DINNER AND SOCIAL.

Prince Edward Island Club Entertained Many Guests.
 (Boston Globe, Oct. 7.)

Prince Edward Island and the United States clasped hands, as it were, last evening at the dinner and social gathering of the Prince Edward Island Club, which was held in the United States Hotel, for there were sons and daughters of Uncle Sam as guests of the club, and these, with the former subjects of Queen Victoria, who have made this country their adopted home, interchanged friendship's greetings, Peace, love and harmony was the keynote of the success which characterized the assembly, which included men and women representing all the professions and nearly every walk in life.

At 8.30 the popular president, Mr. D. A. McDonald, led the way to the dining room. The table decorations were exquisite, the snowy linen being strewn with ferns and pink and white carnations. An immense jardiniere of magnificent Jacquemont roses graced the president's table, and were afterward presented to the guests.

After doing justice to the menu the business meeting was opened with a brief but eloquent address of welcome by the president, after which Sec E. W. Doyle read the minutes of the previous meeting and presented the treasurer's report.

The following new members were elected: Miss Maud Doherty, Miss Cassie McLean, Mrs James C McMahon, Mr John R McDonald.

Reports were presented by Miss Etta Sinnott, Miss Mary E McKay and Dr William Johnson relative to the whist party which will be given at an early date by the club, and on motion of Mr Doyle the matter was left in the hands of the ladies and members of the executive committee to be acted upon later.

A musical and literary program was rendered at the close of the business meeting, vocal selections being given with fine effect by Miss M A Quinn, Miss Elizabeth Clahane and Mr Goodwin, while Miss Marine Collins captivated the audience with her readings. Miss Laydon played several selections on the piano, and Mr O'Callahan, of South Boston, won much applause with his comic songs.

Mr McDonald then called upon Dr William Johnson of Dorchester, vice president, for a speech, to which he responded with his wonted eloquence. Sec E W Doyle, addressed the company, and afterwards Mr J C McMahon, of the Boston Globe made a few remarks. Dr Thomas Moran, of Cambridge, also gave an interesting address.

Mr MacDonald brought the entertainment to a close with a humorous and very interesting speech, after which adieus were in order.

Among those present were Mrs H E Davis and Miss Georgina Davis of Charlottetown Mrs J Doherty, Miss Maud Doherty of Roxbury, Miss Etta Sinnott, Miss Mary E Currie, Miss Annie F Ring, Miss Mary E McKay, Dr W Johnson, Francis E Doyle, Dr T Moran, Miss Libbie Grant, Mrs John Kiely, Mr and Mrs James C McMahon, P J Larkin, Miss Katie A Currie, Miss Emily Leard, James Duffy, Mrs M T Hughes, T F Callahan, Miss Mary A Ryan, Miss M E Hickey, William J Fisher, Miss Minnie Lewis, William J Chappelle, James McCarron, Frank Murray, Miss Mary A Quinn, Harry F Goodwin, Miss Mary A Laydon, Gertrude C Grant, W C Grant, W A Logan, Miss Cassie McLean, Miss Margaret Herlihy, Mr J R McDonald, Mrs Collins, Miss Collins.

ATTITUDE OF THE BRITISH BUYERS.

"British retail merchants whom I meet frequently said they heard a decided preference expressed by their customers for things Canadian and things colonial. However, when the retail buyer went to the wholesale warehouse of the importer to select goods for the week, I think he left his preferential sentiment outside of the warehouse and out of the bargain. As far as I could learn, he buys only what he considers the best value, no matter where the goods come from. However, when he did buy Canadian products, he added to his shop talk for his customers the fact that they were Canadian. That was accomplishing something, as it helped to establish a demand from the consumers for Canadian products, when they liked those which they had received. A preference for buying a product by a consumer may have a sentimental basis as well as a purely business one, and as far as a preference is expressed by those consumers, it will lead retail buyers to give a preference in the same direction when making their purchases.

When one analyzes what is meant by the expression "a market," he discovers that it is usually a name for an exchange of commodities. Money is now used as the medium of exchange for facilitating the transactions of marketing. The great part of the population in Great Britain is interested in the exchange of manufactured products for food products. To accomplish that to their own advantage they are disposed to give a preference to the food products from those countries which take their manufactured goods in exchange. Further information on the benefits that would accrue to them, as consumers of food products and producers of manufactured articles, but giving a preference to the food products from their own best customers, might be imparted to them to their own advantage. Their susceptibility to education is not always in proportion to their need."

RESULT OF EXPERIMENTS.

Preparation of Feeds.

Professor Robertson reports: Experiments have been conducted to discover the relative value of grain, when steamed and fed warm as compared with grain when fed raw and cold. The grain in both cases was ground. The pigs on the steamed warm grain, increased in weight more rapidly than those fed upon the same grain raw and cold. The grain used was a mixture of equal parts of peas, barley and rye, ground and fed mixed with water. When fed steamed and warm 4 16-pound of grain were consumed for every pound of increase in live weight, but when fed raw and cold 4.25 pounds of grain per pound of increase in live weight were consumed. The following are the conclusions from the experiment.

(1) There is no appreciable difference in the number of pounds of grain required to produce a pound of increase in the live weight of swine, when it is fed steamed and warm, as compared with it when fed raw and cold;

(2) On the average in there is a gradual increase in the quantity of grain consumed for every pound of increase in the live weight of swine, after the second month of the fattening period, and after the average live weight exceeds 100 lbs;

(3) It is economical to market swine to be slaughtered when they weigh 180 lbs, live weight;

(4) The consumption of feed per day is greatest at or near the period of their fattening, when the quantity of feed consumed per pound of increase in weight is smallest.

In feeding grain in the ground state and in the whole or unground state, it has been found that swine consumed about 10 per cent more of the unground grain per pound of increase in live weight. The 10 per cent would pay for the grinding; and in every case swine fed on the ground grain have shown stronger legs and better health generally. There is always a risk to the general health of the pig from the feeding of whole grain only, unless the swine be full grown before they are put up to be fattened. It has also been found profitable to have the ground grain soaked for an average period of about 30 hours before it is fed. When ground grain is fed dry the hogs fatten up without developing in length and depth.

From feeding experiments extending over three years in the fattening of 112 swine upon grain, it appears that:

1. On the average 4.38 lbs of grain (barley, rye, peas, wheat, frosted wheat, and wheat bran) was the quantity consumed per pound of increase in the live weight;

2. In the feeding of grain, considering quantity of feed consumed, and the general health of the animals, it is profitable to feed the grain ground and soaked in water for an average period of about 30 hours;

3. It is profitable to add about 3 or 5 lbs of skim milk or butter milk per head per day to the grain fed to fattening swine.

In the feeding of frosted wheat to swine, it is found that according to the condition and quality of the swine to which it was fed, from 9.01 to 15.45 pounds of increase in the live weight of the swine were obtained per bushel of ground wheat consumed. The following are the conclusions from two series of tests:

Conclusions—From tests with heavy swine, it appears that:

1. When the frozen wheat was fed, ground and soaked for 12 hours, 11.3 lbs of increase in the live weight were obtained per bushel of wheat;

2. When the frozen wheat was fed unground and soaked for 12 and 42 hours, 9.1 lbs. of increase in the live weight were obtained per bushel of wheat.

3. When the frozen wheat is to be fed unground, it should be soaked for at least 42 hours;

4. Leaving out of the reckoning the weeks during which the frozen wheat unground, and the mixture of wheat, barley and peas unground, were soaked for only 12 hours, 5.24 lbs. of frozen wheat were consumed per lb. increase, and 5.22 lbs of the mixture of wheat, barley and peas were consumed per lb. of increase in the live weight.

From other tests with swine weighing an average of 61 lbs. each in one pen, and an average of 104 lbs. each in another pen, it appears that:—

5. When the frozen wheat was fed ground and soaked for 12 hours, 14.18 lbs. of increase in the live weight were obtained, per bushel of wheat, and

6. In the feeding of swine from an average weight of 61 lbs. each, until they reached an average weight of 145 lbs. each, 15.46 lbs. of increase in the live weight were, obtained a bushel of wheat.

When swine are fetching 5 cents per pound live weight, with an allowance of 5 per cent for shrinkage, frozen wheat fed under the least favourable ordinary conditions may realize 43 cents per bushel. At the same prices for swine, frozen wheat fed under very favourable conditions in the quality and age of the swine and the preparation of the feed, may realize 73 cents per bushel.

As has already been mentioned, it is a good plan to feed roots to growing and breeding swine during the winter. Raw potatoes are useless for that purpose. Boiled potatoes, as a rule, are much too dear. Mangolds, carrots, sugar beets and turnips may be used with profit. If they can be cooked and afterward mixed with the grain the best results will be obtained. Dry and warm sleeping quarters are essential to the getting of much value from the feeding of roots to young growing pigs. During winter clover hay, cut and steamed, may be fed with advantage to growing hogs. For that purpose the hay may be cut on the green side before the heads are ripe or the stems have become woody.
