

This is the picture of a man who is healthy, clear-headed, successful and impartial—Lord Herschell, the Ex-Lord Chancellor of England. You may be very sure his blood is pure. The man who suffers from impure blood isn't likely to achieve eminence in any walk of life. You cannot pump impure blood into the brain, and expect the brain to be active and keen. If you feed the brain cells on impure blood, you are sure to have weak sluggish brain cells. If you pump bad blood into the lungs, you will have weak lungs. Pump bad blood into the liver, and the result is torpidity of the liver. Feed the heart on impure blood, and the consequence is a weak heart. Nourish the skin with impure blood, and the result is all manner of unsightly skin diseases.

The best of all known blood purifiers is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It makes the appetite hearty, the digestion perfect, the liver active and fills the arteries with the rich, red blood of health. It is the great blood-maker and flesh-builder. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption. It cures bronchitis, weak lungs, spitting of blood, obstinate coughs and kindred ailments. It gives vigor and health to the muscles and activity to the brain. Thousands have testified to the benefits derived from the use of this wonderful medicine. All medicine stores sell it.

Mrs. Ella Howell, of Derby, Perry Co., Ind., writes: "In the year of 1864, I was taken with stomach trouble—nervous dyspepsia. There was a coldness in my stomach and a weight which seemed like a rock. Everything that I ate gave me great pain; I had a bearing down sensation; was swelled across my stomach; had a ridge around my right side, and in a short time I was bloated. I was treated by three of our best physicians but got no relief. I was so weak I could not walk across the room without assistance. I took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and one bottle of the 'Pleasant Pellets.' I began to improve very fast after the use of a few bottles. It cured me and thank God my cure is permanent."

CHAPTER VII.
And now the distant peafowl lay trampled and despoiled before him, its gray, green and russet repose all in a mellow tangle. Dolbear had told him to penetrate the brambly footpath as far

He lifted the rod for a supreme effort, as the family graveyard if he would start the birds in number. He followed the old man's directions, stepping at the foot of the crumbling brick steps that led up to the elevated inclosure, by which time his enthusiasm was entirely spent and desire fled. It was always so with Adrien; fruitless and indifference went hand in hand.

He flung himself down on the lowest step to the graveyard inclosure. Pale mosses and dark grasses were forcing their way through the crevices of the bricks. Some time or other he would go inside and see what order the graves were in, but not just then. From where he sat he could see how the laurea mundis had grown and spread, making a shadowy arbor over and about the clustering marble stones beneath. Gabriella's was the newest one there. A crumbling brick wall surmounted by a rusty iron railing circled the sacred spot. Creepers of every description twined clinging fingers in the iron tracery. A spray of gaudy nasturtium flowers fell near enough for him to have grasped it if he had so willed.

It was as quiet as Robinson Crusoe's island, not even a mocking bird stirring the branches of the dark leaved laurea mundis. Adrien leaned his gun against the vineclad wall and gave himself up to a rather somber tinted reverie.

Strong Martin intruded into it with exasperating persistency—and—

He took a package of letters from his pocket and passed the superscriptions slowly in review. There was one with unbroken seal. His mail had been handed him by his grandfather with a jocular allusion to this rather strongly scented envelope.

"No use dodging it. It is a violation of the contract, however."

He said this aloud, as he ran his forefinger impatiently under the flap. His face darkened as he read it, and he promptly tore it in half. Short as it was it completed his discomfiture for that day. He laughed unpleasantly and drew his gun toward him.

"Better make wadding of it."
At sight of the drawn ramrod and the white wad of paper disappearing down the black throat of the shotgun, Sarah Jane drew in her lolling red tongue and sprang to her feet. Evidently she had mastered one opinion in her short life and made it securely her own. Guns and birds were the corollary of each other, and her hour for self assertion had arrived.

With the zealous indiscretion of ambitious ignorance she leaped in among the trampled pea vines, and with her slender nose held close to the ground careered wildly over the field, setting at defiance Adrien's harsh demand for her return. If her disobedience had borne no fruit, it might possibly have gone unpunished, but when a promising covey of birds wheeled, startled and terrified, close to Adrien's head and scudded off to take shelter in the more distant cornfield, the measure of his wrath was complete.

Evidently Sarah Jane and he took differing views of the situation. With the triumphant mien of a conqueror who had routed the enemy she came leaping back to his side. Instead of laurels a rod awaited her. Crestfallen, with soft deprecating eyes lifted to the stormy face above her, the setter crouched to receive her first lesson.

quick and fast retir the blows from the ramrod held in Adrien's firm fingers. He had been defied—the Decalogue held no darker crime. Sarah Jane was to receive the overflow of the discontent that had been accumulating all that morning. With one hand he held the silken brown head in a merciless grasp. His handsome face was empurpled with the violence of his rage and the exercise. Sarah Jane's yelps of agony were mingled with his short panting breathings. His strength was almost spent. High in air he lifted the rod for a supreme effort. "One more d—n you, and then perhaps you will know who is master."

Put the rod did not descend. It was caught from his grasp by an invisible hand behind him and a girl's clear voice in denunciation was added to the discord.

TEST THE KIDNEYS

They Are the Great Feeders of Our Bodies—the Purity of the Blood is Dependent on Their Cleansing Powers.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the Only Combined Kidney and Liver Pill—What They Have Accomplished is But a Guarantee of What They Will Do.

There's a time to all, old and young, man or woman, when poor health brings trouble, anxiety, and burdens hard to stand up under, and one's efforts to rid himself or herself seem only to be baffled at every turn, and we are prone to grow discouraged. That is not the time to give up—but the time for action, the time to seek out the seat of the trouble, and act as your best judgment and the experience of others will help you, guarding against mistakes in the treatment adopted for your particular ailment.

I was for over six months troubled with very sharp pains in the region of my kidneys, the spasms lasted for half an hour at a time, and left me with great aching, soreness and pain. I tried many remedies, but they did me no good. I commenced taking Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills according to directions. I had not much faith that they would cure me, but after taking one box I noticed a change for the better. It may seem incredible, but after taking the second box the pains all left me entirely, and I have not had them since.—Amos Carter, Melbourne.

Price 25 cents per box, all dealers.
