Canada Praised By Blind Peer

LONDON (Reuters)—A blind peer, Lord Fraser of Lonsdale, has said here that only Canada of all the Commonwealth countries had kept her pensioners in line with the rising standards of living.

Australia, Britain and New Zealand had not done so. Nor had South Africa, which was out of the Commonwealth, he said.

He and another blind peer, Lord Kenwood, were pressing the government in the House of Lords for major improvements in veterans pensions.

Lord Denham, for the government, said Britain's pensions bill for the two years was still running at more than £100,000,000 a year.
