MR. AND MRS. D. R. MACKAY

Pretty Autumn Wedding Held In Trinity Church

A very pretty autumn wedding was solemnized in Trinity United Church, Charlottetown on Saturday, October 19th, 1957, at 3.00 p.m., when the Rev. Howard Christie united in marriage Marina Joyce, daughter of Mrs. Gordon Murray and the late Mr. Murray of Brackley Beach to Donald Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cranford MacKay, Stanley Bridge, in a double-ring ceremony. Mr. Royston Mugford was organist for the occasion and Miss Joyce MacCallum redered "I'll Walk Beside You" before the ceremony and "Because" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Blythe, looked lovely in a floor length gown of Chantilly lace over taffeta, fitted bodice and full bouffant skirt, accented by two panels of lace flowing from the "V" neckline at the back. The long sleeves tapered to a point over the hands. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a Juliet cap, studded with sequins and pearls. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and red rosebuds. Her only ornament was a string of cultured pearls, a gift of the groom.

Mrs. Lorne Francis, sister of the groom, was matron of honour. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Junior Downe and Miss Shirley Vessey, friends of the bride. All were attired in identical gowns of nylon net over taffeta, with matching picture hats, shoes and gloves. The colours were beautifully blended in shades of shrimp, light mauve and light green. They carried baskets of white carnations and scattered mums, harmonizing with their gowns.

The Misses Deborah Ramsay and Bronwyn Murray, nieces of the bride, were exquisite little flower girls. They wore identical dresses of white eyelet over gold taffeta, with gold sashes sweeping gracefully to a bow at the back. Gold mitts and headdresses completed their outfit. They carried baskets of coloured baby mums.

Mr. George Henderson, Bridgewater, N.S., cousin of the groom, was groomsman. The ushers were Messrs. Lorne Murray, brother of the bride, and Nelson Henry.

The church was beautifully decorated with baskets of red and white gladioli, with white gladioli buds and satin bows marking the guest pews.

The mother of the bride chose for her daughter's wedding, a dress of Royal Blue wool, with matching hat. She wore a corsage of pink carnations. The mother of the groom was attired in a gray suit with matching hat. Her corsage was of pink carnations.

The reception was held at the Queen Hotel for approximately 75 guests. The bride's table was attractively arranged with bouquets of mixed mums, and centered with a three tier wedding cake, which was cut by the bride and groom. The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. W. R. LePage, and responded to by the groom. Mrs. Lorne Wood was in charge of the Guest Book.

For travelling the bride wore a brown wool dress, with brown and beige accessories, topped by a muskrat jacket. Her corsage was of white carnations. The happy couple left, amid showers of confetti and good wishes for a honeymoon in Boston, New York and Connecticut, U.S.A. On their return, they will reside in Stanley Bridge, P.E.I.

Out of town guests included Mrs. John Kirkpatrick and Mrs. Florence Nicholson, Boston, and Mrs. Earl Ebers, Connecticut, U.S.A.

Telegrams of congratulations were received from Mr. and Mrs. Archie Murray, Toronto, and Mr. Bradford Murray, Boston.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was guest of honour at several social functions. Mr. and Mrs. W. R. LePage entertained at a dinner party at their home on North River Road. Miscellaneous showers were tendered by the Misses Sylvia Orford, Shirley Vessey and Mrs. Junior Downe, where many beautiful and useful gifts were received. A community shower was held in Howe's Hall, Brackley Beach, where friends and neighbours of the bride also presented her with many gifts. Lady Kemp's Treasures Auctioned In Toronto

The following article in a Toronto paper tells about the furnishings of Castle Frank, the home of the late Lady Kemp. These treasures recently went under the auctioneer's hammer. The article written before the sale continues:

Furniture, fine old china and priceless heirloom silver, which represent a past era of gracious living, will be sold at Castle Frank in the next four days and removed to other homes.

"The most expensive item here is the Oriental eight-fold screen," said Ben Ward-Price, who is handling the sale.

Lady Kemp is reported to have paid "a fabulous price" for this silken screen but how much the auctioneer will be able to get for it is questionable.

A little mantel screen also drew attention from potential buyers at a preview showing. It is an antique Oriental teak-wood mantel screen with a feather panel.

There are four complete sets of dishes and three sets of crystal.

Who can use a lace banquet cloth large enough to cover a table set for two dozen? Or the table itself which can be extended even further?

Much of the sterling flatware is in the Queens pattern, but there are innumerable other pieces.

There are silver vases, silver comports, silver tea survices and even a half dozen silver demitasse cups and saucers.

But by far the most interesting in the silver line is a cabinet of heirloom silver, chiefly from England and Holland.

There is one single piece of George II silver made by Hester Bateman. This is a wine strainer. But there are also many 17th and 18th-century pieces.

THE LIBRARY

The library is considered one of the best in Canada, with many first editions.

There are five first editions of Dickens and one of Kipling. There are also beautifully bound sets of Disraeli's and J. M. Barrie's works.

Naturally, Lady Kemp's three daughters have taken some things, but the Oriental rugs of Castle Frank are all being sold.

The sale will be the largest of its kind held in Toronto in many years.

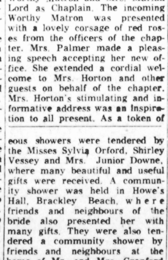
PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)— Last summer's experiment with "meter Mollies" was so successful here that the city police department swore in 12 uniformed women Monday as permanent additions to the force to check on parking violations. Police Chief John A. Murphy said "their addition to the force will relieve men for other duties."



HAPPENINGS

Mrs. Arthur Henry — Hazel Henry — is receiving the congratulations of her numerous friends upon being selected as a recipient of the Canadian Drama Award.

Hazel Henry has long delighted the theatre audiences of this province. She was in a reminiscing mood when she told yesterday the following stories.

Her first role she ever had was that of a cranky old aunt.

In real life Hazel Henry must be just the opposite kind of an aunt, so she certainly was acting. The aunt had arrived on a visit.

After the first act she was to change from travelling clothes and re-enter in Oct. 2 in afternoon dress. She did but still wearing the beplumed hat which she had forgotten to remove.

That evening also owing to some slip up there were not any programmes. The next day a friend remarked to her: "Who was that cranky old aunt? 'She is just like one I have!"

Another time Hazel Henry came upon the stage in full Scottish costume of plaid and tam. She was to do a monologue in a broad Scots dialect. For what must have been one of the few times in her life, she was seized with stage fright. Instead of the Scottish dialect out came an Irish broque (this seems a natural medium for H.H.) Replete in the Highland costume this bewildered Ruth Draper finished in the rich Irish brogue. As the occasion demanded then, so it does now, hearty handclaps and encore to Hazel Henry, C.D.A.

Mrs. T. W. Mitton and Mrs. G. R. Greenough entertained at a supper bridge on Tuesday at the Charlottetown Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Sanford of Cambridge, Mass., have been visiting Mrs. Sandford's father, Mr. Roy Jones in Hazelbrook.

Mrs. Gordon Hughes and Miss Sue Brenton entertained at supper bridges Monday and Tuesday evenings at Mrs. Hughes' residence, Euston Street.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Winter Is A-Coming In -- Loudly Wail The Winds

"It's coming now to the time of year when at the longest, winter's not too far away" a visiting farmer offered this evening. "Though" he smiled, "I can't say that we're ready for it yet. But then when are we? There's always something else we should like to have done before the freeze-up, no matter how open the fall."

"It would be nice to have a week or so after the field-work is done just to do the banking and tidy up around," James commented. "To put away machinery, and pick up the like of shovels and axes and wrenches that mislaid are apt to be covered up with snow. . . and lost."

"We still have plowing to do" the visitor said, "yes, a week's work yet."

"Aye" James nodded "so do we. But a few days should see the end of ours. But with it there are fences to be moved, wire to roll and posts and stakes to clear away. That's what I was doing this afternoon."

"We had to move some potatoes today — getting them snugged up before the frost. There's so much to be attended to at this time of year, isn't there?"

"There's no end to it" James agreed with a chuckle. "Today" he continued "we had to stop the plow for a while to ship out some ewes and lambs — to get the flocks ready for another year. There are always a few boarders to weed out, and then too there are the late lambs. It's nice to get them away before the snow. So the young lads went to take care of that, and it was well on into the afternoon before they got back to the plowing."

"We don't keep sheep. Haven't for years. They're such pesky things to fence for" the visitor said.

"They are" James smiled," and they aren't." If they are content, it's surprising how little in the way of a fence will keep them. But once let them astray, and your peace of mind goes too! It's well though to have a few. They keep the weeds under control. And they give us a taste of lamb and mutton. And if one has a black ewe, well, there's dark yarn for warm work-socks and mitts. Yes, they're handy to have. As a matter of fact I shouldn't like to farm without them." There was a moment of silence.

"Not the best fall this, as prices go" the visitor commented.

"Not the best" James agreed soberly "not the best. At the same time farmers are pretty well off, I always consider, if they have enough feed on hand to bring the stock through the stabling. That's always a worry. And excepting for some shortage of hay, the crops have been good. So we'll hope. . . "

"We'll make out enough of them to 'buy the child a frock and pay for the one he's wearing!" the visitor chuckled.

"Just so" James nodded with a smile, "exactly!"

And altogether this was a good day for the farm folks, one in which to harvest last crops, and plow and redd up about for the Winter.

Until tomorrow — — — Diary —Goodnight. . . .

The Fault, Or Credit Is Not In Ourselves Alone

Sputnik 11 with its dog passenger unleashed many and varied emotions around the world. Fortunately, laughter too played its part. In the current issue of the "New Yorker" (at the Charlottetown Library) there is a full page cartoon with this caption: "We figured that as long as we're out to give America an inferiority complex we might as well make is a good one." The picture shows what is presumably a space missile receiving into its interior not a dog—but an elephant carefully lowered by means of a derrick!

The fault may be in the stars. One of the results of the spectacular launching of the space missile by the Russians is the even more intensive search in Canada (and elsewhere) for young people of ability, especially in the scientific field. What an era to live in for those who have intelligence and ambition—to say nothing of the truly Gifted! No more the long uphill struggle for an education—the years of waiting for the opportunity to make use of it. Every door is open. Money and encouragement is offered —even pressed upon the would-be student!

So often we blame ourselves and reproach others for lack of achievement. We are too free with Shakespeare's lines:

"The fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars,
But in ourselves, that we are underlings."

Sometimes this is true, but when we consider the present interest in developing the abilities of our young men and women, and the indifference shown a short time ago, we can see that the Stars—or Circumstances — have much very much to do with our accomplishments.

TRADITION

Many family, local, national and world attitudes and events go toward shaping our destiny. There may be in a family a tradition of learning. No sacrifice is then too great to 1 lp the child to an education. The community into which he he born may be education conscious. And then, schools and colleges may be within easy reach.

National attitudes are important. It isn't just coincidence that so many great musicians and painters were and are of Italian descent; that so many of our Grand Opera stars come from that country. Art and music are part of everyday life among the Italians.

Wars, depressions too prevented thousands from following their real desires and abilities. On the other hand, World War 11 gave the opportunity for an education to thousands.

There were periods in history The Renaissance, for instance) when explorers, inventors, writers were needed and encouraged And they were found in great numbers. Now we are living in an almost fantastic Scientific Era. Scientists are needed to further the welfare of humanity—and alas, for what at present is the defense of one part of humanity against another. Abilities that would have remained undiscovered in other periods will not be eagerly sought and developed. So much is in the Stars—not in ourselves. (Whether all this makes for spiritual good—is another story).
