SENATOR PROWSE SPEAKS AGAIN

A Warning to the Senators.

A Word About an Important Question.

(From the Senate Hansard.)

Hon. Mr. Prowse—Before taking a seat in this Chamber, and before receiving my appointment to the Senate, I was led to believe that the hon. gentlemen composing this body were gentlemen who were imbued with a high sense of the important position they occupy; that they are not responsible like gentlemen who occupy seats in another place—not directly responsible to the people—but were chosen as men who would be responsible to a higher authority, the best interests of their country and their own consciences. Since coming here I have been impressed with the idea that the deliberations of this hon. House are not meeting the expectations of the people, and I am to some extent disappointed. My experience since I came to the Senate has been that whenever any important question was proposed which would be worthy of consideration in this Chamber for a week, it was passed over in a few minutes. I refer to two of these in particular—one, the question introduced by the hon. gentleman from Calgary in reference to immigration, which is one of the most important questions that could be considered by this Chamber or by any other body, in the present condition of the Dominion. It was passed over with one or two speeches. Then there was the very important question, perhaps not second to the first one in importance, introduced by the hon. gentleman from Manitoba (Mr. Boulton) in reference to Imperial Federation, a question on which I thought the matured minds of the older senators in this House would have spent some time in expressing their views fully; yet it was passed over, apparently with no other object than to adjourn the House and have as few speeches as possible. I find also that when an hon. member rises in his place to address the House he is very often interrupted by conversations and interjections which render it very unpleasant for him to proceed with the remarks he has to make. When this Dominion was first confederated we never heard a word about doing away with the Senate. The constitution was framed by delegates appointed for that purpose and it was confirmed by every Province in the Dominion, and that constitution provided that we should have a House of Commons and a Senate, and the sentiment was never expressed that we could do without an Upper Chamber. But what do we find to-day? We find an agitation throughout the country in favor of doing away with the Senate altogether, and in some quarters in favor of an elective Senate. What are the causes? I maintain it is due to the fact that members of this House have not shown themselves equal to the responsibilities imposed upon them.

Some Hon. Gentlemen—No! No! No!

Hon. Mr. Prowse—That is, in my humble opinion, the cause, and if this Chamber gets into disrepute with the people of the Provinces, the senators themselves are alone responsible for it. I shall feel it my duty, when the usefulness of this Chamber is gone, to be prepared to vote for its abolition. But I contend that its usefulness is not gone. I contend that it is one of the best guarantees we have against hasty legislation in another place, and if hon. gentlemen will only apply themselves to the duties devolving upon them as senators, they will make of this Chamber an institution in which the people throughout the Dominion will have full confidence. I understand that my hon. friend from Alberta (Mr. Howland) has a question to bring before this House which demands most careful consideration, I might almost say it is whether Prince Edward Island really belongs to this Confederation or not—whether the Terms of Union which were promised us some seventeen years ago have ever been fulfilled. This question, I take it, demands from the Senate very careful, long and continued deliberation and discussion; and other questions might be introduced which would be useful to the country and to the credit of the Senate, if sufficient time and attention were given to them.

General Wolfe's Pistols.

A GENTLEMAN NOW IN WINNIPEG HAS THE PISTOLS CARRIED BY WOLFE WHEN HE FELL AT QUEBEC.

The Winnipeg Free Press, of the 26th ult., says: Mr. James E. Welsh, of Charlottetown, P. E. I., is staying at the Leland with his family. Mr. Welsh has the pistols—two most interesting relics, which are, in a way, connected with the history of Canada. These relics are two large flint-lock pistols which General Wolfe held in his hand when he was shot at Quebec. They are ancient-looking weapons, and seem of very rude construction when compared with the firearms of the present day. The pistols came into Mr. Welsh's possession through his wife, who inherited them from her ancestors. The pistols were presented by Wolfe when he was shot, to Lieutenant Holland, a young soldier who was standing by him at the time. Holland was an ancestor of Mrs. Welsh's, and the pistols have always remained in the family. Mr. Welsh has been offered $5,000 for the weapons by a London historical society, but would not part with them, as they were willed to his little son. They are still in their original case, and bear an inscription which bears genuineness.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Misrepresentation Again.

SIR,—In last Thursday's Patriot I see that our mis-representative over the signature of "Expectant" is still insinuating that there is something wrong about Souris Breakwater affairs. If wrong, as a public man he is bound to investigate them. Let him call for a committee, now that he is in Ottawa, to investigate his charges. I challenge him to do so. He will not, but will continue to talk on. He must remember, however, that his talk is calculated to injure his constituents, and that if no money be expended on the breakwater this year they may justly blame him and no one else.

He questions my veracity as to the amount expended on the work last year, and publishes an extract from the Auditor General's report for the year ending 30th June, 1889. He must be blunt if he does not know that the labor performed last year was done after the 30th June. He has been looking up the account for the year before last, I imagine, and either does not know the difference, or is wilfully trying to mislead the public. I repeat what I said in my former letter, viz.: that only a little over one fourth of the amount named by Dr. McIntyre was expended on the breakwater last year.

In his fault-finding, he thinks I was paid too much for my services as foreman. I was only paid what foremen get in other parts of the Dominion, and not one cent more. It would seem that he wishes to depreciate P. E. Island workman. As foreman, I performed my duties faithfully and to the satisfaction of the engineer in charge. The work done has stood the test of the severest storms, which is more than can be said of the work done under Grit supervision.

But why should he raise such a cry over the little amount I have received? He made far more out of the breakwater than ever I did. To say nothing of the contract under Wilson, Taylor, Campion & Co., his land damages alone amounted to more than I ever got. Why, to hear Dr. McIntyre talk, some might be led to believe that he worked for the country for nothing and found himself. He begrudges me my day's wages while he is pocketing over twelve dollars a day for doing nothing. He sneers at a poor man, now that he has made his pile out of politics. An office holder under the Local Government, he pocketed thousands. From local and Dominion he has piled up over twenty thousand dollars since he got into politics. A snug little sum, this, and still he complains if a few hundred dollars are spent among laboring men,—many of them his former supporters.

In concluding his letter, he endeavors to throw suspicion upon another item not named in his former charges. "Hardware and other supplies" shocks him very much. I may tell him that the hardware, etc., was the iron used in the work. I did not do as was done when the work was building under Grit managers, depend upon frozen earth instead of stone for ballast, nor upon three inch instead of three foot bolts to keep it together. I purchased the material and had the work done according to my instructions, and anyone who visited the breakwater can see for himself that the repairs have been done in a workmanlike manner.

I would say in closing that every dollar I was authorized to spend was spent in a judicious manner on the work. It is certainly a very small piece of business on the part of my assailant to try to injure me, simply because I differ from him in politics.

JOHN CANTWELL.
Souris West, April 4, 1890.

The Trot at Cardigan.

SIR,—In last week's EXAMINER I noticed what purports to be a report of the races which came off at Cardigan on March 20th, but which for some reason I do not understand, misrepresents the three minute race. It may be the youngster from Rosneath trotted a little too fast to fit a report which was manufactured to suit Cardigan. After stating Piolotta captured three first heats, the report goes on to say: Bobadallah took second heat, but was beaten by McCormack's Frank in second and third heats. Corrected it reads thus:

Geo B. Aitken's Piolotta..... 1 1 1
O. S. Gordon's Bobadallah..... 3 2 2
F. McCormack's Frank..... 2 3 3

With intelligent judges this would have concluded the race and given Bobadallah second place.
Bob.

[The above was intended for last week's issue of THE EXAMINER.]

News Notes.

Dom Pedro has refused to accept the proceeds of the forced sale of his Brazilian property ordered by the provisional government.

As a result of experiments made lately in army manoeuvres in France with smokeless powder, it is thought the traditional red trousers of the French infantry will be discarded, as they furnish too plain a mark for an enemy.

A writer in the Boston Transcript mentions a practice in the big shops of that city that may well provoke the cry, alas for the rarity of Christian charity under the sun. Every holiday is deducted from the pay of the cash girls and errand girls, and for every fifteen minutes lost by the twelve-year-old employees ten cents is deducted from their little salary. The Boston practice substantially prevails in many other cities, and suggests a condition of things which, however difficult to remedy, is little better than slavery.
