

Wheat Purchase By Chinese Provides Boost To Economy

By JAMES NELSON
OTTAWA (CP) — Communist China's commitment to buy 50 per cent more Canadian wheat in the next three years that originally agreed adds an all-persuasive flip to the economy, particularly in Western Canada, government economists said here.

China has agreed to buy a minimum of 168,000,000 bushels and possibly as much as 280,000,000 bushels. If China buys the maximum it means adding about $550,000,000 to the stream in Canada during the three-year term of the agreement starting Aug. 1. These new minimum and maximum figures announced Tuesday by Finance Minister

Sharp and the Canadian wheat board represent 5-per-cent increases in the earlier amounts for which Canada and China signed agreements. A finance department source said that not only did the agreement in Canada's balance of payments, but it will sustain a higher level of economic activity generally in Western Canada.

RAILWAYS CONSULTED
Except for the ever-present fear that western wheat farmers may suffer a serious crop failure, the main bottleneck in fulfilling the contract commitment may be in Canada's transportation facilities. It is understood the CNR and CPR have been consulted by the government on the big problem of moving grain to export positions. Another source here said port facilities in general and grain-handling facilities in particular on the West Coast need to be enlarged. It is felt here that quite apart from wheat sales to China, Canada's trans-Pacific trade likely will grow markedly in the years ahead.

The wheat sales to China come at a time when Canada is selling large amounts to Russia and Eastern European countries. The current Russian contract for 1965-66 is for 186,600,000 bushels, far in excess of the commitments made under a three-year agreement expiring this month. The agreement is likely to be carried on.

Arbitrator Has Ruled CNR Violated Labor Contract

OTTAWA (CP) — An arbitrator has ruled that the CNR violated a labor contract last December when it applied a federal labor code provision to shift Christmas and New Year's holiday observances to Dec. 27 and Jan. 3.

The Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC) received formal notice that its claims against the railway for holiday overtime pay to about 7,000 members have been upheld. A union spokesman said it will mean an estimated $250,000 for the workers involved and is the largest single arbitration award ever made in Canada.

The complicated case, involving differences between the labor code and the CBRT's contract with the railway was heard in Montreal last week by J. A. Hanrahan, sole arbitrator in railway contract grievances. Both Christmas and New Year's fell on Saturday last winter. The CNR, citing a section of the new federal labor code, said it would give employees the holidays on the following Monday.

Other railway unions were not involved in the case. Practically all of them signed an agreement with the CNR and CPR last Dec. 16 to abide by the labor code holiday provisions. Only the CBRT, which has no members in CPR service, held out.
