The World's Favorites for Dyeing Light, Medium and Heavy Goods.

Diamond Dyes do a range of work far beyond the possibilities of soap grease and crude package dyes. The common dyes on the market are descriptive in character and composition; they are made to sell, not to give guaranteed satisfaction. The majority of the colors of soap grease and crude package dyes are so weak that they will hardly stain the hands. Diamond Dyes gives colors to light, medium and heavy materials that are as fast as a rock, and last as long as the goods hold together. The heaviest tweeds and cloths can be dyed with Diamond Dyes. Soap grease and imitation package dyes dare not attempt such work, because the colors are not sufficiently penetrating and powerful. If you desire success in the dyeing operation, and wish to save money, use Diamond Dyes for home dyeing. All up-to-date dealers sell Diamond Dyes and strongly recommend them.

Testimonial

C. P. Fletcher, Esq.
DEAR SIR,—I do not wish to return to Montreal without expressing my gratitude to you for the very excellent Bell Piano that you placed at my disposal for my recital. I have tried many Canadian Pianos of different manufacturers and must say that, considering the size of the instrument, I have never found one to equal it for depth and brilliancy of tone. The action is quite as elastic and responsive as in American Upright Pianos of the highest grade. Again thanking you, very sincerely,
I remain,
Yours,
FRED. E. MORRIS

FOR SALE.

RARE CHANCE

The property occupied by J. J. Gay and son situate in the village of Pownall, 7 miles from Charlottetown, is offered for sale. The proprietors have carried on a large market garden nursery, and seed business for thirty years, and the purchaser will no doubt retain a large share of the local trade. The premises comprise a large dwelling house, store, warehouse, barn, shed, orchard, and about 15 acres of the most fertile land on the Island. This land has been manured year after year, for so long that as an old man said the other day, "It is all a bed of manure and could be hauled for top-dressing." This would be an ideal spot for a country merchant, or it would be admirable for a summer resort. The situation is one of the most beautiful on the Island. Good bathing, fishing, boating, shooting and within easy distance, churches, post office school telephone and shops all at the door. For terms and further particulars, apply to Von Clure Gay, J J Gay & son or to JOHN T MELLISH, Solicitor Charlottetown

A MAID OF WINCHESTER.

She Recites an Epithalamium Before Queen Mary and Phillip of Spain.

Virginia Cabell Gardiner writes a story of old England for St. Nicholas, dealing with the marriage of Queen Mary and Phillip of Spain. The following is an extract from it:
Rosamund could scarcely believe it when Ned came rushing in and told her that she, too, must go and recite before the queen. The quick walk through the streets with her father and Ned seemed like a dream to her. So, too, did the arrival at the bishop's palace and the great hall where the long tables were spread and where the English and Spanish courts were, for the present, making the best of each other, though regarding with ill concealed distaste each other's foreign looks and ways.

Presently Rosamund had reached the dais and had kissed the hand of her sovereign and of the king of Naples; for such had Prince Phillip been created by his father, according to a paper read aloud that morning in the cathedral.

"Thy name, my little maiden?" the queen's deep tones were saying.
"Rosamund Walton, your majesty," answered Rosamund, scarcely recognizing the sound of her own voice.

"Thy brother saith thou hast composed certain lines in honor of our marriage, Rosamund, and the king and I would gladly hear them. Canst thou say them to us?"

Rosamund looked up, glanced from Mary's radiant face with its dark, shining eyes to Phillip's, cold and mysterious and wearing a forced smile, and somehow she felt very sorry for the queen. This feeling made her forget her embarrassment and added a thrill to her voice, and so she stood up straight and recited her simple verses, not knowing what a pretty picture she made nor that all eyes in the hall were fixed on her.

And when she finished speaking there was first a little pause, such as Ned had made when she had recited it to him, and then the queen bent forward to say, cordially, "Thank you, my dear," and a buzz of praise was heard to pass around.

Phillip spoke in Spanish, and Mary turned to Rosamund again.
"The king is very much pleased with thy verses," she said, as if there were no higher pride in all the world than that.

"He says the English maids are as clever as they are fair, and he gives thee this jewel to thank thee for thy fine poem. And this," she added, taking a very beautiful and valuable bracelet from her own arm, "I hope thou wilt wear sometimes to keep thee in mind of how much Queen Mary was delighted by thy poem upon her wedding day."

She spoke also some kind and encouraging words to Master Walton, and then the audience was over.

KHYBER PASS.

Situation of the Northwestern Gateway to British India.

The Khyber pass, the northwestern gateway of British India, and one of the four chief passes which unite our possessions with Afghanistan, is the narrow winding defile, winding between cliffs of shale and limestone rock 600 to 1,000 feet high, which runs through the Khyber range, the northernmost spurs of the Safed Koh mountains, between Peshawur and Jelalabad. Its highest point is 3,400 feet above the sea on the ridge connecting the Khyber with the Safed Koh range, and forming the watershed of two small streams, the one flowing northwest to Jelalabad and the Kabul river, the other south-southeast toward Jamruo, the last British outpost, 10 1/2 miles from Peshawur. The pass lies along the beds of these torrents, and, especially in July and August, is subject to sudden floods. The gradient is generally easy, except at the Land Khana pass, but it is covered with loose stones, which become larger as the head of the stream is reached.

To the north of the defile lies the Khyber range, to the south the Bara spur of the Safed Koh divides it from the Bara valley, the river of Peshawur. The mountains which shut it in vary in height from 6,000 to 7,000 feet. Here and there on the vast promontories of rock which run out into the defile rise Buddhist dagobas, monuments of the time, a century after Alexander the Great, when the "great doctrine" of Sakya Muni reigned throughout northern India. Here and there "written stones" bearing Greco-Bactrian inscriptions are to be seen in the mountains, while dolmens of unknown origin disposed in rings resembling the stone circles of Stonehenge rise at the entrance of tributary gorges.—London News
