A SNAKE BITE.

Its Deadliness Due to the Poison Containing Living Germs.

The heads of most of the venomous snakes, including the "rattlers," bulge just beyond the neck. Without exception they have fangs, either always erect or raised and laid back at will. These fangs are long, sharp-pointed teeth, with a hollow groove running their entire length. At the root of each fang is a little bag of poison. When the snake bites the motion presses the poison sac, and its contents flow down through the hollow in the tooth into the puncture or wound. The harmless little forked tongue is often spoken of by the uninformed as the snake's "stinger." Now, there is no propriety in the name, as the poisonous snakes do not sting, but bite their victims. There is no creature, even if brought from foreign countries where "rattlers" do not exist, but will halt and tremble at the first warning sound of the rattle.

Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, with others, has been making experiments with the venom of different serpents. He has found that, aside from its poisoning qualities, it contains living germs, which have the power of increasing enormously fast. So, you see, when an animal is bitten these tiny bits of life entering with the poison cause harmful action to begin almost at once. Dr. Mitchell has found that the nervous centre controlling the act of striking seems to be in the spinal cord, for if he cut off a snake's head and then pinched its tail, the stump of its neck turned back and would have struck his hand had he been bold enough to hold it still.—St. Nicholas.

Turkish Great Guns.

In 1478 Mohammed II., in forming the siege of Scutari, in Albania, employed fourteen heavy bombards, the lightest of which threw a stone shot of three hundred and seventy pounds' weight, two sent shots of five hundred pounds, two of seven hundred and fifty pounds, two of eight hundred and fifty pounds, one of twelve hundred pounds, five of fifteen, and one of the enormous weight of sixteen hundred and forty pounds, enormous even in these days, for the only guns whose shot exceeds the heaviest of these are our eighty-ton guns, throwing a seventeen-hundred-pound projectile, our one-hundred-ton throwing one of two thousand pounds, and the one-hundred-and-ten-ton throwing an eighteen-hundred-pound shot with a high velocity. The stone shot of Mohammed's guns varied between twenty and thirty-two inches in diameter, about the same height as a dining-table; twenty-five hundred and thirty-four of them were fired on this occasion, weighing, according to a calculation of Gen. Lefroy's, about one thousand tons, and were cut out of the solid rock on the spot. Assuming twenty-four inches as the average diameter of the shot fired at this siege, the total area of the surface dressed was nearly thirty-two thousand square feet. At this siege the weight of the powder fired is estimated by Gen. Lefroy to have been two hundred and fifty tons. At the siege of Rhodes, in 1480, Mohammed caused sixteen basilisks, or double cannon, to be cast on the spot, throwing balls two to three feet in diameter.—Chamber's Journal.

Ancient Words.

Among the words many people think antiquated, that are in fact new and most of them American, is curlicue, which has been traced back no further than 1858 in an American publication; while cyclone is older than has been generally supposed, an example of its present use being found in 1848. Kane, the explorer, wrote it quite as correctly "cyclome," and according to accepted authority the y in it should be short, notwithstanding that it is generally pronounced long. "Crank" is another Americanism, with a long history. In the year 1,000 it was a handle or treadle to turn a revolving axis. In early German and Dutch it meant by derivation a person easily twisted or revolved, a weak creature. Milton spoke of quips and cranks, fanciful turns of speech. By the middle of this century it had come to mean a twist of the mind. From the twist itself it became in American slang the person whose mind had become twisted. The sense of monomaniac, in which it is admitted since the trial of Guiteau into dictionaries, is probably a growth from the machine used in prison by which convicts were compelled to turn a revolving disk under regular pressure a number of times every day, gradually breaking their mental force down by its exhaustive persistence in a single direction.

The Swiss Good-Night.

Among the lofty mountains and elevated valleys of Switzerland, the Alpine horn has another use beside that of sounding the far famed Hanz des Vaches or Cow Song, and this is of a very solemn and impressive nature.

When the sun has set in the valleys, and the snowy summits of the mountains gleam with the golden light, the herdsman, who dwells upon the highest inhabited spot, takes his horn, and pronounces clearly and loudly through it as through a speaking trumpet, "Praise the Lord God!" As soon as the sound is heard by the neighboring herdsmen, they issue from their huts, take their Alpine horns and repeat the same words. This frequently lasts a quarter of an hour, and the call resounds from all the mountains and rocky cliffs around.

All the herdsmen kneel and pray with uncovered heads.

In the meantime it has become quite dark. "Good night!" at last calls the highest herdsman through his horn. "Good-night!" again resounds from all the mountains, the horns of the herdsmen and rocky cliffs. The mountaineers then retire to their dwellings and to rest.

The Educated Hoosier Cockroach.

While a gentleman was at his office desk a day or two ago one of these disreputable insects ran across the paper on which he was writing. He flipped it against the wall with his finger and it bounded back on the desk, lighting upon its back. It remained motionless for some time, until it recovered from the shock, and then endeavored to get upon its feet again, but in vain. Smaller roaches passed by their prostrate brother, without noticing it, but a larger one came along pretty soon, stopped, went over to the one that lay upon its back, straddled across it, and, giving it a quick jerk with its forelegs, landed it deftly upon its feet, and the two disappeared together over the edge of the desk.—Indianapolis News.

ALL THREE CURED.

Neil McKechnie, with his wife and mother-in-law Cured of Constipation by Dodd's Kidney Pills—These Pills better Than Ordinary Cathartics.

TORONTO, Feb. 19.—Neil McKechnie, a popular barber of this city, has been a sufferer from chronic constipation for years. He used Dodd's Kidney Pills and not only obtained immediate relief, but a permanent cure. His wife and mother-in-law were similarly afflicted, and used these pills with the same good result. Ordinary cathartics give only temporary relief and leave the patient worse than before using them. While Dodd's Kidney Pills are not cathartics, their peculiar action on the liver and kidneys is such that the causes of constipation are permanently removed. These pills are manufactured by Dr. L. A. Smith & Co., Toronto, and are sold by all dealers, or will be mailed on receipt of price, fifty cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

ON THE DEATH OF MY DEAR MOTHER, MRS. CHAS. CRASWELL, WHO DIED AT RUSTICO, ON DEC. 27TH.

It was only the footsteps of angels
That silently entered our door,
And took from our home a dear mother
To dwell on that beautiful shore.

Only six days of weakness and pain,
And then the dear form was at rest,
While the soul of our mother went upward
To dwell with the pure and the blest.

Only a touch soft and loving,
Then angels came in at the door
And silently took our dear mother
To dwell on that radiant shore.

It was only a gleam of bright glory
That came with our dead mother's smile
When she went up with the angels
To those mansions beyond the skies.

We watched her dying through the day,
She breathed so soft and low,
And after hours of weary waiting,
With a smile she passed away.

My dearest mother now is gone,
Her voice no more on earth I'll hear;
No more I'll gaze on that dear face
Now pale as marble, silent and cold.

I miss the kind and loving mother,
I see her vacant chair,
But she is waiting for me in that heavenly home
Which I am drawing near.

In the home of the sweet singing angels,
By the side of the clear jasper sea,
In the bright world of love she is waiting
And praying and watching for me.
