4½ minutes of this and residents were sure that the end of the world had come."

Not much has been done on reconstruction, the speaker, explained, because it has been proven that the clay foundation under the buildings does not lend itself to permanency of any kind. "Not a single concrete building was left standing in Anchorage. There was no elasticity and no give, simple a total collapse."

Over 80 persons died and over 100 are missing as a result of the quake.



REV. W. WARREN

Speaking of the future Mr. Warren said that Alaska was waiting for an economic recession. Plumbers are paid $7 per hour and electricians about the same, with lots of overtime on many projects which are by the government.

RELIGIONS MEET

"Freedom is more important than material equality — there is more room to live and love in Alaska and we are confirmed Aleskans now," Mr. Warren said in speaking of his family.

"It is particularly gratifying to fraternize as we do every four weeks when Roman Catholic priests, Presbyterian ministers and Episcopalian clergy meet to consider the things that made us different and to exchange methods to witness to the saving power of Jesus Christ in our lives," Mr. Warren said.

The speaker was thanked by co-chairman Jerry Veniot.

Rev. Warren, rector of St. Matthews Episcopal Church Fairbanks, Alaska, was born near Philadelphia, Penn., graduating from Haveford College in Pennsylvania and the Virginia Theological Seminary.

While doing graduate study at General Seminary in New York he met Nancy Simpson of Charlottetown. They were married and have three daughters.

Mr. Warren was Assistant Rector at Grace Church, New York, and at St. Mary's Church in Ardmore, Penn. before being rector of the Church of the Incarnation at Morrisville, Penn. for 12 years. The Warrens have vacationed at Keppoch for many years.

President Andrew Likely welcomed the visiting Rotarians and guests and thanked Dr. Gencheff and his committee for the splendid job done in connection with the RCMP Musical Ride.

$3,000 VOTED

On the recommendation of the board of directors, $3,000 was voted the Rehabilitation Centre.

Visiting Rotarians were: Dr. Andrew Lotz, Paoli, McElvera, Pa.; John Baldorff, Big Rapids, Mich.; Norman Pigeon, Trois-Rivieres, Que.; Peter E. Last, Lakewood, Ohio; Cliff Wright, Halifax; Harold Nutter, Fredericton; Frank Mooney, Waltham, Mass.; Raymond M. Knoght, Troy, N.Y.; G. C. Johnston, Summerland, B.C.; W. J. Clark, Salisbury, Md.; W. Gruber, Forest Hill, Ont.; Guy Kennedy, Scarboro, Ont.; and Rev. William Warren, Fairbanks, Alaska.

Guests of Rotary were: Dr. Athol Roberts, John Andrew, Jack Kennedy, city; W. E. Fletcher, Lindsay, Ont.; and Joseph T. Holmes, Clearwater, Florida.

Ottawa Boosts Spending Plans In Cape Breton

ST. PETER'S, N.S. (CP) — Labor Minister MacEachen said Monday the federal government has approved an accelerated spending program for Cape Breton to relieve unemployment caused by mine closures and closing of the Point Edward Naval base.

Here to open a federal building he said under consideration are improvements to the Sydney air terminal.

The miniuser told Point Edward Naval base delegation the projects if implemented will total some $3,000,000. The government is trying to get projects under way which are sound and will be suitable for the area.

Mr. MacEachen also met four officials of the National Defence Employees Association.

Tomato Talk

Plan to enjoy those gorgeous beef-steak tomatoes often ... their stay is so short! Thickly sliced and smothered in seasoned sour cream, or heaped with creamy cottage cheese, they're divine! Dipped in seasoned flour and fried quickly in hot butter, they make a super brunch or lunch dish ... especially if you remove them from the frying pan, keeping them hot, and add 2 tablespoons of flour, a pinch of basil and a cup of milk to the pan, stirring until nicely thickened. Serve the fried tomato slices on toast or toasted English muffins, pour the sauce on top and garnish with parsley or chives. Good with bacon strips too. And for something "way out" but good, try this "fruit from the vine" with sugar and thick pouring cream ... for dessert!

Peach Perfection

Did you know that we owe our enjoyment of fresh peaches to China, where this luscious fruit was first cultivated? Have you tried them, poached in a sugar-and-water syrup, then chilled and served over rice custard? Just cook rice as usual, in milk or in water, then add more milk, sugar, almond flavoring and whipped cream. Chill, then serve in sherbets, topped with the fresh peaches-and-syrup mixture. A dessert fit for the gods!

Parade of Peppers

Stuffed green peppers are a popular late summer dish because they're so good with a variety of fillings. Try them stuffed with macaroni and cheese, with creamed salmon, with ground meat, rice and tomato sauce and with corned beef hash. Try them sometime too with a mixture of fresh corn, cut from the cob and mixed into an herb-flavored cream sauce with cubes of ham or luncheon meat.

Peachy for Breakfast

If you're in the happy situation of not quite knowing what to do with extra peaches your family will love them for a breakfast treat. Fresh peach slices will top cereal, hot or cold, with great finesse. Or you might feature peaches and cream with buttered toast, in place of jam or marmalade. Or add the chopped fresh fruit to pancake or waffle batter for a very special treat.
