ROSEMARY CLOONEY IN DELIGHTFUL MUSICAL AT CAPITOL, SUMMERSIDE

—Paramount's brand new Technicolor musical, "The Stars Are Singing," at the Capitol Theatre, Summerside, is a warm, tuneful and merry package of solid entertainment. The delightful festivities are punctuated with an artful balance of well known classical selections and the bouncy refrains of songs currently popular.

—Warbling this veritable cavalcade of melodic strains are three personalities guaranteed to please the most selective audience. First and foremost, there is the scintillating Rosemary Clooney who makes her screen debut in "The Stars Are Singing." The talents of Miss Clooney, America's leading recording artist, are used to their best advantage.

—Rosemary is aided by Anna Maria Alberghetti, the girl whom critics have said "is the voice of an angel" and in this occur-suddenly a star in her second screen appearance, the young miss is imbued with the childlike qualities that give her a fresh, warm appeal and her voice has entrancing qualities which make for memorable moments of pleasure.

—The male member of the starring trio is Lauritz Melchior, the great Wagnerian baritone, who has one of the greatest voices of our time. Reminiscent of vocal pitch seldom heard outside of the Metropolitan Opera, Mr. Melchior provides a lasting niche for himself in filmdom's annals through his rendition of the famed Vesti La Giubba."
