

MR. AND MRS. RAYMOND JOSEPH PETERS AND ATTENDANTS

Double Ring Ceremony Held At Fort Augustus

A pretty summer wedding of wide interest was solemnized on August 17th, 1957, at Saint Patrick's Church, Fort Augustus, when Margaret Joan Kelly R.N., only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frances Kelly, became the bride of Joseph Raymond Peters, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Peters, Mayfield.

The church was tastefully decorated with pink and white roses and baskets of gladioli. The guest pews were marked with miniature nosegays of baby mums and white satin bows.

Rev. Parnell Woods performed the ceremony and celebrated the Nuptial Mass. During the Mass appropriate hymns were sung by Misses Elinor and Genevieve McDonald, Elinor McDonald presided at the organ.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was charming in a floor length gown of white bridal satin. A tight fitted bodice was fashioned with a scalloped neck line, studded with miniature mother of pearls. The dress had long sleeves, tapering to a point over the hands. The skirt formed soft folds extending into a cathedral train. The bride's finger tip veil of French tulle illusion fell softly from a coronet of seeded pearls. She carried a cascade of white roses and stephanotis, centered with a white orchid.

The bridal attendants were Miss Gertrude Duffy as matron of honor.

Miss Eunice Peters, sister of the groom, Miss Martha O'Holloran, R.N., Toronto Ont. classmate of the bride as bridesmaid. All attendants wore identical gowns of white and pink net over white crystal charm, with matching picture hats and white mitts. All three girls carried baskets of shasta white and pink carnations.

The dainty flower girl, little Betty Quinn, wore a dress of white taffeta with pink sash and imitations of pink rosebuds. She carried a basket of pink rosebuds. The ring bearer was Gary Hughes.

Mr. Joseph Kelly, brother of the bride, was best man. Usher were Mr. Charles Kelly and Mr. William Praught.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Charlottetown hotel. One hundred and twenty-five guests mingled in the spacious lounge and on the terrace. The bride's table was decorated with floral bouquets; centered with a four tiered wedding cake, decorated with the same golden slippers that were on her mother's wedding cake.

Receiving with the bridal party were the parents of the bride and groom. The mother of the bride chose for her daughter's wedding a dress of Royal blue lace over taffeta with white accessories and yellow roses en corsage. Mrs. Peters, mother of the groom, chose a printed pink nylon dress, with natural accessories and pink carnations en corsage. Mrs. John Ready was in charge of the guest book.

Russell Driscoll capably acted as master of ceremonies. Rev. Father Woods proposed the toast to the bride, which was responded to by the groom. Mr. Joseph Kelly proposed the toast to the bridesmaids. Complimentary remarks were made by several of the guests and congratulatory telegrams were read.

Mrs. William Campbell, Mr. Albert McKearney and Mr. Thomas Hunter furnished appropriate music during the reception.

Shower parties of confetti and newly weds left on a motor trip through the Maritimes and the Eastern States. For going away the bride chose a white linen sheath dress with matching duster and navy accessories. An orchid corsage completed her costume.

Mr. and Mrs. Peters will reside in Charlottetown. The bride has been on the operating room staff of St. Joseph's Hospital, Toronto, Ontario. The groom is on the staff of Canada Experimental Farm. — Photo by Meyers.

Couple Are Honored On Their 45th Anniversary

On Tuesday evening, September 10, the families of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Stewart gathered at their home at Kelvin Grove to offer their congratulations and best wishes in honor of the 45th anniversary of their marriage. James A. Stewart and Flora MacKay were married at Clifton on September 4, 1912. Their attendants were Mrs. Stirling MacKay, the former Della Pickering, and Mr. Heath Howness who has since passed away.

On this happy occasion the celebrants were seated with their attendants. Mrs. Stirling MacKay and Mr. College Howness. Mr. Angus Green was chosen to act as chairman, and in the course of his remarks spoke in glowing terms of this popular couple and the place they hold in the hearts of brothers and sisters, nephews and nieces.

An address was read and the couple were presented with lovely gifts, an all wool blanket, a mantle mirror, and personal gifts including an electric razor, slippers and wool socks to 'Jim' and to 'Flora' a pocket book and necklace.

An original poem composed for the occasion by the groom's sister, Katherine was read by Mrs. Bruce Clark. A delectable lunch was served which included ice cream and bride's and groom's cake. On departing to their homes the guests extended to the happy couple their wishes for continued health and happiness in the years to come.

RICH HARMONY

The deeply plunging neckline is popular with ever so many of us despite all the fashion edicts that call for the wrapped-up look. But what we do go along with is that "dyed-to-match" one color idea and so it's a bright notion to be able to use a fill-in neckline to match a dress color.

Trifari has done a neat collection of ombre pearls in "Autumn Haze" tones to go with that delightful milk shade. So here we have a fill-in to match milk brown, nicely illustrated in a five-strand bib in shades of brown to harmonize with a brown wool dress.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Yes, James, The Summer Waits - Over The Months

"I never like to hear that in the 'harvest-time' James offered at breakfast, when through the open door, we heard a blue-jay's call, sharp in the hush of the morning.

"Oh, they're only a part of the season," we said. "We hear them and the crows calling. And now that most of the summer birds have gone, we seem to notice them more."

He nodded. "All the same, Ellen," he said, "when they call like that, we can be sure that rain's not too far away. It would be good to get at the threshing. Not that we haven't everything pretty well shipshape in the even of wind and rain, but it's nice to get the grain under cover."

"And the days are shortening," we commented.

"Yes, it takes a while for the dew to lift. And there are not too many hours of sunshine to depend on before the damp falls again." So quiet the leaves were against the morning, and still and peaceful the scene about.

"Well," he said, "we have to repair one of the grain-wagons. By then the day will have squared itself away. I don't like to see the sun so bright this early — not the best sign this time of year of a continuing fine day."

It was as it happened too warm and humid to be a good harvest day, lacking the clean sharpness of weather liked by the harvesters. Yet on the neighbour's farm where they worked, some sheaves were stored and there was a spell of threshing in this season's trial run of the machine.

Mack home from school, heart these days disturbed by two desires: to attend class or to be away with the workers to the fields, spied the endeavour in progress across the valley when we were about to go to piece of gardening.

"There!" he pointed breathlessly, into the sunny distance. "See, they're threshing! I guess I'll have to go. Some other time I'll help you. I'm anxious to see how she works. And too" he nodded on another fascinating thought "they just may need me to drive one of the tractors in the field."

His gay over, James joined us on the front verandah in the starlight. We say idly, lost in the charm of the delightful September night. It was onewarmth with summer, and hushed, except for the pings of odd "good-luck" crickets out about the lawn.

"Nice, isn't it?" he said.

"But Summer's one" we offered.

We thought of summer's days past, spent well or maybe a fortis wasted. Who knew! Gone anyway they were; one too the daisy-starred fields, the Queen Anne's lace and purple-blue flower of vetch tangled along the dam. . . and many a delight of the season. We sighed.

"But James said gently "we'll have another summer, Ellen. We saw his face by the light from the open door. It was smiling. "It waits. . . over the months" he said softly. . .

Until tomorrow . . . Diary — Goodnight. . .
