MPs Given Conflicting Views On High Strategy In Europe

By DAVE McINTOSH

LONDON (CP)—The Canadian Commons defence committee returns home Sunday after getting a kaleidoscope of views, many conflicting, on high strategy.

Perhaps never before has a group of Canadian parliamentarians been exposed to such an extent to the ramifications of nuclear strategy, long a topic of lively discussion in Europe.

One general view the committee received from NATO members, who live far closer to the Soviet threat than Canadians, is that a nuclear deterrent in Europe is essential and that the RCAF's nuclear bombing role is important to the alliance.

Committee members were impressed, first of all, with the presentation of France's policy of an independent nuclear deterrent if not with the policy itself.

Their first stop was Paris and they said afterwards it was refreshing to get a cold, logical explanation of a firm, laid-down policy.

NO DETERRENT

The West Germans said bluntly the French force de frappe doesn't deter Russia whatever and is intended only by de Gaulle to blackmail France's allies. American nuclear forces in Europe were 50 times stronger than France's would be when it was combat-ready.

But both France and West Germany seem agreed that NATO could not afford to allow Russia to make any deep penetration of Western Europe. This would be disastrous for morale and any conquered territory would have to be liberated.

France and Germany, therefore, believe that there should be quick nuclear engagement of any Soviet assault. France would try to drop nuclear bombs on the 48 main cities of Russia.

Germany wants to use battlefield nuclear weapons the moment any Russians cross the German frontier, mainly as a means to show the Soviet Union that NATO isn't bluffing in its determination to halt any aggression with nuclear armament if necessary.

STUDY CF-104S' ROLE

This led the Canadians to consideration of the CF-104 as a clear bomber on four Canadian bases in Europe.

At the moment, the 200 CF-104s are capable of dropping nuclear bombs only.

Therefore they couldn't participate in conventional operations. If Russia struck an all-out nuclear blow at Europe, the eight Canadian squadrons would probably be destroyed before getting off the ground.

Thus, committee members were surprised to learn, the planes could be used only if NATO determined to be the side to use nuclear weapons first. That is, Canadian airmen could be the first or among the first to drop nuclear bombs in the event of war.

Many members of the committee say privately they would like to see the CF-104s given a conventional as well as nuclear role. Officers at the Canadian base at Zweibruecken, West Germany, said this could be done with little difficulty.

Committee members say the main problem of the Canadian brigade, which they also visited, is how to reinforce it quickly in an emergency.

The proposed NATO seaborne nuclear strike force was dismissed almost out of hand by officials of all NATO countries except the U.S. and Germany as a military superfluity. Its sole objective appears to be to give Germany a larger voice in nuclear control.

109 Serve Time In Jail

SUMMERSIDE — A total of 109 persons have been committed to Prince County jail since May of this year, it was stated in a report by Sheriff Robert Dewar presented the presiding Judge of Supreme Court which opened here this week.

Twenty-one persons are still serving terms in the county jail and 10 have been sent to Dorchester Penitentiary, and one case is pending.

Drunkenness and intoxication led the list of those serving terms with 52 sentenced. Twenty persons found guilty of impaired driving served time.

Six were given terms for illegal possession of liquor, six for theft and five for violations under the Highway Traffic Act.

Other persons serving time in county jail were sentenced for: false prestenses, two; carrying concealed weapons, two; false fire alarm, one; damage to windows and property, three; causing a disturbance, three; causing bodily harm, two; possession of stolen goods, two; deportation to U.S.A. ne; and stealing motor vehicles, two.

NO CAKE

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle turned 73 Friday and at his request no ceremony marked the occasion. He devoted himself to business, including talks with visiting German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard.

Opening lead — three of spades.

The play of the hand would be greatly simplified if you could see all 52 cards. There would be little excuse for failing to find the best line of play, whether viewed from the standpoint of the declarer or the defense.

However, since each player sees only dummy's 13 cards and his own, and therefore has to guess the location of the unseen 26 cards, many hands end with one side or the other having failed to exact the full measure from their cards. There is nothing extraordinary about this — even in the best company, it happens with some frequency— but in most hands the declarer or the defenders are not supposed to stray from par very often.

Take this hand, for example, where declarer's expectancy is to lose four tricks and go down one. He would normally lose a spade and three clubs and suffer a one-trick defeat.

However, if East-West were to slip in the play, he would wind up making the contract. West leads a spade which East takes with the ace. East might then cash the K - Q of clubs, West playing the six and then the four.If this happened, South would now make the rest of the tricks, regardless of what East played next.

Granted that this would be mediocre defense, yet it is something that might take place in the ordinary course of events. East's first three plays appear to be normal, yet they leave something to be desired.

What East should do after winning the ace of spades is lead the Q-K of clubs instead of the K-Q. This abnormal order of plays should alert West to the actual situation and induce him to overtake the king with the ace and give East a club ruff.

Any departure by a defender from standard play should be read as a signal intended to convey a special meaning to partner. The play of the Q-K in that order falls into this category.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
