A MEAN OLD THING.

"Here's an article for women," he said, "on 'How to Make Yourself Attractive to a Man.'"
"Before or after marriage?" she enquired, thinking it was about time to have a little sport with him.
"After, of course," he replied promptly.
"No woman ever loses the knack until after she marries."
No doubt he was, as she said, "a mean old thing."

Mr Isaacstein—So you think young Rosenbaum means peevishness?

THE TRYST.

Alone I wait in the old beechwood,
At our tryst by the ruined mill,
And the only sound that greets my ear
Is the note of the whippoorwill.

The silent shades of the August eve
O'er the shadowed ruins fall,
But the only sound that comes to me
Is the whippoorwill's sweet call.

I wait in vain for a sound more sweet,
A note that is far more dear.
'Tis a signal which says one I love is high,
A whistle soft and clear.

The fireflies gleam in the old beechwood,
Where I wait by the ruined mill,
But naught I hear in the silent night
Save the lonely whippoorwill.

AFGHANISTAN VENDETTAS.

How Deadly Blood Feuds Are Waged in the Khyber Pass.

During the time I have been in India, writes a soldier correspondent, the most interesting period was when I was stationed on duty for three months some years back in Landikotal, on the Afghanistan side of the far famed Khyber pass. Here I was able to forcibly realize the meaning of "vendetta," as the characteristic blood feuds of the Afridis are quaint and interesting.

The pass itself is a neutral zone between India and Afghanistan, but we exercise our dominion over the road that winds its way for 21 miles through the narrow valley. Here, as elsewhere in Afghanistan, blood feuds are a recognized institution among the tribes and last through generations, the dishonor resting with that family who last suffered from some defeat or treacherous murder.

When an encounter occurs between two tribes occupying settlements on opposite sides of the road mentioned, one or other must cross it before commencing their fight as across the road is prohibited, but on either side they can exercise their friendly feelings toward each other without hindrance.

But still quieter is it when the feuds are between close neighbors. Each family, with near relations, occupies a number of mud huts, inclosed in a square surrounded by a thick, high wall of mud, stone and wood. At one corner of these squares is built a watch tower 30 feet high, where the family marksman takes his position and playfully picks off any unfortunate who shows himself in the next square. Constitutionals are therefore confined on both sides and limited to nightly prowls.—Strand Magazine.
