Poppy Role Has Changed Since Days Of Old China

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — In ancient China, the poppy was the flower of forgetfulness.

Today som 7,000,000 Canadians will wear the poppy as the flower of remembrance.

In Flanders during the Napoleonic wars and again during the First World War, wasted battlefields suddenly bloomed in waving acres of scarlet poppies. Canadian soldier-poet Lt.-Col. John McRae immortalized this phenomenon before he himself was buried in 1918 among the crosses, row on row.

A Mme Guerin of France first suggested the Flanders poppy be used as an emblem of remembrance and so it has been in Canada since 1921.

The Royal Canadian Legion says it does not sell poppies. Rather, it distributes them and asks Canadians to contribute money for needy veterans' welfare. Last year, the Legion took in about $750,000.

USED IN NETHERLANDS

The poppy is also used in the Netherlands to help raise money for war grave pilgrimages by Canadians. There are 6,331 Canadian Second World War graves in the Netherlands.

The First Canadian Army helped to liberate Holland in 1944-45 and the grateful Dutch remember the Canadian dead in all seasons.

There are 19,254 Commonwealth war dead in 480 burial grounds in Holland and since 1947 the Dutch have received into their homes about 34,000 relatives, mostly Britons, making pilgrimages to gravesides.

Three Canadian pilgrimages were made this year. The Dutch held a remembrance service for each. Hundreds of children put flowers on the graves.

After the service at the Canadian War Cemetery at Goresbeek, where 2,500 Canadians lie, one of the pilgrims said: "After 19 years, we finally buried him. I am satisfied that everything that can be done has been done."

Another Canadian father had been considering having his sons's remains brought home. After a few days with the Dutch family who had tended the grave since the war, he said he realized his son was home

At Holten Cemetery. where another 1,400 Canadians are buried, Rev. C. C. Addink told the children standing beside the graves:

"This is fine and solemn. But it must be honest and true, too. You have to know very well what you do. For you would not like these dead, if they could speak, to say 'away with your flowers.'

"No, you will think that these dead, if they could see you, would be glad with these flowers. You have to know that they had to be hard on themselves to gain freedom for us."

Thus Holland keeps Canada in her heart.

Rewriting Demanded Of Paper On Missions

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Prelates of the Vatican ecumenical council have voted for a full rewriting of a schema on missions, despite personal support for the document by Pope Paul.

The vote was 1,601 to 311 to send the schema back to its drafting commission.

The council fathers then returned to discussion of modern world problems. They heard speakers urge strong condemnation of nuclear warfare for any reason.

A Dutch cardinal, Jan Bernard Alfrink, said it was not enough to include only high-fallout nuclear bombs in the council's condemnation. He held that so - called radioactively - clean bombs of controlled yield should also be cited.

The vote ended three days of debate on an abbreviated set of propositions, or statements, on the importance of missionary work in the Roman Catholic church. The pontiff himself was present for the start of debate last Friday in St. Peter's Basilica to show his special interest.

ASK FOR HELP

Auxiliary Bishop Fulton J. Sheen of New York said the practical question for the council is what missions are and not where they are to be found geographically.

Bishop Sheen, who directs Catholic mission fund-raising in the United States, said:

"I have been approached by many needy bishops during all three sessions of the council, bishops who are not in missionary countries juridically speaking," he said. "Is it worthy of the charity of Christ to say I cannot help you beacuse you are not a missionary?"

The council's modern world problems schema, in its section in promoting a lasting peace in the world, denounces as "a ruinous injury" an uncontrolled arms race and says there is not true peace if wars are merely postponed by a parity of weapons. It further urges that nuclear arms be utterly destroyed and banned, with their use in any war regarded as "most wicked."

Cardinal Alfrink led off the debate on war and peace. He said the arms race should be condemned by the council as strenuously as in Pacem in Terris (Peace on Earth), the 1963 encyclical in which Pope John XXIII urged a controlled, simultaneous and reciprocal disarmament.

Auxiliary Bishop Alfred Ancel of Lyon, France, said the council schema has a contradiction in saying defensive warfare is legitimate, yet declaring "the absolute unlawfulness of nuclear warfare of any kind."

"This seems tantamount to saying there can be no lawful defence against nuclear attacks," Bishop Ancel said.

Murder Charge Laid In Nfld.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Kevin O'Neill, 17, has been charged in Magistrate's Court here with capital murder and assault with intent to do bodily harm.

The youth, charged with capital murder in the Sept. 17 beating death of wealthy widow Mrs. Edith Maude Parsons in her fashionable west end home, gave himself up to police late Friday after two teenage girls were assaulted with a soft drink bottle and a steel poker.

He was booked immediately on the assault charge. The capital murder charge came about 24 hours later.

Mrs. Parsons was found the night of Sept. 19 lying in a pool of blood in the front hall of her home. Police said she was beaten to death.

Margaret Walsh, 14, one of the girls assaulted, was taken to hospital with lacerations on her head and hands. Her sister, Marie Walsh, 17, escaped serious injury.

TRAFFIC LOSSES

Almost 33,000 persons have been killed on Canada's highways in the last 10 years, and 870,000 injured.

Opening lead—king of hearts.

Trump control is often the deciding factor in suit contracts. The defenders try. whenever possible, to run declarer out of trumps in order to be able to cash their tricks in side suits, while the declarer at the same time tries to maintain control over trumps so as to withstand this attack upon him.

For example, look at this deal which features a battle over trump control. West leads the king of hearts and continues with the ace. When declarer ruffs, he has four trumps left, but so does West.

If declarer were now to play the ace and another spade, he would lose control over trumps and take a bad beating. West would cash the K-Q and then play a heart. When South ruffed with his last trump, all of West's remaining hearts would become tricks.

To prevent anything like this from happening, South leads the nine of spades, not the ace, at trick three. If West ducks, South makes the contract by cashing the ace and then playing his winners in the side suits.

But let's say that West takes the nine with the queen, East following suit What should West do now?

This is now the crucial spot in the hand, since West's play at this point determines the outcome. With dummy having no more hearts, West might well decide to make a neutral return, such as a diamond or a club. If he did this, declarer would make the contract. South would win the return, play the ten of spades, still keeping control over trumps, and West would then be unable to defeat the contract.

But if West, upon winning the nine with the queen, plays another round of hearts, he beats the contract. The old bugaboo about not giving declarer a ruff and discard does not apply in this case, since it gives the declarer no advantage under the circumstances, and, in fact, is sure to cause him endless pain and suffering. There is no salvation for South.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
