

In Summer Days.

In summer days I sit and dream, And watch the glancing sunbeams gleam Upon the ripples of the stream.

In summer days, when rosy dawn The curtains of the night hath drawn, And dewdrops glisten on the lawn,

In summer days, when sinks the sun What time the toils of day are done, And all the weary hours have run;

Of what hath been: I may not tell— Thou knowest not I love thee well; And spoken words would break the spell,

Cultivating Integrity of Character.

There is a wide difference in the estimate of justice and right among men. Some have an instinctive sense of justice; others always have distorted or shaded views of right and wrong.

We answer, best by inculcating clear perceptions of the fundamental principles of right. These are simple and plain. It is right to tell the truth, to deal honestly, to respect others' rights

When the minds of children are plastic and habits are formative these great principles can be solidly inculcated. And if wisely and carefully done, they will answer for years after.
