An English Physician

from the Tight Little Island. HE IS PLEASED WITH CANADA. Talks About Canadian People.

He Says We Have Too Many Pale and Half-Dead Women.

His Experience With Paine's Celery Compound.

Thinks it is the Right Medicine for Building Up Weak and Sickly Girls and Women.

In the early part of January an English physician of high standing and considerable wealth visited the principal cities and towns of Canada, after a tour in the United States.

He was exceedingly well pleased with what he saw of the Dominion, and spoke in glowing terms of the good nature and hospitality of our people.

When asked what he thought of Canadian girls from a physiological point of view, he replied: "Taken as a whole you have a fine, sturdy population; but there is room for improvement. You have splendid specimens of manhood; your women generally look healthy and vigorous, but you have too many who are pale, listless and half-dead looking, such as I have met in the United States."

"Oh, yes! I know something about Paine's Celery Compound; I have used it occasionally myself, and know of its being used by many of the best physicians in England, and it has produced very satisfactory and pleasing results. From what I know of the formula of Paine's Celery Compound I have no hesitation in recommending it in cases of general debility, dyspepsia, nervous affections, kidney and liver complaints and general weakness."

"Your pale, weak and half-dead women and girls have a true, life-building agent in Paine's Celery Compound. There is no other preparation I know of that is so well adapted for the troubles of weak females."

"I am pleased to know that Paine's Celery Compound is so popular in your midst; it really deserves every line of praise now received from the public."

MAKING LOVE MATCHES

AN EXPERIENCED WOMAN TELLS HOW IT IS ACCOMPLISHED. The Surroundings Have Much to Do With Results—Match-Makers Must Know How to Secure Good Effects in Partners—An Incident From Life.

Women are born match-makers. This characteristic is in many a positive position, like unto the craze for five o'clock teas, Russian cigarettes and other oddities. Some times the match-maker shows a total lack of discretion in the selections that she makes, giving outsiders a wild desire to incorporate her in a permanent asylum for weak-minded females.

But these are exceptions, for the woman of society, whose personality has brought her into prominence, has sufficient tact and knowledge of human nature to show her who shall meet with a successful result.

Matchmaking is the easiest sort of thing if you just know how, as it is simply a case of propinquity—continued association with the charming surroundings in which Cupid so delights to revel.

It is impossible for a worthy chaperon of any perception at all to do aught but match make at a summer resort as the sun not to shine when the clouds have rolled away.

Last summer at one of the loveliest and most picturesque lakes in the Northwest, I dived for many long weeks, rocking the boats to and fro, and all were glad except for the lack of a scheme. So I planned to do a little unselfish matchmaking. The first thing I did was to send this note:

"My Dear Mr. Spire—Do come down for a stay of next Sunday. I am sure you will find the usefulness of femininity up to date, but I promise you a cordial welcome and a most enjoyable introduction to my little friend, who is a visitor at my home for the day. I am sure that no business affairs will cause you to forget the little jaunt, I am yours most sincerely, MARY WAX."

A few short hours and this telegram came: "Will be with you early Sunday morning."

On my way to service that day I said: "Well, Francis, it is really true you were overcoming that old love worry which has lasted you two years."

"I have entirely recovered," he said, "but women are not at all unhelpful to me, strange as it may seem."

With a quiet smile, I determined otherwise. Lunch over, I saw Gwendolene, who had been spending the night at my house, and I introduced her to my little friend, who is a visitor at my home for the day. I am sure that no business affairs will cause you to forget the little jaunt, I am yours most sincerely, MARY WAX."

Any man can marry the woman of his choice if he has perseverance. This is a sweeping assertion, but one made by a man who knows. The first thing to be done is to secure the consent and cooperation of a woman friend. The cozy nooks now arranged in so many homes where a soft light blends dreamily with the partly closed portiers, the low rockers drawn up in front of an open fire, while the warm fur rug just adds the necessary touch of comfort—all these are responsible for much of the havoc Cupid is blamed for. Man is influenced by the poetry of his surroundings.

If it is a dangerous passion that makes unless positively certain of the thoughts, aspirations and temperament of the man and woman one brings together. Even then someone may in the future cordially detest you for your interest in his or her matrimonial affairs. But, perhaps, it is the excitement and delightful uncertainty inside of life that makes every woman a born match-maker.—MARY WAX, in St. Louis Republic.

Chief sermon on Human Nature. "It has always been my aim in life," said the dark-skinned man, "in all my business transactions to seek the happiness of the other party rather than my own."

"What is your business?" asked the man with the long nose. "I am a smuggler; that is to say, I sell domestic goods by convincing my customers that they were smuggled."

Scrofula in the Neck—Bunches All Gone Now.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass. 'Gentlemen—I feel that I cannot say enough in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla. For five years I have been troubled with scrofula in my neck and throat. Several kinds of medicines which I tried did not do me any good, and when I commenced to take Hood's Sarsaparilla these were large bunches on my neck so sore that I could not bear the slightest touch. When I had taken one bottle of this medicine, the sores had gone, and before I had finished the second the bunches had entirely disappeared.' BLANCHETTE ATWOOD, Bangorville, Maine.
