Literary Notes.

We are in receipt of Dress, a monthly magazine devoted to the practical and the beautiful in women's and children's clothing, physical culture and kindred subjects. It will not be denied that Dress has a very practical object; and judging by the illustrations and the articles in the number received it is well worthy the study of the ladies of the period. It is published by the Sullivan and Hobron Company, 696-698, Broadway, New York, and edited by Annie Jenness Miller. Subscription price $1.50 per annum. It presents a neat artistic appearance and reflects credit upon its publishers and editor.

"Tieknor's Paper Series" is a happy idea of the publishers, and will be very acceptable to all readers during the summer that is now so close upon us. It includes a number of the most famous and successful of the novels of the past five years,—books like "Guenn," "The Story of a Country Town," "A Nameless Noblemen," and "The Story of Margaret Kent," and others of equal value and merit; and with these come brilliant new works, like "De Montaubans," "The Cruise of a Woman Hater," and the vivid and fascinating Venetian novel, "The House of the Musician," by Virginia W. Johnson, whose "The Neptune Vase" won such great praise a few years ago. Such a group of novels as these titles indicate will be as refreshing as a sea-breeze in summer. They are handsome and shapely volumes, substantially bound in decorated heavy-paper covers. The series for 1887 will include thirteen volumes, appearing one each week during May, June, and July. The retail price is fifty cents each volume, a remarkably low price for such handsomely-printed and made-up copyright books.

No. 8 of this rich and delightful series is "The House of the Musician," by Virginia W. Johnson, author of "The Neptune Vase," etc. This is a rich and entrancing romance of artist-life in Venice, the lovely old city of the Lagoons. This story is published only in "Tieknor's Paper Series." The author has for many years dwelt in Italy, and skilfully reproduces its local color and rare fascination. As a famous critic says: "It is a remarkable and remarkably interesting book. The plot is absorbing; the characters are clearly and strongly drawn; and the descriptions of Venetian scenery, incident, etc., are such as only an observant eye-witness could depict."

THE CENTURY FOR JULY.

In the CENTURY for July the lighter material is of a sparkling out-of-doors, and naturally takes precedence in attractiveness of this season. The opening paper, by John Burroughs, on "Wild-Flowers," is profusely illustrated, and is likely to set many a young woman and summer boarder to botanizing; another, by W. J. Henderson, on "The Sportsman's Music," giving pictures of live game birds and recording the musical notes of their songs, appeals more to the other sex. A third paper, by Talcott Williams, treats of "Animal Locomotion in the Mybridge Photographs," with a lot of drolly fascinating pictures exhibiting in progressive series familiar phenomena not fully seen before in nature—a mule bucking and rearing, pigeons flying, horses galloping and leaping, athletes jumping and throwing, ball-players batting, etc.—a paper which is in the nature of an excursion into a new world. A humorous story, yet not without a serious conclusion, is "Sister Todhunter's Heart," by H. S. Edwards, with attractive genre pictures by Kemble, to which there is a foil in returns to the Norwegian field of "Gunnar" and his other early successes. To these must be added Stockton's "Hundredth Man," by one of the most individual of American fiction-writers.

The Lincoln History closes up the Kansas trouble and discusses their corollary, the "Lincoln-Douglas Debates." Interesting and hitherto unpublished letters by Lincoln and Greeley are given. Bowing with becoming humility like good Americans before the common fetich the humorist, readers who are interested in Lincoln will yet not fail to see how necessary to a knowledge of the President it is to know the political soil and atmosphere which made him what he was. At the same time the conviction that Messrs. Nicolay and Hay are the custodians of much of the most personal and intimate inside history of Lincoln's administration may well stimulate the impatient curiosity of the public. The veteran historian, George Bancroft, adds to the historical value of the number by recounting "An Incident in the Life of John Adams," to which there are added portraits of Adams and Oliver Ellsworth.

The War Series, followed since the start by the closest attention of thousands, commences this month the hundred days of battle in "The Struggle for Atlanta," compactly narrated by General O. O. Howard, with a two-page letter from General Sherman, regarding "The March to the Sea," while in the next number General Joseph E. Johnston, his opponent, is to write of the fight against Sherman. Short communications appear from General Hunt, in reply to General Walker on "The Question of Command on Cemetery Ridge," and from General H. V. Boynton on the late Colonel R. N. Scott and his work on the War Records. "Christian Science" and "Mind Cure," by Dr. Buckley, and "The Potential Energy of Food," by Professor Atwater, are two papers of a suggestive and valuable character by experts in the investigations which they record.

The poetry of the CENTURY embraces from month to month many new contributions and a large range of method. This month it is contributed by Edith M. Thomas, the late E. R. Sill, William H. Hayne, Kate Putnam Osgood, Juliet C. Marsh, William Struthers, the late Sidney Lanier, and Gertrude Hall.

Other subjects discussed in the number are, "A New Era in Our History," "Reform in Municipal Government," "College Expenses," "The Metropolitan Spirit," "Labor and Capital," "Christian Union

St. Peter's and About.

June is dying in the arms of lovely weather. Grass is having a good time, and vegetation in general fully appreciates the time of the year. The weather on the shore, owing to the winds, has not been the most favorable for lobstermen.

Everybody round and about talks jubilee. America is at a discount, and the fourth of July is nowhere. The lower animals, somehow or other have got it into their heads that when man is doing so much extra talking over the arrangement, they have a right to an extra bark. One saucy little pup wore a jubilee ribbon round his neck this morning—in anticipation of the morrow—and it was hard to tell by his capers whether his tail wagged the dog, or the dog wagged the tail. The way that higher part of the animal kingdom called the "gentle sex," sport jubilee brooches, etc., is a caution. Every woman, young and old, feels proud of Victoria the Good, and their leige lords echo the immortal song: "God Save the Queen."

To-day is a holiday of obligation in the Catholic Church, and St. Peter's has had a visitation of Bishops. At High Mass—ten o'clock—Bishop McIntyre was present, a Reverend Father from the neighboring province officiated, and Bishop Rogers occupied the pulpit. The worthy prelate gave a sermon close on an hour and a half in delivery, earnest and eloquent, and much appreciated by those who could hear him.

St. Peter's Church, (Catholic) when finished, is destined to be one of the finest on the Island. The interior is now in the hands of workmen busily preparing it for the finishing touches, and the people feel a just and happy pride in the edifice they are rearing to the glory of God. The parishioners of St. Peter's, one and all, deserve worthy praise for their efforts, and the bestowal by many of them of their time, labor, produce and cash towards this work of faith and love. The chief pastor of such a people is to be congratulated. The Presbyterians have also a handsome house of worship in the village, highly creditable to their good taste and the architect who raised it.

The friends of Mr. D. W. Morrissey, late of St. Peter's, are glad to know that he is doing well in San Francisco, and wish him and his continued prosperity.

Fishing round these quarters is all the rage. St. Peter's, Bay Fortune, Morell and other localities all find their devotees. Trouting is good or bad, just according to the fellows who catch 'em or didn't catch 'em. By the way, what is a 'tramp'! Going fishing yesterday morning, I asked a man if anybody was at the river? "Yes," was the reply; "two or three tramps from town are killing 'em." "Then I make number four," was the rejoinder, but that tramp was a study during the day, and the sun and substance of all the cogitation was, that very few know or seem to know what tramp means. But if the boys from town, young or old, who go fishing are tramps, then for pity sake let me join the noble army of martyrs and sign myself

Another Tramp.

St. Peter's, June 29, 1887.

In Brief. And to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy. Remember: No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

ADVISE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain; and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind. mar17 cod & wky
