ELLEN'S DIARY
High In Willow Tree A Woodpecker Lunches

Now that fields bare, harvests having been for the most part gathered, we on these farms catch intriguing glimpses of wildlings of fur and feathers, our permanent guests it may be, or perhpas only passers-by "Oh me, oh my!" the one miss of the place gasped, stopping the machine she operated, as she approached the lane-bridge, eastward from Alderlea the other evening." Do you see what I see" she queried.

In the machine's lights, a fury figure questioned our passage.

"Is it a —?" we asked.

"What else wears stripes?" she giggled nervously.

We laughed, recalling a parting of the past at the crossroads. there where ours and another byroad meet at the Highway. The spring was come then. The fragrance of fresh stirred earth, the new of the grass and the leaves bespoke the season at hand. There were stars, high and far away — and we remembered, the frogs were playing an old refrain in Kristy's Pond over the fields. And we, come from some forgathering of women in the community were parting with another farmwife from the road which angles this. It was a choice night, but now that lights were going out round about it, it inclined to be lonely. And because horses had been busy that day at the cropping, both of us were, naturally in flock.

We looked up along the road she must follow. It was shadowed then with trees. Ours in those years uncluttered with machines, was for us at any hour only a delightful trail. Once we entered it, it was as though we stepped on some loved path of our farm. By the few houses, past Kristy's Pond, the groves and the house on the hill, then down the decline past the mill and along the dam, and up the rise of front meadow, and we would be at home! And after all it was only a mile. "You aren't by any chance afraid to go in your road alone?" we inquired of the smallish woman. "Afraid!" she exclaimed with a chuckle. "I'm, as old Mr. — used to say 'afraid of no man, and very few women'! No it's not humans — nor the thought of ghosts that scares me, but I am dreadfully afraid that on one of my night-strolls, I shall stumble over a skunk!"

It was with relief we saw the little animal move away from the path of our machine the other evening, and without incident, disappear in the sedges by the streamside.

It was a red-crowned woodpecker who charmed Alex this afternoon, one who tapped away on the golden willow, a great tree, set in the yard, not far from the eastern windows of the kitchen. After school, it was, when the day was spending away toward sunset.

We watched at a window, the bird sounding for his supper in the high branches. And then suddenly beside us, Alex tensed. A spring-kitten, now a handsome golden fellow, was commencing to climb the tree. Up, he went, stealthily stalking the unsuspecting bird.

"Dear me, I must go and warn that woodpecker!" Alex exclaimed hurrying to the door "he doesn't know what danger he's in!"

Presently there was a startled flutter of wings. And a scolded kit-cat descended quickly to the yard.

"Turn on that radio, Ellen" James bids us, pouring himself a glass of milk at the refrigerator door, which with a molasses cookie or more will make his before-bedtime bite, "and let's hear what, in the way of weather, is in the stars for tomorrow

Until tomorrow — — Diary— Good-night.....

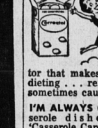
MONTREAL, October 17th — Do yourself a favour by buying a Canada Savings Bond at the BANK OF MONTREAL. Each year I buy a bond on the instalment plan . . . and I've never regretted it . . . far from it! You see, you can buy Canada Savings Bonds at the B of M outright or for as little as 5% down—only $2.50 for a $50 bond—with the balance to be paid in eleven equal monthly instalments. You receive an excellent return on your money, and, of equal importance, your government guarantees that you can cash your Canada Savings Bonds at face value, at any time. That's why I urge you to buy a Canada Savings Bond (or bonds) now, at your nearest branch of "My Bank".

HERE'S AN INEXPENSIVE, right-at-home way to have one of the most luxurious all-over beauty treatments I know! . . . simply step into a CALGON BOUQUET bath—and relax. You see, Calgon Bouquet is a delightfully scented water conditioner that makes bath water silky-soft and helps your soap to lather more easily. You leave your Calgon Bouquet bath feeling simply wonderful . . . relaxed, refreshed and with tensions all gone, and there's never a bath-tub ring! Use Calgon Bouquet in your shampoo, too . . . one teaspoonful in the wash water helps sudsing and one teaspoonful in the first rinse is an extra beauty-bonus for your hair.

HOW WONDERFUL TO FEEL WONDERFUL! Life takes on a rosy glow and daily chores get done like magic. This is just the happy kind of difference that CORRECTOL can make in your life! Yes, Correctol, a laxative made specially for we women, is one of the best aids to regularity that I know. Made by Pharmaco (Canada) Ltd., it's so mild it's recommended even after childbirth. That's because it contains a non-laxative regulator that makes its action prompt yet unhurried. And if you're dieting . . . remember that Correctol helps prevent constipation sometimes caused by dieting.



I'M ALWAYS ON THE LOOKOUT for tasty, quick-and-easy casserole dishes and here's one, called 'Casserole Capri' that's sure to please your family. It stars Monarch TEA-BISK topping . . . light and golden, Tea-Bisk topping always gets the praise it deserves . . . yet is so quick and easy to make. Try it in this recipe:

CASSEROLE CAPRI

In a 1½ quart casserole combine 1 tin of condensed vegetable soup, 1 15-ounce tin of cut green beans (drained) and 1 lb. of ground-beef hamburger which has been panfried until lightly browned. Add salt and pepper to taste. Cover with Tea-Bisk topping following the easy recipe on Monarch Tea-Bisk package. Bake in 450 degree oven 10 to 12 minutes or until golden brown. Serves 4 to 6.

DAY-IN, DAY-OUT COOKING CAN BE MONOTONOUS . . . or it can be exciting! One of my favourite ways to add excitement to my cooking is to experiment with spices, particularly mustard. One of the most versatile of spices, mustard adds dash to all kinds of foods . . . meats, fish, soups and salads. For example, in this turkey-minded month of October — try this: Blend soft butter, garlic salt and dry mustard to make a paste, then brush it over turkey before roasting. That turkey almost talks! There are so many ways to use dry mustard in cooking, I'm sure you'll discover many seasoning tricks of your own. And to be sure of exactly the right, uniform strength and flavour, use COLMAN'S DRY MUSTARD!

MAKE THE MOST OF ANY MINCED STEAK or hamburger dish with FRENCH'S HAMBURGER LIFT.

I always use this all-in-one seasoning in my meatloaves and hamburgers . . . and always get a thrill from the spectacular results! You see, Hamburger Lift is a skilful blend of spices, herbs and other seasonings — plus a special ingredient to make hamburgers and meatballs extra plump and juicy. Do try French's Hamburger Lift . . . there are recipes on the package and three envelopes inside, with enough Lift in each envelope for one pound of meat. French's Hamburger Lift, at just pennies a serving, makes any 'burger' the talk of the table!
