AN OLD SALT AWHEEL.

His Nautical Language Was More Than the Girl Could Understand. An old salt who navigates a bicycle when he is in port was working a rapid passage down Cass avenue the other day when he collided with a woman cyclist. After they had extricated themselves from the wreck he anticipated her outburst of anger, from which she could gather little except that he was sincerely sorry. "I'm sure as I ought to be scuttled for it, mum," he said rapidly, "but I couldn't get yer signals no more as if we was feelin' through a fog bank. I was blowin' for you to pass to the port and steerin' my course accordin'. Just as I was goin' to dip my pennant and salute proper, your craft refused to obey her rudder and you struck me for'ard. Afore I could reverse, your jib boom fouled my starboard mizzen riggin', your flougin' boom snarled up with my bobstay, blew out yer pneumatic, parted yer toppin' lift and carried away my jack saddle down haul. As I listed I tried to jibe, but I capsized, keel up, and you floundered in the wreckage."

By this time there was an interested audience, and the girl was mentally debating whether she should run from a supposed lunatic or ask for an interpreter. But Jack's headpiece was still in his hand. He was not through. "I'm hopin' yer not enough damaged for the hospital," he went on, "but I'd be sunk if I wouldn't be glad to stand yer watch till you righted. This here little craft of yours will be as seaworthy as ever when her upper works is straightened out and we get wind inter her sails again. I'll just tew her down to the yard fur repairs." And she smiled an assent.—Detroit Free Press.

The Light and Airy Dodge. "I have a young friend in Philadelphia who has what are called 'sporty' tastes," said Mr. Richard Lee, the well known Virginia cavalier. "He went to the races not long since, and, as was his wont, got brcke early in the game. Often an appeal to his fond and plutocratic father had brought relief, but too frequent applications had soured the governor's temper, and it was a doubtful chance whether he'd appropriate to a relief fund on this special occasion. So my friend thought he'd try the light and airy dodge and giving the pater a touch in verse. This is the gem he wired:

"The rose is red, The violet's blue, Send me fifty, P. D. Q. "This is what he got in reply: "The rose is red, So is the pink, I'll send the fifty, I don't think." —Washington Post.

To Be Continued. Grim and gaunt, with a wild light in his eye, he stood towering above the shrinking little woman, the glittering steel clutched in his right hand. And she? She dared not open her mouth. Slowly sank in the west by northwest the globose and incarnadine sun. And still the tooth remained undrawn, for reasons explained in the second paragraph.—Indianapolis Journal. Court Etiquette. Teacher—Yes, when the Prince of Wales, who is the heir to the throne, enters the room everybody rises except the queen. Now, can any little girl tell me why it is that the queen doesn't rise? Mary Ann—Please, ma'am, it's 'cause he'd snatch her chair if she did.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
