

MIRIAM TOLBERT.

She Could not Yield to the Wrong.

It was Major Dukeheart who asked this question, laying one hand on Miriam's arm, while he held in the other a little crystal goblet filled with sparkling wine. Miriam turned and looked up and her dove eyes lit. The handsome, pleasant face of the tall soldier was growing very dear to her girlish heart, and the touch of his hand on her arm made all her pulses bound and flutter.

'I would like to oblige you,' she said, with her sweet, winning smile, 'but there is a matter of right and wrong involved, you see, and I am very sure you would not desire me to do wrong, Major Dukeheart.'

'Dear me, Miss Tolbert,' began the major, feeling sure of winning his wager but the touch of her fingers on his hand silenced him and set his heart to thumping like a trip-hammer.

'Let me take the glass,' she said persuasively; 'we will not drink the poison which has driven so many souls to ruin, and has broken so many fond women's hearts. I will throw it out of the window and we'll eat as many philopenas as you please. I've a pocket full of almonds, and you'll find them much nicer than this.'

The Major let her take it. It seemed to him that he could not have refused her if his life depended on it.

She turned to the open window and tossed out the sparkling wine. 'There, now,' she said, 'oh, how I wish I could empty the whole world of the curse, as I have emptied this one glass. Now, major, linking one white hand in his arm, and putting the other in her pocket, 'I am ready for philopena. See what large almonds; every shell contains a double nut.'

The major ate the philopena and lost his heart irretrievably at one and the same time. She was so fair, so sweet, so womanly and winning, he had no power, and indeed, no inclination to resist her. And that pretty blue ribbon on the shoulder of her white dress was so becoming.

Major Dukeheart forgot his, wagger, everything but the lovely eyes and smiling girlish face beside him, and before the evening was over he pepped the question.

Miriam, sitting under the trailing vines, with the moonlight on her fair young face, listened to his ardent words with downcast eyes and blushing cheeks.

'Yes, I love you,' she answered frankly, when he had finished. 'I am sure that I shall never love any one else half so well.'

The major leaped to his feet, with a cry of rapture, and would have caught her to his breast but she drew back. 'No, no,' she said, 'you must hear me out. I love you, as I have said, but I cannot consent to become your wife unless you join my order, and touching the blue knot upon her shoulder, 'I believe in the temperance reform, and intend to labor to promote it as long as I live. A husband and wife to be truly happy, must be of one heart and mind. I cannot come over to your way, Major, so if you really are in earnest, you must come over to mine.' The young man was a little startled at this firm stand on the part of such a yielding, tender, womanly little creature. He stood irresolute, a hot flush rising to his cheeks.

'I'm not a drunkard,' he began, stammering and embarrassed; 'there is no need of all this.'

Fever and Ague.

Are you troubled with Ague, Chills and Fever, Bilious Fever, Remittent or Intermittent fever, Night Sweats or any disease that comes from Malaria or disordered Liver and Hot Suns? If so, procure a bottle of Green's Ague Conqueror, which is an acetic extract of strong tonic roots, combined with Sulphate of Magnesia, etc., and positively contains no Quinine, Arsenic or other poisons. It purifies the blood, cleanses the liver, spleen and other secretive organs so effectually that the chills will not return. We have never found any case of Fever and Ague it will not cure. Price 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. One large bottle has cured as many as five in one family. Sold by all druggists and dealers everywhere.

REMARKABLE CURE OF AN INFLAMED TEARDUCT OR PASSAGE TO THE EYE, WITHOUT AN OPERATION.—Mrs. Gibson, who has a large and extensive confectionery and candy store at No. 25 East 42nd street, near the Grand Central Depot, was about to have a silver tube inserted in the tear passage of her left eye. The enlargement and inflammation was very great. Before submitting to the operation I tried Dr. Giles' Lintment and rubbed it carefully over the inflamed duct. The inflammation disappeared, the passage became clear, and I was, through its power, able to do without a surgical operation. Also took the Lintment internally, a teaspoonful three times a day, in a wine-glass of water. Giles' Pills cure headache. Sold by W. R. Watson.
