MARY HAWORTH

Here is Some Defence For Stand-Offishness

Dear Mary Haworth—My concern is for a friend of mine—I'll call her Jean. She is 22, and doesn't have faith or trust in anyone. She seems to live in a world of her own. She isn't co-operative and never voices an opinion.

Her fingertips veil of silk illusion was held in place by a tiara of simulated pearls and iridescent sequins. The bride's only jewellery was an heirloom pendant of chipped diamonds. She carried a bouquet of white carnations centered with a white and mauve orchard.

The bride's only attendant Miss Elsie Renneberg, Moosomin, Saskatchewan wore a waltz length gown of blue green chiffon over tulle and silk taffet with matching mittens and a tiara of simulated pearls and iridescent sequins. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations and fern.

The groom was attended by Cpl. Keith Flett, R.C.A.F. Station, Cranberry, Portage, Manitoba.

The usher was Mr. Gerald Coody, Winnipeg (formerly of P.E.I.) The organist was Mr. William Mathews, Winnipeg.

The mother of the bride chose for her daughter's wedding a gown of rosebud lace over satin with a space blue chiffon velvet picture hat with gloves to match. Her corsage was salmon pink rosebuds and plucked carnations.

The groom's father, who was unable to attend, was represented by Mr. Alfred MacDonald, Winnipeg, formerly of Monticello, P.E.I.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Peggy's Pantry. The bride's table, nicely decorated with summer flowers and lighted candles, was centered with a two tier wedding cake topped with pink rosebuds and fern.

During the reception Mr. Lloyd MacDonald played beautiful back ground music, appropriate for the occasion.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Keith Flett and fittingly responded to by the groom.

Maybe her streak of self-reliance and self-containment expresses strength of character and resoluteness of purpose that will make her a winner in life, eventually.

The world is crammed with infinite variety, in all the strata of growth it contains. And, on the human level, lots of solitary souls have made fine contributions in their different ways. Einstein and Edison, of recent memory, weren't exactly folksy types.

And, going back to ancient history, there was the sainted anchorite—Syltites by name—who escaped from people, to dwell atop a pillar in the desert. As if to emphasize that "one plus God" is adequate company if one's inclination leads in that direction.

"NECESSARY 'LONERS'"

Nearly all creative personalities are "loners" by necessity. You cannot catch hold of original ideas and develop them, and bring to fulfillment the new work they ordain, if you are a camp follower of group sociability—with your mental latch-string always out to all-and-sundry who want to "talk."

So, I repeat, don't take for granted that Jean is on the wrong track for her—or on the downgrade, necessarily—simply because she is obstinately different from the so-called common herd. However, on the other hand, tell Jean for me that she ought
